Department Head Pay Hikes Draw Fire

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

Following a closed-door session at the end of their regular meeting on Jan. 14, the Commissioners of St. Mary's County approved pay raises for nearly every department head in county government on a split 3-to-2 vote.

The vote immediately drew criticism from Commissioner John O'Connor, who was joined in his dissenting vote by Commissioner Eric Colvin.

O'Connor was quick to point out that just last year the commissioners had declined to give pay parity to St. Mary's County sheriff's office deputies to match their counterparts in Charles County and in the Maryland State Police.

O'Connor and Colvin voted in support of pay parity, but the remaining commissioners voted against it; though they signaled that they would find a way to increase their pay this year.

Some commissioners said they needed to see more budget numbers late last year before voting for pay parity.

After the vote for department head raises, O'Connor reminded them of their supposed need for more information.

There were nine pay raises in all.

"Our department heads make six figures, some of these adjustments are close to $10,000," O'Connor said. "The decision was made last year not to do this

"When you say you don't have enough information to make a decision [on deputies pay] and we start passing out pay increases, retroactively I might add, it kind of sends the wrong message through county government."

Tuesday night at a packed community forum in Leonardtown, the commissioner board was pressed again to raise pay for sheriff's deputies as well as put more money in this year's budget for contract bus drivers for the school system.

Deputy Jason Smith stood at the podium in silence for one minute to drive home the point of needed raises to keep deputies from leaving the agency.

"That minute goes by much faster in the silence than it does when you're on the side of the road fighting for your life waiting for your backup to arrive," Smith told commissioners. "Every time we lose a deputy to Charles County, Calvert County... that minute gets longer and longer."

"That minute lasts a lifetime."

Dana Pettie, speaking for county school bus drivers, pressed for better pay and support.

"Many bus drivers feel they have been the forgotten ones when it comes to the county school board," Petty said.

Low pay meant that drivers often wanted to pursue a secondary job but found that difficult because they were on call in case of an emergency or inclement weather during school operational hours.

"Many of us love the job," Pettie said. "But it's hard to support yourself and your family on a little less than $17,000 a year."

"Last year everybody got a raise... most department heads didn't," Commissioner Todd Morgan said Wednesday. "We hadn't taken care of them."

Morgan said he still wanted to find the money during the budget process to give deputies more money.

Commissioner Calls for Task Force On Solar Requirement

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

Stringent laws requiring that 50 percent of the state's energy come from renewable resources has put a new emphasis on solar power to help meet those mandated 2030 goals; Commissioner Todd Morgan called for the formation of a local task force to examine what impacts that mandate will have on St. Mary's County.

A solar power developer is seeking to build a solar field south of Patuxent River Naval Air Station; Morgan said that the state Public Service Commission has the authority to override any zoning that local leaders might enact that would prevent a solar project.

Moreover, the state's requirements last year for solar power was 3 percent, now it's 15 percent.

"That's a 500 percent increase in the requirements," Morgan said.

The Whitetail IV Solar Project, proposed by Lightsource Renewable Energy Development of Philadelphia, currently presents a "low risk to operations" according to a January 6 missive from the base commander Capt. Chris Cox.

"Should there be any changes to the project configuration such as use of fixed panels or any use of wireless communications devices, the developer should coordinate the changes with NAS Pax," the letter reads.

But a subsequent letter sent by the Navy Jan. 9 to the Commissioners of St. Mary's County showed they now opposed the project, though they still say it would present a low risk to flight operations.

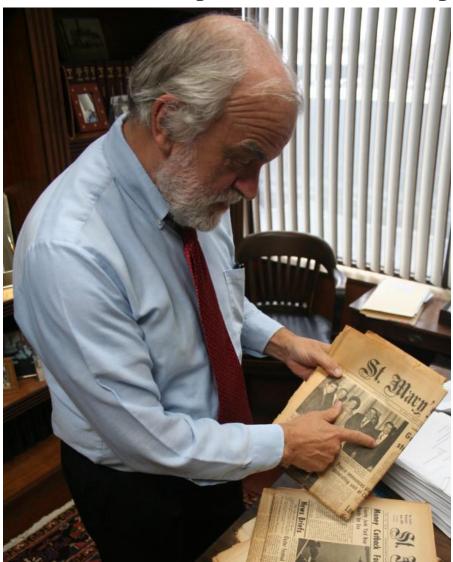

"NAS Pax has serious concerns regarding some of the specified vendors, sub-contractors, and sourcing of materials which appear to be either foreign owned, sourced or controlled by foreign government entities and, or have, close associations with other foreign owned firms that have been added to the Department of Commerce's Entity List and banned from the U.S.," the latest missive states. "NAS Pax has additional serious concerns regarding maintenance, sustainment and industrial control systems that will be associated with this project.

"These factors are a serious concern and are the reason for the objection to the project as proposed."

The project would be located 4.5 miles from the central airfield on the base.

The project was set to appear before the county's Board of Appeals Jan. 9 to seek a variance to the zoning ordinance that would allow its construction, but the board granted a continuance to the applicant based on the objections raised by the navy.

Local Attorney Finishes History of Judge John Hanson Briscoe

Local attorney Sam Baldwin used many old newspapers and other documents of his father-in-law's to compile an on-line history of his life.

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

John Hanson Briscoe, local attorney, state delegate, first Speaker of the House from St. Mary's County in perhaps 150 years and Circuit Court judge, died in January of 2014.

But not before helping his son-in-law, local trial attorney Samuel Baldwin, complete a history of his eventful life and career.

Briscoe was a member of one of the county's oldest and most prominent families, which once called Historic Sotterley Plantation its home.

He was also a direct descendent of John Hanson, the first President of Congress operating under the Articles of Confederation, which preceded the U.S. Constitution.

Baldwin recently completed the fifth and final chapter of the on-line John Hanson Briscoe History Project; it took six years to complete and started out as a history of his father-in-law's accomplishments, Baldwin said.

But it became much more.

"It started back in 2013, by then he had cancer and knew he wasn't going to beat it," Baldwin told The County Times. "He hadn't wanted to do it but then there was the cancer."

Baldwin interviewed Briscoe while he was bed ridden in 30 different sessions which were recorded and later transcribed; the story grew larger as Baldwin interviewed more people who knew his father-in-law and he used the project to paint a picture of the recent history of St. Mary's in which it transformed socially, politically and economically with the arrival of Patuxent River Naval Air Station in 1943.

Baldwin also collected newspaper clippings, photos and other pieces of history to fill out his compendium, including many old papers of Briscoe's stored in his basement.

"I'd bring them up and ask him 'What can you tell me about this? What can you tell me about that?" Baldwin said.

The first chapter of the on-line opus, which is free to the public, deals with Briscoe's childhood and the work goes on to describe life in St. Mary's through his eyes and those of others as it changed from rural isolation to one of the fastest growing in the state.

By using Briscoe as the main focus of the work, Baldwin was able to talk about the family's time at Sotterley in the 19th century as slave owners and the story continued.

"Anyone of these stories is a big one," Baldwin said. "All of these story lines are happening at once."

The arrival of the base changed everything and Briscoe, who didn't even want to run for elected office, found himself on a political reform ticket in the 1962 elections with the likes of J. Frank Raley, known as the founder of modern St. Mary's County.

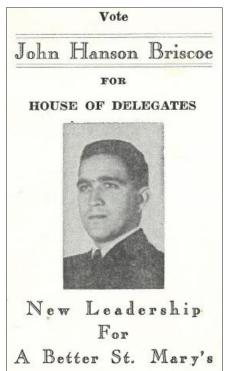

The change was made possible with the rapid rise of Lexington Park as the main community serving the base; though Leonardtown power brokers believed it was not worth investing in because they believed the military's presence would be temporary after the end of World War II.

Residents like Raley, Briscoe and Jack Daugherty had a different vision and worked to foster Lexington Park, create a rival political and social base to counter what was then known as the Dorsey political machine and give rise to the nascent transformation of the county.

Raley would be elected a senator, serve just four years but submit successful legislation that transformed the local government and infrastructure of the county as well as reform the local sheriff's office.

His opposition to slot machines would be his downfall; but his ticket partner Briscoe would carry on to become the top legislator in the House of Delegates.

Baldwin said he gathered the tome and was able to publish it with the help of about a dozen high school-aged interns – mostly from St. Mary's Ryken High School – who did the typing and transcribing of hundreds of interviews.

"It's a sharing of the county's history," Baldwin said. "It was a way to make his passing easier.

"It's been a way to honor his memory."

Golden Beach Winery Concept Approved

Howard Thompson returns as planning commission chair.

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

Though some in the Golden Beach community in North County were concerned about increased traffic on narrow Golden Beach Road, the county planning commission Monday night approved the concept site plan for the proposed Corteau Winery project.

The winery would be located on 240 acres of farmland that sits astride Golden Beach Road, said commission chair Howard Thompson, who made his return this week after recovering from a double lung transplant late last year.

The 6,562 square foot winery would sit in the approximate center of the larger parcel, Thompson said.

'There were some concerns about additional traffic but from the board's point of view it's in a rural setting," Thompson told The County Times. "He [the applicant Gerald Byrne of Leesburg, Va.] worked with county roads to find the best entrance."

Dale Antosh, president of the Golden Beach/Patuxent Knolls Civic Association, brought out the community concerns about additional traffic.

"We love driving past this winery," Antosh said. "But Golden Beach Road is a horrible, horrible road to drive on.

"They speed... there's a tremendous amount of traffic."

Included in the winery project proposal was a tasting room, complete with 11 parking spaces in front of the winery for visitors, and a field for events such as weddings

Additional parking would be available throughout the farm in designated areas, according to the plan.

"It's not on the same scale as Bowles Farm, because they have commercial kitchens," Thompson said.

Under current county ordinances wineries are allotted 20 days each year for special events; the county's Department of Economic Development is pressing the Commissioners of St. Mary's County to increase that number to 30 days a

The projected traffic increase to be brought by the project was 50 trips a day.

The farm already produces grapes that are shipped to the Port of Leonardtown Winery.

The lone opposition vote came from member Joseph St. Clair.

At the start of the meeting Monday night at the Potomac Building in Leonardtown, Thompson thanked his colleagues for their prayers during his surgery and recovery.

Thompson works at the Paul Hall Center of the Harry Lundeberg School of Seamanship in Piney Point.

"I'm doing fine," Thompson told The County Times. "I'll be back to work full time next week."

Big Larry's Closing Soon on Town Square

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

After the recent death of Larry Rhodes, the proprietor of Big Larry's Comics and Café in Leonardtown, the current operators of the store have announced that they will be closing its doors in March.

"But until then we will still be serving the same high-quality food using Larry's recipes," the operators noted on the business's website. "Thanks to everyone for your support over all these years."

Mayor Dan Burris spoke about the plans of the operators of Big Larry's to "move on" to other business opportunities at the town council meeting Monday.

Burris said the owner of The Slice House pizza shop, Ken Held, has expressed an interest in moving into the space Big Larry's occupies to possibly start up a dedicated carryout establishment.

"Ken's very interested

Big Larry's is set to close this March in taking it over," Burris

In other news, the town council voted to pursue a task order to design and build a new water tower to help accommodate the expansion of the town's water and sewer treatment plant capacity project.

The task order calls for the new tower to provide 75 percent of maximum daily demand expected to come from increased projected commercial and residential development in Leonardtown.

Its other mission is to provide up to two hours of waterflow for fire suppression.

The study promulgated by GHD, the engineering firm hired by the town, stated that by 2037 the town would need up to an additional one million gallons of water capacity.

The new tower will carry an additional 800,000 gallons; the budget estimate for construction was $3 million in the FY20 budget and $815,000 for engineering and design and construction management.

The task order provides for the engineering stage of the project.

Board of Public Works Awards Grant Funding for Land Preservation in St. Mary's

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County are pleased to announce that the Maryland Board of Public Works last week awarded over $2.5M in FY20 grant funding for land preservation in St. Mary's County. Southern Maryland Resource Conservation & Development (RC&D) Board, Inc. will use the grant, along with County and Navy funding, to purchase conservation easements in the Mattapany Rural Legacy Area (RLA). In total, RC&D has leveraged over $9.5M to preserve over 1,670 acres of land in the Mattapany RLA over the last two years.

Maryland's Rural Legacy Program provides funding to preserve large, contiguous blocks of environmentally sensitive land, while supporting agriculture and natural resource-based industries. Recognizing these important benefits, as well as the need to protect local quality of life and rural character, St. Mary's County provides matching funds for conservation easements through its land preservation program. The Navy's Readiness and Environmental Protection Integration Program also contributes significant funding for the easements in order to minimize conflicts between development and military operations at NAS Patuxent River and Webster field.

Commissioner Todd Morgan was pleased to join RC&D's Executive Director, Cindy Greb, at the Board of Public Works' grant award announcement. "We are happy to be able to give landowners the option of preserving their farmland and protecting it for future generations," Morgan said.

RC&D is currently preparing its grant application for FY21 Rural Legacy Program funding. Landowners in the Mattapany RLA (roughly bounded by Hermanville Road to the north and the Rt. 5 and 235 intersection to the south) who are interested in participating in the program should contact RC&D by Jan. 24, 2020, to verify their eligibility. The time from application to completion of the easement process is typically 18-24 months.

Southern Maryland RC&D Board, Inc. is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization and land trust. For more information, call 240-577-6413, email caroline. king@somdrcd.org, or visit www.somdrcd.org.

Legislature Ponders Kirwan Funding

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

A state senate committee heard from former University of Maryland Chancellor Brit Kirwan Jan. 14 about the potential for reform and improvement in state public schools if the legislature enacts the many recommendations from the commission that bears his name.

Kirwan said the combination of $4 billion in additional education funding over the next 10 years, along with higher standards and increased guidance on planning and school improvement from the state will result in a superior education "for every kid, in every zip code."

Still, just how the state will pay for the steep increases is unknown and rumors are circulating around Annapolis, local elected officials say, about possible ways to raise extra revenues.

Sen. Jack Bailey (R-Dist. 29) who attended the hearing, listened intently about the promises of increased teacher pay, which were a key aspect of the recommendations and one of the main reasons teachers were either leaving the profession or trying to find jobs in systems with higher salaries.

But Bailey said during the hearing that pay was only part of the equation.

The issue I find in talking to teachers who come to Southern Maryland is not the pay but a lack of discipline in the classroom," Bailey said.

Bailey also chafed at one of the accountability measures that would withhold 25 percent of a school system's state funding if it did not enact Kirwan commission directives; that money would only be released if the system did so.

"It would be held in escrow," Kirwan told the committee.

In a later interview, Bailey told The County Times he did not receive a satisfactory answer from Kirwan about accountability for school systems that "cooked the books" to make it seem that they were meeting state standards.

Bailey gave examples of recent scandals in Baltimore City and Prince George's County over testing and grade manipulation for reasons why there should be penalties for offending school systems.
"There's no penalty [in the District 27 Democrat Sen. Thomas V. "Mike" Miller, left, and District 29 Sen. Jack Bailey, a Republican, talk about what was the upcoming legislative sion in Annapolis which started Jan. 8

Kirwan recommendations] for not following the rules," Bailey said. "There needs to be discipline and accountability."

Kirwan said systems which failed to improve, but followed the recommendations would receive help from state education specialists to make the gains they needed.

Sen. Mary Beth Carroza, of Wicomico County and a member of the Kirwan Commission, backed up Bailey's concerns about discipline in the classroom and general working conditions.

"Along with pay, teachers continually bring up the learning environment," Carroza said during the hearing. "In Wicomico County we've had teachers sent to hospitals in just the past six weeks.'

Del. Matt Morgan (R-Dist. 29A) said no bill had been filed with a funding formula for Kirwan recommendations, though the House Bill 002 designation had been reserved for it.

For the next several years, the bill for Kirwan recommendations was paid for by the tax windfall the state received from the Trump Administration's tax cuts, Morgan said.

"It's about $750 million for three years," Morgan said. 'They've taken that and put it towards Kirwan."

But by 2023, the forward funding will run out and both counties and the state will have to begin paying the additional $3 billion to make Kirwan recommendations a reality.

'That's when the bill comes due," Morgan said, who questioned whether Kirwan's recommendations, with their high price tag, was the answer to improving education.

"Is Kirwan really the fix for education?" Morgan asked. "Maryland's per pupil funding is already $3,600 over the national average."

The Kirwan recommendations would also shift larger proportions of funding to school systems that are either economically disadvantaged or with poor performance.

"It means transporting more of our tax dollars to areas that already have the highest per pupil funding in the state." Morgan said.

He added that St. Mary's County received 41 cents back in tax revenue for every dollar it sent to the state.

Del. Brian Crosby (D-Dist. 29B) said the level of taxes returning to St. Mary's was not the best, but 12th out of 24 iurisdictions.

"We are the benchmark,"

Crosby said, adding that he was confident St. Mary's would be able to fund any increases in education funding that Kirwan would mandate, at least for the next few years.

"I'm confident, based on recent history, St. Mary's is funding above whatever's in this bill," Crosby said. "Do we [at the state level] even need to raise revenues?

"I don't have the answer to that."

Crosby said the issue of Kirwan funding would be the most important this General Assembly, but the commission itself was supposed to have come up with a funding formula after three years of work.

"They kicked it back to the legislators," Crosby said. "They've had three years and everybody's already asking for

He agreed with Morgan in that other jurisdictions less well off than St. Mary's would benefit much more.

"They're going to get a larger portion of the pie... because they have more poor people," Crosby said.

Del. Jerry Clark (R-Dist. 29 C) said there was still much uncertainty over how the state would fund the Kirwan recommendations, but there were already numerous ideas floating around Annapolis about how more revenues could be raised.

"They're looking hard at taxing digital ads on the internet," Clark said. "They're also considering taxing internet sales and doing away with certain business tax credits."

Removing business tax incentives would not produce significant revenue, Clark said, as the state did not provide many such incentives.

There was even an idea about allowing sports gambling at Maryland casinos to raise revenue to help fund Kirwan, Clark

That could find its way on a referendum ballot in the next election, he said.

Clark also entertained the idea that legislators might leave the solution to funding Kirwan They're just moving the can down the road for the next governor and the next legislature," Clark said.

Gov. Larry Hogan has been critical of the Kirwan Commission's spending recommendations as being without enough accountability.

Another Chance to Bag a Hen or Gobbler

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources announces the opening of the winter turkey season, which runs statewide from January 23-25 for hunters who did not harvest a turkey during the 2019 fall season.

Hunting hours are from one half-hour before sunrise to one half-hour after sunset. The bag limit is one turkey of either sex.

"Wild turkey populations are at an all-time high in much of Maryland," Wildlife and Heritage Service Director Paul Peditto said. "The winter season provides a fantastic opportunity to

PATUXENT RIVER NAVAL AIR STATION

New Commander Takes Charge of U.S. Navy Test Pilot School

Lt. Col. Rory Feely became the 49th commander of the United States Naval Test Pilot School (USNTPS) following a change of command ceremony today. Feely took over from Cmdr. Glenn P. Rioux who served as the school's commanding officer since July 2018.

Retired Rear Admiral Paul A. Sohl was guest speaker at the change of command ceremony. Sohl formerly served as the commanding officer of Naval Air Warfare Center Weapons Division and as both the executive officer and commanding officer of Fleet Readiness Center Southeast.

"You've set the foundation for TPS to be an integral part of the Navy's larger transformation – well done," said Sohl. "I couldn't be prouder and more appreciative of your command's accomplishments over the last year and a half. We all owe you a debt of gratitude."

Sohl praised Rioux's initiatives to develop and implement a long-term vision statement for the school, to comprehensively update the school's curriculum and develop measurable learning objectives aligned to them, and to formalize the school's instructor qualification standards. "You're taking the deliberate steps required to get to a coaching instructional methodology," Sohl said. "This is real education reform."

Feely, according to Sohl, exhibited three traits that will make him a successful commanding officer of USNTPS: "a contagious curiosity, a core belief that perceived failures actually get us closer to the solution more quickly than successes, and finally, he holds dear the idea that humans inherently want to connect together in teams to solve the biggest challenges."

Feely, the current executive officer of USNTPS, has served 24 years in the Marine Corps and has deployed four times to Iraq, Southeast Asia, and Central Asia. An acquisitions officer and experimental test pilot, Feely's last assignment prior to joining USNTPS was to the Marine Corps' Heavy Lift Helicopter Program Office, where he was responsible for the CH-53K International team's efforts in Germany and Israel. He is a USNTPS graduate and served four years as a military test pilot at Air Test and Evaluation Squadron 21, where he worked on precision weapons and high-fidelity sensor systems integrated onto combat helicopters.

A native of Dublin, Ireland, Feely has a bachelor's degree in Physics and a minor in Mathematics from University College Cork. He earned a master's in Technical Program Management from Johns Hopkins University in 2009 and a master's in Aerospace Engineering from Naval Postgraduate School in 2015. He is the recipient of the 2009 National Defense Industrial Association Marine Corps Tester of the Year Award and is an active member of the Vertical Flight Society, the Society of Experimental Test Pilots, and the Marine Corps Aviation Association.

"We make combat systems for Marines and sailors who fly into combat," said Feely. "We have to a good job. We have to do a better job."

"If you want to make a difference, you need to do the kind of work that does," said Feely.

Rioux, a fellow graduate of USNTPS, enlisted in the Navy and served as an electronics technician, where he attained the rank of Petty Officer First Class before being selected for the Enlisted Commissioning Program. At the same time, he earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at Virginia Tech with majors in Computer Science and Software Engineering and minors in Mathematics and Leadership. After a career supporting flight test projects, carrier and humanitarian operations, and unmanned air systems program offices at NAVAIR, Rioux reported to USNTPS as executive officer in January 2017.

"It has been an honor and pleasure serving with you," said Rioux to Feely. "And I'll tell you this: hang on, it's a wild ride. It goes so very quickly, but enjoy it, cherish it, it will be awesome and you're going to do a great job."

During his remarks, Rioux presented commendations to USNTPS instructor Mr. Ron Barthelmes for spearheading the curriculum development effort, and to instructor Lt. Cmdr. Nick Denison and chief flight instructor Cmdr. Ryan Donohue for updating the USNTPS history book for the first time since 1992.

Founded in 1945, USNTPS trains the world's finest developmental test pilots, flight officers, engineers, and industry and foreign partners in the full-spectrum test and evaluation of aircraft and aircraft systems. Located at NAS Patuxent River, the school is in the forefront of developing modern test techniques, and is a leader in the standardization of flight test. It is the only source of rotary-wing test pilots in the United States and serves as the U.S. Army's test pilot school. Graduates leave the program prepared to meet the wide range of requirements necessary to conduct research, developmental and operational test and evaluation activities in support of U.S. military services, government agencies, and many foreign nations.

USNTPS is a component of Naval Test Wing Atlantic, test wing under Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division. With facilities in Patuxent River, Maryland; Lakehurst, New Jersey; and Orlando, Florida NAWCAD supports the research and development, engineering, test and evaluation of all Navy and Marine Corps air vehicle systems and trainers.

School Schedule Draws Controversy

When to Start the Year Debated

By Dick Myers Editor

Maryland's school boards have been unshackled from the Gov. Hogan dictated requirement that schools start after Labor Day. But the controversy ranges on in St. Mary's County.

A committee tasked with coming up with next year's school calendar has recommended that schools start as they had before the governor's policy change — on the 4th Wednesday of August, which would be August 26 this year. The recommendation has the full support of Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith. But several school board members don't like the idea.

The report of the 27-member committee was presented to the school board at their Jan. 15 meeting by Chief Strategic Officer Dr. Jeffrey Maher. The committee reviewed more than 3,000 responses to an online survey, and he said slightly less than 50 percent favored the 4th Wednesday start, while 35.5 percent being okay with a Sept. 1 start and 25.4 percent sticking with retaining the start after Labor Day.

Board member Rita Weaver quickly responded, "I am against schools starting that early." She expressed concern for families transferring to a Pax River related job from areas more familiar with a September school start. She said it might require family members to come in early to start their children in school.

Board Chair Karin Bailey expressed support for an Aug. 31 start while board Vice Chair Cathy Allen settled in on Sept. 1 for this year, which is a Tuesday and would give time on Monday for the schools to be readied for the children.

Bailey noted, however, "We all agree it would be unreasonable to start after Labor Day." The state's school boards pushed back on that requirement and got legislative support because of the difficulty of squeezing the required 180 days into the calendar, providing for snow days, and ending sometime in mid-June instead of extending into late June.

The calendar presented to the board included a full two-week winter break around Christmas and New Year's, which this year will be on Friday. Maher said the committee felt it would make sense to give the kids the whole week off before Christmas and families time to travel. But Weaver wondered how many people do travel.

Weaver suggested that would be one possible place to make up for the days lost by starting later. Another possible target would be Columbus Day, which is now a voluntary parent/teacher conference day.

Another potential target for making up lost days could be the traditional Friday school day at the county fair. Maher noted that having school that day would cause problems for the three schools across the street from the fairgrounds, which are used for overflow parking.

And, board member Mary Washington argued passionately that the fair tradition was important for the students and the public.

Smith was resolute that the 4th Wednesday in August made the most sense from an education standpoint. Smith said, "I understand there is a great push to keep summer, summer," but he noted that the earlier start date had worked successfully "forever." He said in starting on Wednesday teachers have time to prepare their classrooms and also schools have time to schedule open houses.

He also observed that starting earlier gave students more time to prepare for their college examinations.

Allen asked Maher to take the school board members' concerns back to the committee to solicit their comments,

Chief Strategic Officer Dr. Jeffrey Maher

although Smith pointed out that the decision ultimately rests with the school board. She also asked for data on the number of military families affected and the number of parents who come to the Columbus Day conferences.

The committee's recommendation was to create a uniform schedule for the next two school years.

The school board will have a chance to hear more reactions at a public hearing scheduled for their Jan. 29 meeting.

Frederick Otto Troger

Frederick Otto Troger, 88, of Silver Spring, MD formerly from Detroit, MI passed away on January 11, 2020 at his home. He was born on April 14, 1931 in Detroit, MI and was the loving son of the late Erma Van Troostenberghe Troger and Alfred Troger. Fred was the loving husband of Helena Pat Troger whom he married on July 4, 1955 in St. Mary's County, MD. Fred is survived by his children Cathy Carter (Scott) of Burtonsville, MD, Joann Syrokosz (Steve) of St. Mary's, KS, 15 grandchildren, and 24 great grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his sister Rosemary Holzhauer.

Fred graduated from St. Ambrose in 1949 and attended the University of Detroit. Fred lived in Detroit until he joined the Navy in 1951. He was stationed at Pax River and had a blind date with Patsy Downs. Patsy's mother said he must be ok since he was Catholic. They married after he was honorably discharged from the Navy. Fred brought Pat to Detroit and then Dearborn where they lived until Fred retired in 1994. Fred initially worked at Continental Aviation which eventually moved to Toledo. The family did not want to move so he started working for Ford as a test engineer and retired in 1994.

Fred and Pat moved to Culpeper, VA for a short time but that was too far away from Pat's family in Southern Maryland and from his daughter Cathy's family in Burtonsville. Fred and Pat bought a house in La Plata and lived there until they moved to Riderwood in 2009. Fred was not crazy about Riderwood at first but knew it would be a good place for them in the future, and it was only a few miles from Burtonsville. Fred and Pat made lots of friends there. Fred played pinochle and pool every week, and joined the ham radio club. Fred's call letters for many years were K8TKC which Pat said stood for K8 Tender Kissing Catholic. Fred had those call letters on his license plate

Fred and Pat traveled all around the US and to other countries as well. Fred also took a trip with his nephew Phil to Australia. In addition to vacation travels, Fred and Pat took many trips to Kansas to visit Joann and her ever growing family. Joann says she appreciated Fred helping with tuition for her 13 children to attend Catholic school. Joann also fondly remembers the banana seat bike her dad gave her, to which he added a small motor. Most of the neighbors were ok with this "motorcycle" but there were a few who didn't like the noise. Joann also remembers when her dad would take her shopping to buy a present for her mom, and buy her M&Ms which he told her to keep quiet about.

That brings us to dad's hobby of riding motorcycles. He got his first one when he was 14, and he had at least one ever since Cathy and Joann can remember. Every couple of years he would buy a larger one. One year he bought a 1949 Harley 3 wheeler and used it to drive all the neighbor kids around, and he drove it on the ice on Lake St. Clair. Fred took the family on weekends to watch "hill climb" motorcycle races. Fred also went on lots of motorcycle trips with his nephew Mike, and Cathy remembers more than one time when her dad had a hard time pulling his boots off a black and blue ankle from leaning too far into a curve. Cathy also remembers when her dad took her to a Tiger game on a motorcycle. It started to rain so they pulled off onto the shoulder of I-94 under a bridge. The bike kind of went sideways and Cathy's pants ripped and her knee was scraped up. They returned home to get the car and for Cathy to change and she was told to get in and out of the house without her mom seeing her knee. Dad was also a lucky rider because when he was T-boned by a car one time he did two summersaults and leaded on his feet. However, his pristine Honda Silver Wing was totaled. Pat went on regular rides with Fred and he bought them matching helmets for their 25th wedding anniversary. They also loved riding their snowmobiles at their cottage "up North" at Forest Lake.

Fred was very handy and had a workshop in the basement where he fixed TVs and some small appliances. He even fixed his own huge flat screen TV last year.

Fred loved music, mostly jazz, and he frequently attended Navy Band concerts.

Fred was a loving son, brother, husband, father, grandfather, great grandfather, neighbor and friend. He helped family, neighbors and friends, especially while living at Riderwood. After all, he was still driving, even at night! There will be a service at Riderwood later in January or in February so all his friends there can attend.

The family will receive friends on Thursday, January 16, 2020 from 12:30 PM to 1:30 PM in Sacred Heart Catholic Cemetery Bushwood, MD, where a Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 1:30 PM with Father Samuel Plummer officiating. Interment will follow in the church cemetery.

There will be a service at Riderwood later in January or in February so all his friends there can attend.

In lieu of flowers contributions may be made to Church of the Resurrection 3315 Green Castle Road Burtonsville, MD 20866, Riderwood Benevolent Care Fund, Philanthropy Department 3110 Gracefield Road Silver Spring, MD 20904 or the American Cancer Society.

Joseph Frederick "Freddie" Hancock

Joseph Frederick "Freddie" Hancock, Sr., 88, of Compton, MD, formerly of Loveville, MD, passed away on January 10, 2020 at St. Mary's Hospital. Born on October 10, 1931, he was the son of the late Mary Alma Long Hancock and Joseph Morgan Hancock. Freddie was the loving husband of Lorraine Burch Hancock, whom he married on August 24, 1955 at Immaculate Conception Church in Mechanicsville, MD.

A lifelong resident of St. Mary's County, Freddie attended St. Joseph's Catholic School. He served two years in the Maryland National Guard. He worked as a mechanic for the Patuxent River Naval Air Station Fuel Farm, later at his own repair shop, and then the C&P Telephone Company. In 1970, he joined the business Hancock Refrigeration with his brother Billy. In 1976, he then moved on to a position in HVAC service/repair for the St. Mary's County Board of Education, retiring from there in 1993. He was also a school bus contractor and driver for 30 years for the St. Mary's County Non-Public School system.

Crematory on Premises

Obituaries Available Online @ www.brinsfieldfuneral.com

Freddie was considered a "Jack of all trades." He had the amazing ability to fix just about anything that he put his hands on, and if something was needed that didn't exist, he invented it. He was famous for his ability to put a motor on anything. His cousins are convinced that he invented the first "moped" in St. Mary's County – by putting an old gasoline powered washing machine motor on a bicycle in his teens.

There was always someone coming in and out of his garage/shop at home in Loveville, bringing him new projects and things to fix. Nothing made him happier than to help people out. Even in his later years, with severely limited eyesight and difficult mobility, Freddie always had a project going. In the last week of his life, he finished building/repairing an air compressor as a surprise gift for one of his grandsons – just because he thought it was needed.

Along with "tinkering", Freddie enjoyed hunting, motor-home camping, boating, fishing, and crabbing. He was famous within the family for his steamed crabs. His grandchildren swore that no one cooked crabs that tasted as good as Pop-Pop's. Freddie was also an avid NASCAR and Dallas Cowboys fan.

Freddie is survived by his loving wife of 64 years, Lorraine Burch Hancock; his daughter, Mary K. Peterson of Piney Point, MD and her husband Billy; his son, Joseph F. "Ricky" Hancock, Jr. of Loveville, MD and his wife Cindy; his daughter, Susan P. Hall of Chaptico, MD and her husband Glenn; his daughter, Paula E. Kidwell of Hughesville, MD and her husband Charlie; his daughter, Julie M. Guy of Loveville, MD; his son, John M. "Jack" Hancock of Callaway, MD and his girlfriend Cathy Sparks; and his brother, Charles J. Hancock of Mt. Airv. MD. Freddie is also survived by eight grandchildren (William B. "BJ" Peterson IV, Christina Finegan, Kelly Trossbach, Jessie Hall, Alex McLean, Christopher Hall, Rose Hancock, and Jason Guy) and eight great-grandchildren (Emma Peterson, Madison Trossbach, Elizabeth Finegan, Cheyenne Trossbach, Jack Finegan, Henry Finegan, Liam Peterson, and Ryleigh Trossbach).

He was preceded in death by his mother and father; his siblings Mary Agnes Bailey, William B. Hancock, and Reggie Hancock; and his grandchildren Heather Hancock and Kerri Hancock.

The family will receive friends on Friday, January 17, 2020 from 9:30 AM to 10:45 AM in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Morganza, MD, where a Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 11:00 AM, with Father Drew Royals officiating. Interment will follow in the church cemetery. Serving as pallbearers will be BJ Peterson, Alex McLean, Christopher Hall, Jason Guy, John Trossbach and John Finegan.

In lieu of flowers contributions may be made to the Leonardtown Vol. Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 299, Leonardtown, MD 20650.

Is Your Dental Office Safe?

Untreated waterlines in the dental office can affect your health.

office, before you let them spray water in your mouth, ask them how, and where their water lines are treated.

The Problem: The flexible lines that go from the water pipes in your dental office to the delivery system at the chairside are made of materials that are the perfect environment for the growth of biofilm. Biofilm is made up of bacteria colonies that adhere to the inner walls of the dental hosing. When not properly treated, these water lines and valves become coated with bacteria that grows exponentially at room temperature and contaminates the water that is used to irrigate and rinse your mouth. This water can be unsafe!

City water, often considered to be safe for consumption, reaches the dental office in potable form. Dental offices, aware of the need for added water quality and safety may even have a water treatment system at the source where the water enters the building. ty. One such company at the forefront

A simple google search of "dental practice, water, illness" will result in many articles about lawsuits and unfortunate outcomes to patients including children in Georgia, New Jersey, Virginia, and California.

These are virtually the lowest levels achievable today, and they are well beyond the EPAs recommendation of less than 500 colony forming units (CFU) per milliliter (ml).

Stersil's solution is a combination of treating the water at entry to the practice and at the dental chair where the instrumentation connects to the flexible water hosing. This takes virtually all risk out of the water supply, ensuring safe water while treating the patient.

Dentists are to follow guidelines on safety, sanitation, standard of care and product quality. It is your right to know what your dentist is doing to assure your safety.
