Election Final: 55-Percent Turnout

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

After counting more than 750 provisional ballots and some straggler mail-ins, the Calvert County count for the general election is now final. Of the 67,781 registered voters, 37,577 votes were cast in the gubernatorial election, or a 55.4 percent voter turnout.

The race that provided the most drama at the end of voting on election day, the contest for Register of Wills, in the end the outcome proved to be less-than-dramatic. Republican challenger Mark Lynch was ahead of incumbent Margaret Phipps, who has held the office for 45 years, by 250 votes. But as the mail-in ballots rolled in, Phipps quickly surged ahead. She also won the provisional count – 412 to 282. So, when the counting stopped Phipps had bested Lynch by a 2,903-vote margin, or 54 to 46 percent.

The two non-partisan At-Large Board of Education races did turn out to be closer than they appeared on election day. Former school board member Tracy McGuire, who had considerable Democratic support, did benefit from the mail-ins and provisional ballots. Mc-

Kelly McConley

Guire bested Jana Post by 4,177 to 2,164 mail-in votes, but that was not nearly enough to overcome Post's election day margin, and she prevailed by a 1,194-vote margin. Lisa Grenis led the race for the two available seats with 17,426 votes.

With two of the incumbent Republican county commissioners (Chris Gadway and Kelly McConley) falling in the primary, there will be a new majority board when the commissioners are sworn in next month.

At the Nov. 15 commissioner meeting, Commissioner Mike Hart, who will be starting his third term, thanked his Democratic challenger, Trish Powell. "We ran against each other before. That time and this time was both very respectful. Me and Trish are friends outside of this, and it's the way it's supposed to be. We both just went after the same job, and I want to thank her for a very good campaign. I wish her nothing but the best as always. I think it's a great example of how politics can be. It's a small town and I think hopefully everybody wants the same thing, and that's just the best for Calvert."

He added, "We do have Thanksgiving coming. It is a good time to sit back and really be thankful for what we have. You look around the world and boy, if the biggest problem that we have is that a road's not striped, we're heading in the right direction."

McConkey said, "I'd just like to congratulate everybody that won the election, and I know that all of you will continue to move Calvert County in the right direction. And I'm going to look forward to taking a break from politics for a little while and put more time into my family, my business. And it's going to be a change after 10 years of doing it. So, we'll see where it takes me next."

Benton Re-elected North Beach Mayor

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

North Beach Mayor Mike Benton was elected to a second term in Nov. 8 balloting. Benton garnered 260 votes to his challenger Elizabeth Lawton's 146 votes. Lawton was a one term council member.

In an Oct. 11 League of Women Voters of Calvert County forum at the town hall, both candidates were asked why they were running. Benton said, "Four years ago, I decided to run for mayor after eight years sitting on town council because my family is here, my kids have grown up here. I love living in this town, and we have made such great strides in our amazing little town that I felt that I could bring more value to the town. As a mayor, over the last four years, you probably have seen me out and about a majority of weeks, either picking up trash, meeting residents, but at the end of the day, my heart and my soul is in the town of North Beach."

Lawton said, "I decided to run for mayor after attending the summer conference for the Maryland Municipal League. There are so many changes in the state of Maryland, some of the policies and some of the things that are coming down the pipe that affect our government. After sitting on council, I knew that we were not prepared for that. We do wonderful things in this town, responsive to strategic planning for the future. Some of those things we are just not prepared."

Five incumbent council members were returned to office along with newcomer Mary Healey, who will replace Lawton on the council. The council votes were as follows:

- Greg Dotson: 291
- Mary Healey: 261
- Mickey Hummel: 285
- Lauren Kabler: 269
- Turkessa Thompson: 183
- Paul Troncone: 227
- Ken Wilcox: 265

Testing of Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Power Plant Sirens on Dec. 5

There will be a full-cycle test of the alert and notification sirens throughout St. Mary's, Calvert and Dorchester counties on Monday, Dec. 5, 2022, at noon.

This includes a three-minute activation of all sirens within the 10-mile area around Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Power Plant. All citizens are asked to remember the scheduled testing and relay the information to friends, family, and neighbors.

The testing is conducted to check siren operation and increase public awareness of the alert and notification siren system.

If the sirens sound at any other time, residents should tune in to one of the local radio stations for information and instructions.

Knowing what to do before, during and after an emergency is a critical part of being prepared and may make all the difference when seconds count.

Chesapeake Beach Adopts Zoning Amendments, Maps

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Chesapeake Beach Town Council has adopted amendments to the town's zoning ordinance and new zoning maps that implement the revised comprehensive plan passed earlier this year. Both of the ordinances passed after public hearings at the town's Nov. 17 meeting.

The changes to the zoning ordinance came after amendments were offered by Councilwoman Valerie Beaudin that clarified how the 35-foot height limit can be measured and by Councilman Larry Jaworski that made provisions for measuring for a raised first floor for houses in the flood plain.

Beaudin said in introducing her amendment, "I think the crowning achievement of this comprehensive plan will be a 35-foot height limit."

Jaworski said about his amendment, "If we don't allow some kind of elevation of residences in the flood protection area, they will be subject to flooding or they will be extremely limited as to what they can construct."

During the discussion, Mayor Pat Mahoney explained, "The changes before us formalize, one, the protection of hundreds of acres of natural resources, two, the protection of the character of our small town, three, the recognition of the need for coastal resiliency and four, action to limit development in our most fragile locations. Importantly, this work also includes great strides to create vibrancy for small businesses and increased open space for wellness and community gathering."

Councilman Greg Morris said, "There are parts of the ordinance that I don't like and there are probably parts of the ordinance that everybody in this room don't like. And that's probably a good thing because that probably means there's some balance in there somewhere."

During the public comment session before the approval, Trader's Restaurant owner Gary Lockett criticized the 35-foot height limit.

"I'm one of the oldest structures I believe left that hasn't done anything with its property. So, my building, I think is approaching 65 years of age. And in some aspects, I'd like to do something with it, tear it down, make the maximum use of my property, but I'm restricted. I can't even be taller than the local water park. Can't be taller than the existing community center. I can't even be taller than my neighbors across the street of an unlimited number of townhomes."

Joe Devlin, an attorney representing the developer of Richfield Station, said their rights to complete the original 1992 community development plan were being thwarted. He said the unbuilt lots were not already recorded because of "an engineering issue."

"All of those lots were designated back in 1992 for development in return for millions and millions of dollars of infrastructure," he asserted.

But Richfield Station resident Peter Shin said the balance between growth and peaceful enjoyment of the community is delicate. "You don't want to destroy the essence of the community that brought you here in the first place."

He added, "The climate was a little bit different in 1992 than it is now."

A large contingent from Richfield Station packed the hearing room in support of the proposed ordinances.

But Eric Blitz, an attorney representing the Rod 'N Reel Resort, said, "As described in the comprehensive plan that you just passed in April, Chesapeake Beach had the lowest growth rate for the last decade than any decade since 1960. You are not growing. This plan will shut down all growth. It's just going to lock it down because of the details. When you get into the details of what they do on height, dimension requirements, it's not going to be economical to build. And I feel sorry for the people that detrimentally relied upon the plans that this town has had for 50 years. You can't shut the gates."

The changes include removing Hun-tingtown High School and two pieces of property owned by Commissioner Kelly McConkey from Huntingtown Town Center. North Beach Holiday Parade is Back

Twin Beaches Shine for the Holidays

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

After a three-year hiatus because of the pandemic, the area's premier Christmas parade, the Pat Carpenter Holiday Parade, returns to North Beach with anticipation it'll be bigger and better than ever. Mark December 3 on your holiday calendar.

The parade steps off at noon following a route along Bay Avenue from 1st St. to 7th St. You can watch the whole parade at a vantage point along the boardwalk and have the Chesapeake Bay as a backdrop.

Typically, the parade features more than 100 units, including: decorated bicycles, tricycles, and wagons; marching bands and elected officials; teams, cheerleaders, and other marching groups; motorcycles and antique cars; pets and their owners; and floats representing businesses, organizations and churches.

The highlight of the parade is the annual arrival of Santa Claus on a North Beach fire truck. After Santa hops off the truck, he will join Mrs. Claus under the tent to greet the children with their gift wish lists.

If you would like to join in the fun by participating in the parade, contact Bob Carpenter by email at patcarpenterholidayparade@gmail.com

The day of the parade North Beach also hosts a Christmas Market at the corner of 5th St & Bay Avenue from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

The towns of North Beach and Chesapeake Beach are also known for their town-wide light displays and both towns have contests for residents and businesses.

North Beach "Lights Up the Town" on Friday, Nov. 25 at the pavilion on the boardwalk beginning at 6 p.m. Christmas songs will be sung by Union Church. Then a special guest will appear to light the tree. It's a great place for holiday photos.

Then it's Chesapeake Beach's turn on Sunday, November 27. The festivities are at the town hall from 4-6 p.m. and include an outside Christmas market and the lighting of the town hall and its yard. Holiday music will be performed by the Beach Elementary School String Ensemble.

Also, after a three-year hiatus the bus tour of Chesapeake Beach's neighborhood light displays will take place on Saturday Dec. 10 from 5-8 p.m. Registration will be announced later.

Barns at New Market Have Holiday Spirit

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Nearly 30 local vendors of everything from holiday-themed crafts to locally produced meats, cheeses and produce have set up shop at the Barns at New Market through Dec. 17 to give shoppers the benefits of buying locally this holiday season.

There are so many vendors that there is not enough space to have them all at once time so only between 10 and 14 vendors at a time are open there each Saturday through mid-December.

Shoppers who want the opportunity to see all of the vendors will have to make multiple trips each weekend to the barns.

The St. Mary's County Department of Economic Development has posted a full list of vendors on its Facebook page.

The Barns at New Market are divided between a set of open-air stalls — the seasonal market — where many of the local meats and produce are available but also being sold there are locally-made cider for the holidays.

The other is an enclosed building that is referred to as the “value added” site, complete with what officials say will be a working kitchen by the spring.

This is where processed goods are to be sold from the raw farm products, said Kellie Hinkle, deputy director of the county's Department of Economic Development.

“The value-added building is new for us and we really wanted to open this building,” Hinkle told The County Times. “A winter holiday market would be a great way to do that.”

Another focus of the market is to boost local producers and entrepreneurs, county officials said, giving shoppers a viable option for getting unique gifts for their holiday needs.

The Barns at New Market was constructed using grant money and donations to provide a replacement for the farmers market that had long operated at the Charlotte Hall Public Library.

THE LOVE STAR

THE NIGHT IS FULL OF ENDLESS WONDERS
THROUGH MY SLEEP THROUGH MY SLUMBERS
I SEE A STAR FAR UP ABOVE
A STAR THAT BRIGHTLY BEAMS OF LOVE

I THINK OF THE STAR OF OUR LORD
THE STAR THAT GLOWED, GLITTERED, AND SOARED
TO ALLURE MANKIND FROM OVER THE EARTH
TO THE PRINCE OF PEACE AT OUR SAVIOR'S BIRTH

I BELIEVE THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM
THE STAR FROM WHENCE LOVE BEGAN
IS THAT STAR IN DREAM I SEE
FOR LOVE OF GOD, MANKIND, AND THEE

NOW THE END OF NIGHT HAS COME
SOON I SHALL ARISE AS ONE WHO KNOWS THROUGH DREAM THOUGH IT HAS PASSED
THE LUSTER OF THE STAR SHALL LAST

HAVE A BLESSED CHRISTMAS

To the Editor

A Message from St. Mary's Community Development Corp. and St. Mary's County Arts Council:

We appreciate the article that was published on November 17th on the Hopeful Project and would like to add to the story.

For almost a year, St. Mary's CDC and St. Mary's Arts Council have been working collaboratively with members of the Lexington Park community, church leaders, local partners, and artist Charlie Hewitt to not only bring the Hopeful public art to St. Mary's County, but to also encourage resident involvement in the Hopeful Project overall. Together, we took the initiative of identifying donors to help fund the purchase of the large piece of art and the outreach portion of the Hopeful Project.

We have since invested in community-based outreach about what the "Hopeful" message really means to our community and how we could work together to make hopefulness a reality. Both organizations are proud to work with Charlie, the community, and each other to create a positive impact on Lexington Park. We believe community involvement is a vital component of the project's message, and as Charlie put it: "To be hopeful requires action, it requires commitment, it requires opening your eyes, it requires being part of something."

More information can be found at www.stmaryscdc.org.

Barbara Bershon, President, St. Mary's County Arts Council Board of Directors

RE: Veterans of Helen – 37th Annual Veterans Day Observance

On behalf of the Veterans and the community of Helen, I would like to express our most sincere appreciation and gratitude to everyone who came out to pay tribute to all veterans of our armed forces and those still wearing the uniform and serving in active duty in country and abroad. Mother nature and the remnants of Hurricane Lisa had an adverse impact on a number of planned Veterans Day activities, but it didn't dampen the spirit, respect and honor due to our veterans. Through the generosity, support and cooperation of many, we were still able to hold our event under slightly different circumstances than usual but still achieving the goal and purpose intended; honoring all who served. A special thanks to CAPT Douglas Burfield, Executive Officer NAS Pax River for serving as our guest speaker; Rev Darryl Kemp, Pastor Mt. Zion UMC and former U.S. Army Chaplain; Knights of Columbus Father Andrew White Assembly 4th Degree Color Corp; Knights of Columbus St. Mary's Council #1470; Rick Hard-

Letters to the Editor

This letter is a response to last week's article titled "Artist Brings Home A Hopeful Message." In it is stated that there needs to be more hopefulness in Lexington Park before the Hopeful project will put their artwork on the lawn of a church on Great Mills Road.

What does it take to be considered hopeful? What is necessary to be happening so the Hopeful Project Artwork goes up on Great Mills Road?

It is often said "actions speak louder than words." So please consider actions by members of the Lexington Park – Great Mills corridor.

The longest running hopeful project is the one that will have a YMCA built near Great Mills High School. A Steering Committee for a community center has worked for over 8 years and now there will be something to do for all members of Saint Mary's County. Plus, there will be full time jobs and much needed part time jobs for teenagers.

What about all the community groups that meet at the Lexington Park Library? If you want to use one of the three meeting rooms you need to be counting the 90 days ahead so you can sign up. You must wait for 48 hours before you want to use one of the two study rooms. Citizens of Lexington Park are using those rooms. When my group was meeting there last Monday evening every meeting room and study room had a group in it. Is it not possible that these groups are hopeful that their meetings will have positive results?

This last spring the Community Development Corporation sponsored a Clean-up on Great Mills Road. There were 18 sponsoring groups. Residents of Lexington Park turned out to work and then enjoyed a meal. Was this not a hopeful project?

Does getting the first Boys and Girls

Club in St. Mary's County count? Once a Lexington Park resident on the Local Management Board learned the Maryland Governor made funds available for Boys and Girls Clubs in every county, the information was shared. A church volunteered to have the Club. This fall students from Lexington Park Elementary School are having a great time after school.

What about the coat drive being done by the members of the District 4 Sheriff's Department? They started donating socks to the elementary school, but when the principal shared what they really needed were coats, they started a drive. Lexington Park businesses and residents donated. This week 100 coats were given to needy students at the school.

There is also a business that has a place where coats can be donated or you can get one for yourself.

Then, there are the actions of the Lexington Park Business Association. One member of the group has a project to encourage all businesses on Great Mills to put up holiday decorations. But the Association has a project that invites everyone to a Holiday Celebration. It is going to be in St. Mary's Square on Saturday, December 3 and starts at 1:00 in the afternoon. There will be lots of activities and of course - Santa Claus.

Again, if these actions of hopefulness are not enough, I challenge those who need more hopefulness to organize more groups and help bring about the rest of the change needed so we can have the beautiful artwork sign that says: HOPEFUL representing those of us who are working to upgrade our Lexington Park community.

Thank you,
Joan Sullivan Cowan

Ada Elizabeth Russell, 89

Ada Elizabeth Russell, 89, of Morganza, MD, passed away on November 16, 2022 at her home with family by her side. She was born on December 16, 1932 in Grampton, MD to Mary Elizabeth Cusic Thompson and Joseph Henry Thompson, Sr. Ada married Walter Fidelis Russell, Sr. on July 23, 1951 at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Morganza, MD. Ada and Fidelis enjoyed 51 years of marriage before Fidelis passed on January 11, 2003.

Ada was the loving mother of Mary Elizabeth Wathen Strine (Jimmy), Walter Fidelis Russell, Jr., (Betty), Joseph Leroy Russell, John Wayne Russell, Sr. (Tracey), Catherine Russell Humphries, James Alvin Russell, Sr., Gail Marie Shelley, Kevin Paul Russell (Meme), Sheila Rae Hancock (David Sr.), Brian Keith Russell, Leonard Arthur Russell (Cindy), Glen Edward Russell (Missy), and Andrew Thomas Russell, Sr.

Ada was the loving mother of Mary Elizabeth Wathen Strine (Jimmy), Walter Fidelis Russell, Jr., (Betty), Joseph Leroy Russell, John Wayne Russell, Sr. (Tracey), Catherine Russell Humphries, James Alvin Russell, Sr., Gail Marie Shelley, Kevin Paul Russell (Meme), Sheila Rae Hancock (David Sr.), Brian Keith Russell, Leonard Arthur Russell (Cindy), Glen Edward Russell (Missy), and Andrew Thomas Russell, Sr.

(Nancy). She has 25 grandchildren, 42 great-grandchildren (and one on the way) and four great-great grandchildren.

Ada is preceded in death by her parents, husband, a stillborn daughter (1967), son Kevin Russell, siblings Mary Tennyson, Francis Abell, Joe Thompson, and Nathaniel Thompson, grandchildren Dylan, Austin, Aiden, and Leah Russell; sons-in-law Francis Wathen and David Shelley, and daughter-in-law Brenda Russell.

Affectionately known as "Momma" to many, Ada was a loving wife, mother, grandmother, aunt, and friend. She was a farmer's wife and spent her time being a homemaker for her large family. She cooked many delicious meals, harvested large gardens, and canned hundreds of jars of delicacies to feed her family. Ada made sure everyone was fed well and she was well known for her homemade biscuits. No matter who walked through her door, she would always say, "won't you have a bite to eat?" Those who shared a love of chocolate with Momma knew where to find the candy jar on the kitchen counter. Ada loved sewing and quilting and was a 30-year member of the Pax River Quilters' Guild. Many family members have quilts adorning their beds that Ada spent many hours making. She loved rocking all the new babies in the family and sending them home with one of her beautiful quilts. Ada volunteered her free time over the years with many different charities and organizations. Some of those included the Ripple Center, St. Joseph Catholic Church, Birthright of St. Mary's, St. Mary's County public school system, and Hospice of St. Mary's. Ada was a avid reader and always had a good book lying nearby. She enjoyed her Pitch card parties with the ladies. Ada was a devout Catholic and was dedicated to her faith. She prayed the Rosary daily. Ada always made everyone feel welcome. Even as her health was declining, she was still so gracious, kind, and humble. She was concerned about others more so than herself. The matriarch of our family has now gone to be with her Lord to rest, and her chair at the table is now empty. We will miss her tender words of encouragement and her bright laughter. We will always remember her sense of humor and her warm and welcoming heart.

Chesterton Academy Takes Students Back to Basics to Move Forward

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Operating now for its second year, The Chesterton Academy in Mechanicsville has found its home at the Immaculate Conception Church on Old Village Road; its mission is to provide a classical education to students in the Catholic tradition.

The academy emphasizes the old ways of learning; teaching debate, oratory, Latin and with an emphasis on the classical texts of Western civilization along with Catholic theology.

At Chesterton — named for a famous English Catholic philosopher, writer and Christian apologist — there are no computers available for students to do their coursework throughout the school day.

The students — all 35 of them — can bring cell phones to school but must place them in a drop box called the “phone farm” and can pick them up at the end of the day.

The school’s headmaster, Andrew Pudysz, said the philosophy at the academy is that such personal electronic devices are too much of a distraction from learning.

By having students use books and pencils, pens and paper to do their work, Pudysz said, they are more fully engaged in the learning process and must rely on their own abilities to think and reason to expand not just their knowledge base but their understanding.

The academy eschews dependence on electronic technology, he said.

It is, perhaps, the most salient difference between Chesterton Academy and other institutions of learning in St. Mary’s County.

The divergence from technology also meant there was no virtual schooling there during the pandemic.

“We have done no virtual schooling,” Pudysz said. “We made it a point not to do that.”

“We don’t use technology; we use books.”

Pudysz was adamant that the latest technology, including tablets and cell phones in the hands of students, had no place at Chesterton Academy of St.

Mary’s.

“We will never have tech as an everyday part of the educational experience,” Pudysz said. “It’s old school paper and pencil.”

While there are several parochial schools in St. Mary’s, Chesterton Academy is the only one teaching a classical curriculum.

“Classical education is about helping students think critically and to be able to engage in dialogue,” Pudysz said “We’re helping each other come to an understanding of the truth.”

There is heavy emphasis on philosophy, theology, literature, the fine arts, foreign language, history as well as mathematics and science.

Students are also encouraged to take part in plays and other performance projects to broaden their academic horizons.

While the student body at Chesterton is small the number of teachers is comparatively high at 10, this often makes for what most teachers in a public high school would call very small class sizes.

The maximum class size at Chesterton is usually between 12 and 13 students.

Aurora Quick, a freshmen living in Mechanicsville, likes it that way.

“I like that it’s small,” she said of her high school experience thus far. “You can get to know your teachers better.”

At Chesterton, Quick said, she is “at peace and can learn.”

She doesn’t seem to mind the divergence from technology having such a foothold in the classroom.

“I like how we have books,” Quick said. “I can actually see what I’m learning.”

Life at Chesterton is modeled after an English boarding school, with students divided up into houses where older and younger classes of students all work together to continue their learning journey with the elder helping to guide the younger.

While they don’t live together at Chesterton Academy, the students are encouraged to form family-like bonds.

The system of houses is not entirely well known in America but has been more familiarized by the Harry Potter novels in which young mages are in houses such as Slytherin and Hufflepuff while at Hogwarts.

CHESTERTON ACADEMY OF ST. MARY’S

Quick is part of Augustin House; the three others named for Catholic saints are Ambrose, Athanasius, and Chrysostom.

These houses also introduce the ideal of community service to students, engaging them in projects to benefit others outside their school.

Quick has helped put together “Boxes of Joy” of important items for young children in need as well as collecting food for local pantries, she said.

It has helped her realize the importance of the work being done at her school beyond the academic.

“I wouldn’t have thought about doing it on my own,” Quick said of her community service with her house.

The teachers at Chesterton are also working to build a home for those seeking to provide a classical education as well as those seeking it.

After years of working at retail jobs that “never really satisfied,” David Brunk got his teaching certificate in 2015 and after teaching in several different public and private schools found his way to Chesterton Academy.

He said he had been following the progress of the system of Chesterton academies around the country and was impressed with their curriculum and vision for education.

“I’m living the dream right now,” Brunk said, noting he had always wanted to teach at the high school level. “I jumped at the chance.”

Brunk teaches Latin, history and theology at Chesterton.

“This is something I’ve always wanted to teach.”

Pudysz said that by embracing antiquity in the curriculum at Chesterton Academy they hope to prepare their students to better deal with a modern world.

“We want to teach them life skills they’ll use until the day they die,” Pudysz said. “We teach them to think, to reason and to converse — we challenge our kids.”

But the mission of the school is also about training young people to build civil communities in a world full of strife.

“We want to reclaim what was lost,” Pudysz said.

No Christmas Display At Flat Iron Farm

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

One of the most iconic local Christmas celebrations in St. Mary’s County, the light and exhibit displays on Flat Iron Farm, will not be held this year, according to Joseph “Bubby” Knott, owner of the equine farm where the holiday display has drawn throngs of visitors for close to 50 years.

In a brief interview, Knott, who also owns the local construction contracting business The Trading Post, gave just one answer about not putting on the display this year.

“I got old,” Knott told The County Times.

Knott’s answer seems to suggest that there may be no more of the iconic displays county residents have come to expect over the years.

The display was cancelled in 2020 during the height of the COVID-19 pandemic and last year the event, which has perennially included a path on which visitors can drive their vehicles through and around the property to see all of the holiday displays, was downsized.

School System Moving To On-Line Ticket Purchasing

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Local school sports fans and school performance attendees will soon have the ability to more conveniently pay for admission to those events now that the St. Mary's County Board of Education has voted to approve the move to on-line ticket purchasing.

"We are looking to go live with this in our winter season," said Michael Watson Director of Facility Coordination, Physical Education and Athletics to members of the board at their Nov. 9 meeting.

The vendor of the on-line ticketing is GoFan, he said, and the contract was set to go through to September of next year with the option to renew the contract with the vendor each year.

The on-line application, which can be accessed through a customer's cell phone, allows for management and marketing of the event by the promoter as well as collection of ticket revenue.

The application can be used by school systems for performing arts events, proms, banquets and graduations as well as sporting events.

Under the terms of the agreement, Watson said, the school system can keep 100 percent of the ticket price with a convenience fee the attendee pays when they use the application.

The application also allows school systems to analyze the success of certain events from how well it is attended to success of ticket sales in real time.

According to Watson's presentation brought before the board customers of GoFan can claim their tickets either at the vendor's website or through a mobile application on their phone — the tickets to not have QR codes or barcodes to scan.

When the customers arrive at the event they can select the tickets they want to validate and select the "redeem" prompt while they are at the ticket gate.

A customer's tickets can be validated by either using their e-mail accounts or accessing a GoFan account, Watson said.

The GoFan system is already used for Southern Maryland Athletic Conference (SMAC) and Maryland Public Secondary Schools Athletic Association (MPSSAA) games; the local school system will continue to accept cash for admission fees until the new system has been put into place, Watson said.

The GoFan convenience fee is built into the local school system's $6 admission fee.

Town Secures Land For Boardwalk Extension

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Town of Leonardtown was able to secure the rights to a property easement in the area of the boardwalk at the town wharf last week that would allow for the eventual extension of that boardwalk for a future development project.

The town council voted unanimously at their Nov. 14 meeting to approve a deal between a property owner living in the Leonardtown Landing subdivision and the town.

The easement property, owned by John Deatruck, now retired as chief of the county's public works department, was the only one not controlled by the town when it took possession of the riparian rights of the subdivision in 2010 when it purchased them from then-owner RAR Associates, developers of the project.

The final portion of the easement is necessary to carry out a key aspect of the town's plans to further develop and expand the waterfront.

"Because he is a good neighbor of the town he approached us because he was involved in the Mahan/Rykel Waterfront plan," Town Administrator Laschelle McKay told the town council. "He knew we would need to extend the boardwalk."

McKay said the town set about working with attorney Joseph Densford to work out an easement agreement that would allow the current or a future owner to build a permitted structure that could intersect with the town's boardwalk if they desired.

The focus of the town's boardwalk project is to be able to connect it to the Bay Greenway Network in the town's plan; the town has dedicated much of its planning to increasing walkable paths in and around its communities.

Deatruck offered the portion of the easement to the town and no cost.

Private Airstrip Approved in Piney Point

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

A piece of land in the rural preservation district (RPD) in Piney Point will be the new home of a private airstrip after the county's Board of Appeals unanimously approved it at a Nov. 10 meeting.

The airstrip would not be one of asphalt but of grass and would be in the most restrictive portion of the RPD known as the resource conservation area (RCA).

The roughly 20-acre property, owned by Kyle and Jill Matthew, would use agricultural fields for the airstrip, according to county planning documents.

The use is allowed within the county's comprehensive zoning ordinance and area in question, but requires a conditional use approval before the project can be completed.

The applicant proposed a 25-foot-wide airstrip at a length of 1,100 feet, planning documents stated, and would be located on Peninsula's Court overlooking St. George Creek.

The original plans for the airstrip called for a 200-foot width but that was reduced to the much smaller width due to tests revealing incompatible soils as well as the wider width running afoul of wetland buffer restrictions, according to planning documents.

Kyle Matthew, a retired U.S. Navy pilot of 22 years, told the board that he still works as a test pilot for the Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division.

The nearest structure to the airstrip would be his family's home — by a little more than 450 feet.

The other two closest properties are about 1,700 and 2,600 feet away from the airstrip, Matthew said.

The airstrip would be in the outer reaches of the airspace of Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Matthew said, and he was in the process of obtaining the permission from base command necessary for him to operate from the airstrip.

"I'm not going to be flying over anyone's houses or anywhere close to anyone's houses," Matthew said about staying to strict flight plans.

According to documents he presented before the appeals board, Matthew's would be the ninth private airstrip in the area running south from Leonardtown to Ridge.

The aircraft Matthew said he would use was a Carbon Cub, a lightweight, single engine, propeller-driven plane.
