St. Mary's Leads SOMD in Student Arrests

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The latest data from the Maryland State Department of Education shows that St. Mary's County has the second highest number of students arrested in the state with 175 students charged for the 2022 to 2023 school year.

The county with the highest number of students arrested was Wicomico with 204.

St. Mary's leads Southern Maryland in student arrests, too, though Calvert County arrested almost as many students with 168 charged.

By contrast, Charles County arrested just 61 students for the 2022 to 2023 school year, the state's data showed.

The state's largest school systems — in Montgomery and Prince Georges' counties — each arrested only 56 students, while Baltimore City schools arrested only 26 students.

School-related arrests refer to an arrest of a student for any activity conducted on school grounds, during off-campus school activities, including while taking school transportation, or due to a referral by any school official, the state reported.

Locally the highest numbers of arrests occurred at Great Mills High School with 58, with the second highest at Leonardtown High School with 36. Chopticon High School had 30 arrests of students.

There were no arrests of elementary level students but the remainder of arrests took place in the middle schools: there were 12 arrests at Spring Ridge, eight at Leonardtown, 25 at Margaret Brent and six at Esperanza middle schools.

In all there were 124 high school student arrests and 51 arrests between middle schools.

The gender split on arrests was almost two-to-one with 112 males arrested to 63 females, the state's data showed.

Black or African-American students made up the majority of arrests by far with 92, while white students accounted for 49 arrests.

Hispanics accounted for just 11 arrests and only one Asian was arrested, the state reported.

Freshmen in high school had 56 arrests, while there were 43 sophomore-level arrests; eighth graders accounted for 41 arrests, according to the report.

There were just 21 arrests in the junior level and only three at the senior level.

There were 11 seventh graders arrested, the report showed.

All but one of the 175 arrests resulted in an out-of-school suspension, the data showed.

All of the arrests were physical ones, the data showed, and not from a paper generated complaint.

The vast majority of the suspensions were the result of either fighting or attacking another student.

There were 65 arrests for fighting, the data showed, and 51 for attacking a student; there were also 19 arrests for assaulting a teacher.

Local law officers said that the numbers showed that they and the school system were dedicated to enforcing the law in schools, though arrests did not always turn out to be a situation in which a student was handcuffed.

Many times a student could be written up with a criminal referral that was sent to the state's Department of Juvenile Services, which Capt. Richard Russell called "a clearing house" for juvenile justice matters.

"We're committed to policing the schools but the Board of Education is also committed to us [the sheriff's office]," Russell told The County Times. "Our numbers are more consistent than some of the other school districts."

Russell said that while the numbers may appear to show that there are greater student behavior problems in smaller school districts, it seemed unlikely that only 56 students would receive an arrest or referral to DJS in either Prince George's or Montgomery counties, which have vastly larger school systems.

For instance, there are a little more than 113,000 students in Prince George's County schools, while Montgomery County has just over 160,000 students.

Both school districts have more students than the entire population of St. Mary's County.

Russell said it appeared St. Mary's County was stricter in enforcing the law in schools than some other jurisdictions.

"There does seem to be a disconnect [in the arrest numbers] that needs further scrutiny by the state," Russell said.

Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith said an extensive memorandum of understanding [MOU] between the school system and the sheriff's office requires the school system to inform the sheriff's office immediately if there is a report of a crime in a school.

"[St. Mary's schools] enrollment was 17,493, so this represents 1 percent of our student population," Smith said of the number of arrests. "Of the 175 reported arrests, 165 students were returned to school, one student was transferred, and nine were placed in juvenile placement or detention."

Demolition Underway at Tulagi Place

Demolition of the vacant firehouse on South Coral Drive

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The old fire house that housed the Bay District Volunteer Fire Department in the heart of Lexington Park is no more.

It was torn down June 4 to make way for redevelopment of the property to allow for a Royal Farms convenience store and fueling center.

The Bay District volunteers issued a statement on the fate of their long-vacant station.

“This station has been a cornerstone of our community, witnessing countless acts of bravery, service, and camaraderie,” the statement reads. “As we say goodbye to this beloved building, we reflect on the countless memories and the dedication of all the firefighters who called it their second home.”

The volunteers now operate out of two stations, one located near to the old site on Shangri-La Drive and the other on FDR Boulevard at the intersection with Chancellors Run Road.

Del. Todd Morgan (R-Dist. 29C) lamented the loss of the old, iconic building but said that progress moved ever onward.

“The old fire house is monumental in the history of Lexington Park,” Morgan told The County Times. “But they outgrew their facility.”

Apparatus only grew bigger as the years went on, Morgan said, and the number of volunteers grew, as well as did the needs of their first due area.

“It’s sad to see it go but it’s progress and the redevelopment of Lexington Park,” said Morgan.

When the concept site plan for the Royal Farms store first came to public attention, it faced serious backlash from the public over concerns that historic buildings would be destroyed to make way for another gas station on Route 235 that would only serve to make an already troubled intersection congested with even more traffic.

Morgan was not sure what the impact of the new Royal Farms would be, sitting directly across from Gate 2 of Patuxent River Naval Air Station.

“The jury is out,” Morgan said. “But something had to be done at that corner.

“That property has been on the market... for as long as I can remember.”

Commissioners Briefed on Avian Flu

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The infectious disease known as H5N1, or more commonly referred to as the avian flu, is a rising public health problem, said County Health Officer Dr. Meena Brewster this week.

But the avian flu has the ability to infect mammalian species, Brewster said, including humans, which could have an adverse effect on the significant agricultural operations here in St. Mary's County.

There are nine states that have reported bovine dairy herds that have been infected with the avian flu, Brewster said, though that has yet to be reported in Maryland.

The closest states with infected dairy herds are Ohio and North Carolina.

"It's largely an infection that impacts wild birds, particularly water birds," Brewster said during the June 4 meeting of the Commissioners of St. Mary's County. "And it has also for many times infected commercial poultry and backyard flocks such as backyard chickens."

Brewster said the health department was concerned with the disease because of its potential to infect humans.

"We're trying to prevent it becoming a larger issue affecting people," Brewster said.

There are currently just four people infected with the avian flu in the United States, Brewster said.

"There are no cases in Maryland," Brewster said, noting there were always caveats. "We always assume there's some level of infection we're not aware of."

Those most at risk of contracting the disease are people exposed to infected, or possibly infected, poultry or dairy herds, Brewster said.

There are roughly 25 dairy herds in St. Mary's, she said, with between 30 to 40 cattle each.

In birds, the disease is highly contagious, Brewster said, and often leads to severe illness and even death.

The symptoms tend to be less severe in mammals and humans, she said, but the potential for severe illness and fatality are still present.

Commissioner Eric Colvin said he maintains a flock of backyard chickens and that anyone who does so "should practice good biosecurity."

"This is real," Colvin said. "No one wants to put down their whole flock of birds."

Conjunctivitis, or reddening and tearing of the eyes, is a prominent symptom of the disease, Brewster said.

Milk from infected cows can still be safely had, she said, once it is pasteurized as the process kills viruses such as H5N1. Commercial meat from infected animals should also be cooked properly to internal temperatures that ensure the virus is also killed off, Brewster said.

"That meat is not getting into the commercial food supply," Brewster noted, saying that monitoring for infected animals is now elevated to ensure it does not enter the food supply chain.

Consumption of raw milk and cheeses, those which are not pasteurized, present the highest risk of exposure, Brewster said.

Town Seeks to Annex Properties

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Town of Leonardtown is set to annex land near the intersection of Route 5 and St. Andrews Church Road and three other, smaller parcels bordering the Cedar Lane Senior Living Community into the town limits.

The property at the Route 5 intersection is 19.51 acres in size and is the subject of a petition from owners Alfred and Joan Mattingly to have the town annex their land.

According to a letter of support for the annexation from the Commissioners of St. Mary's County, the town is looking to use the large parcel to zone it for institutional office use [I-O zoning] from its current designation for residential low density.

"The town... states there are no definite proposals for the future use of this property at this time but notes the large property bordering it to the east is currently slated for development of a memory care facility and that the property owners believe a further 'medical type facility' could be a 'good fit for the area,'" the commissioner letter states. "[The town] also notes the Leonardtown Volunteer Fire Department has "shown an interest" in the property for relocation of its current facilities. Such uses appear to be generally allowed in an R-L district as either limited or conditional uses."

The three smaller parcels the town seeks to annex into its limits came from another petition, this time from the Cedar Lane Senior Living Community III, Inc.

"[The town stated] Cedar Lane purchased the parcels for the purpose of expanding their current facilities to meet demand and the annexation plan specifies the parcels will be developed to allow a new four-story, age-restricted living facility consisting of seventy (70) new units," according to the county documents. "This use would appear to be allowed under R-L zoning as a conditional use."

Town Administrator Laschelle McKay said the annexation of the Cedar Lane properties was necessary for proper servicing of the new construction.

"In order to have water and sewer they need to come into the town," she said of the new parcels. "It just makes sense."

Lions Club Crab Fest This Saturday

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Leonardtown Lions' Club will hold its 38th annual Crab Festival June 8 at the county fairgrounds in Leonardtown.

The event is the central fundraiser for Leonardtown Lions Club each year and attendees can expect to find plenty of steamed hard crabs, crab soups, crab cakes and other seafood dishes for purchase.

Also, on hand at the event will be items made by local crafters, many of them made in the theme of the Maryland Blue Crab, as well as local music and entertainment artists.

The annual event also hosts a classic car show and features inflatable play areas for children, according to the Leonardtown Lions Club.

The main attraction of the event, though, will be the annual crab picking contest and crab races.

George Kirby, public relations manager for the Lions Club, said several past competitors said this year will feature a new musical act, The Reagan Years, as well as an increase in ticket prices from $7 to $10 for entry.

Cash rewards and medals will be given to top performers in the crab picking competition, Kirby said.

The Leonardtown Lions Club is a service organization that raises funds to provide vision and hearing screenings for the needy. They also help provide glasses and hearing aids for those with declining senses.

"We're making the commitment to the community that we're about being where the need is," Kirby said.

Commissioner Warns on State Credit Downgrade

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Last week one of three major bond rating agencies issued a negative outlook on the state's fiscal health, leading Commissioner Mike Hewitt to say the county should be watchful of how the state's economy behaves.

"Moody's downgraded Maryland's bonds to negative," Hewitt said at the June 4 business meeting of the Commissioners of St. Mary's County. "They [the state] still has a triple A bond rating but they [Moody's] said what's going on... is they are concerned about the structural deficits that are being built in by the new governor [Wes Moore.]"

Moore has claimed that the state's fiscal outlook was already on the decline before he took office, while former governor Larry Hogan, who is seeking a U.S. Senate seat, has fired back saying his administration left a $5 billion surplus.

"Obviously we want to keep an eye on our bond ratings because that affects our borrowing rates," Hewitt said. "But these are big decisions and to see Maryland go to a negative bond rating... is concerning to me."

The statement from Moody's reads: "The negative outlook incorporates difficulties Maryland will face to achieve balanced financial operations in coming years without sacrificing service delivery goals or adding to the weight of the state government's burden on individual and corporate taxpayers."

The ratings agency stated that Maryland's Blueprint for Education reform package was a cause of concern because of its sheer cost.

U.S. Rep. Andy Harris, who represents Maryland's 1st Congressional District, said the downgrade was a serious warning.

"For the first time since 2011, Moody's downgraded Maryland's fiscal outlook from stable to negative because of our state's out-of-control spending, tax increases, and record deficits," Harris said in a social media post. "This is a sobering outlook and it's time for Maryland to get its fiscal house in order."

Pegg Road Sidewalk Improvements Coming

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County this week approved the use of nearly a quarter-million dollars in federal funding for sidewalk improvements for pedestrian use along Pegg Road in Lexington Park.

Gary Whipple, deputy director of the Department of Public Works and Transportation, told commissioners that the federal funds were administered by the State Highway Administration.

The commissioners sought the funding back in 2022 as a congressional earmark, or targeted spending appropriation.

"This project will provide a safe sidewalk system for pedestrians traveling along Pegg Road," Whipple said. "It's actually already fully funded in the Capital Improvement Budget."

The total cost of the project is estimated at $300,000, according to county documents, with the federal funds to account for 80 percent of the project with the county paying for 20 percent.

The scope of the project runs along Pegg

Road from its intersection with Route 235 down to Ronald Drive, Whipple said.

"So that's our first phase," Whipple said, noting that the county's planning for the project must be submitted to the state by May of 2026. "We've already cleared the environmental work."

The second phase of the project will go from the Jarboesville Bridge to the Westbury community.

Whipple told commissioners that the public works department has already made good progress on preparing to begin the project, with the plans already submitted in April.

"We're already well ahead of the game on getting the plans approved," Whipple said.

Whipple responded to Commissioner Eric Colvin's question about the possibility of speeding up the project ahead of federal requirements in the affirmative.

"It's on our schedule," Whipple told Colvin. "So, yes."

Man Charged with Arson After Setting Hotel Room on Fire

A Leonardtown man was arrested after setting a hotel room on fire yesterday evening, displacing 46 guests and causing three-quarters of a million dollars in damage.

Just after 8:00 p.m. on June 3, 2024, St. Mary's Sheriff's Office responded to the Super Eight Motel at 22801 Three Notch Road in California for a reported disturbance. An employee called 911 and reported the occupants of room 310 were arguing and causing a disturbance. They also reported they had broken the windows and barricaded the door.

Deputies arrived within minutes and observed Anthony Cleaver Mason, 64, inside the room attempting to start a fire. Deputies activated the fire alarm and began evacuating the motel while requesting the fire department.

Forty-eight firefighters from various departments, including Bay District, Hollywood, NAS Patuxent River, Leonardtown, Ridge, Valley Lee, and Solomons, responded and discovered fire showing, along with multiple people injured after jumping from the third floor.

One adult female and her child were assisted out of the hotel, where the female then suffered a medical emergency. She was transported to an area hospital. The child was evaluated and released into family custody.

Anthony Cleaver Mason

Deputies placed Mason into custody on the scene, and the Office of the State Fire Marshal was requested to investigate. Deputy State Fire Marshals concluded Mason was responsible and that the fire caused an estimated $750,000 in damages.

Mason was charged with two counts of second-degree arson, reckless endangerment, and malicious burning first-degree.

He is currently being held at the St. Mary's County Detention Center without bond.

St. Mary's Man Sentenced on Child Pornography Charges

Nathan S. Lindgren, 28, of Lexington Park, was sentenced on May 24, 2024, to 12 years in prison for possession and distribution of child pornography. The sentence was imposed by Calvert County Circuit Court Judge Mark S. Chandlee.

On March 9, 2021, the Maryland State Police Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) task force received a cyber tip from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) that someone was distributing child exploitation material. Investigation led police to Lindgren.

Search warrants were obtained for Lindgren's person, vehicle, and residence. Upon execution of these warrants, police recovered Lindgren's cell phone which contained multiple images of child pornography. Lindgren admitted that he used the cell phone to distribute these images.

Upon release from prison, Lindgren will be on 5 years of supervised probation. He will also be required to register as a sex offender.

Nathan Lindgren

This case was prosecuted by Senior Assistant State's Attorney Rebecca N. Cordero.

2023 Aquaculture Leases Produce Record Oyster Yield

Maryland's growing shellfish aquaculture operations harvested a record 94,286 bushels of oysters in 2023, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources reported.

"Though the shellfish aquaculture harvest is small in comparison to the public fishery, it is growing steadily and the farmer's product is available throughout the year," said Brian R. Callam, Ph.D., director of DNR's Aquaculture and Industry Enhancement Division.

In Maryland, shellfish farming businesses can hold submerged land leases (growing shellfish directly on the seafloor) and/or water column leases (growing shellfish in cages or other containers in the water). Maryland currently leases 7,478 acres of state waters to 466 commercial shellfish operations. Of that total, 6,964.32 acres is for submerged land leases and 514.16 acres of water column leases.

In 2023, submerged land leases yielded 66.6 percent of the harvest, and water column leases accounted for 33.4% of the total 2023 harvest.

The state's farmed oyster harvest total for 2023 surpassed the 2022 total of 94,257 bushels. By comparison, the state's public oyster fishery by comparison harvested 548,558 bushels during its 2021-2022 season and 722,850 bushels in the 2022-2023 season.

The estimated economic impact of Maryland's shellfish aquaculture is more than $13 million per year. Anyone interested in learning more should visit the program's website.

$5M Grant Awarded to Continue Operations at the Health Hub

The St. Mary's County Health Department (SMCHD) has been awarded $5 million in grant funding through the Maryland Community Health Resources Commission (CHRC) Health Equity Resource Communities (HERC) program, which aims to reduce health disparities and improve health outcomes in underserved communities. Funding will be spread out over five years to help sustain operations at the St. Mary's County Health Hub, including behavioral health walk-in crisis services and a variety of programs to promote health and wellness for St. Mary's County community members.

SMCHD is one of eleven grant awardees in the state; CHRC received 59 eligible applications. The new HERC funding builds upon the success of prior grant funding SMCHD had received from CHRC, and is made available under the Maryland Health Equity Resource Act approved by the Maryland General Assembly in 2021.

The Health Hub currently offers walk-in evaluations of mental health and addiction, crisis counseling, primary care medical services, and many additional community services that address the non-medical parts of people's lives affecting their health. The Health Hub team also helps people connect to health and wellness services in the community that they may need.

"This new HERC grant is critical to continuing services at the Health Hub. While our prior grant funding was ending we were able to demonstrate the incredible value of what the Health Hub team does for our community," said Dr. Meena Brewster, St. Mary's County Health Officer. "The Health Hub is a collaboration of our whole agency team and many community partners. It improves access to health care, is a major resource for a person in crisis, and helps people succeed in both health and overall wellness. We are so grateful for this support from CHRC to continue serving our St. Mary's County community members."

Wanderings of an Aimless Mind by Shelby Oppermann

Wish I Didn't Know Now What I Didn't Know Then

As Bob Seger sang in his 1980 song Against the Wind, “Wish I didn’t know now what I didn’t know then” I tend to think more of all the music stars and groups of the 60s and 70s who I always thought loved working with each other and enjoyed playing their music on stage (the old Pollyanna, as my husband calls it, coming out again). Of course, Seger was singing, at least in the beginning of the song, about a girl named Janey whom he said was the queen of his nights. And Janey, in turn, promised that their relationship or love would never end, but of course it did, and in the song they each moved on in life.

It seems that as all the musicians have gotten older it always comes out either by book or in tv interviews how they didn’t get along with their fellow band members. I remember how I was a bit disappointed to read Micky Dolenz of The Monkees’s autobiography called: “I’m a Believer: My Life of Monkees, Music, and Madness” which came out in 2004. It wasn’t that they didn’t get along, it was more that my clean cut illusions had been shattered a bit. Probably just my 7 year old illusions really.

I guess I have been thinking about this a lot lately because of the publicity with Hall and Oates and their musical break up. I wish I didn’t know about this, and I don’t want to think about it when I listen to the amazing body of work they have created. I said to my husband that I am so glad we were able to see them play together a few years ago. The same goes for Journey who we saw in concert last year with Toto. I had heard over the years about bad feelings when Steve Perry left Journey and there might be some recent troubles, but when I found out that two of the members actually hated each other, were in litigation, and wouldn’t speak at all not long before we saw them it did put a damper on the concert experience for me.

We just saw Heart last month and I was so glad that Ann and Nancy Wilson had reunited the band for their 50th anniversary tour. I’m sure that sisters can have issues whether they are in a band or not. But it made my heart glad to see Heart together again. You can see that in our photo.

When I saw the documentary about the Eagles, especially the part where Glenn Frey and Randy Meisner got in a physical fight after a concert because of the song “Take it to the Limit” that really hurt. Meisner said later, “I was always kind of shy... They wanted me to stand in the middle of the stage to sing ‘Take It to the Limit,’ but I liked to be out of the spotlight. One night in Knoxville, I stayed up late and got the flu. We did two or three encores, and Glenn wanted another one. I told them I couldn’t do it, and we got into a spat. That was the end... I really felt like I was a member of the group, not a part of it. The whole thing started to end when we started taking separate limos.”

On the other hand, it is wonderful when you hear the members of America for instance go on interviews and say how happy they have been together all these years, and it shows when they are in concert too. So, I am debating whether to listen to a favorite America song after writing or whether to stay in the mood of the column and listen to Against the Wind. I think I’ll do both and pretend I know nothing I don’t want to know.

FINANCIAL FOCUS®

Financial tips for widows and widowers

Losing a spouse is one of the most painful experiences anyone can have. Unfortunately, widows and widowers have to deal with more than just the emotional trauma — they also must consider a range of financial issues. If you’ve recently been widowed, what financial moves should you consider?

For starters, don’t rush into any major decisions. If you’re still in the grieving process, you are unlikely to be in the best shape to make significant choices affecting your finances and your life.

But once you feel ready to look at your situation objectively and make appropriate choices, consider the following steps:

- Review your finances. Look at your entire financial picture — your assets, investments, debts and income. If you and your spouse had communicated well about your finances, and you shared decisions, you hopefully won’t encounter any big surprises. But if your spouse was the partner who mostly handled financial matters, you may need to get up to speed quickly on what you have and what you owe. And if your spouse had provided a large amount of your household income, you will also need to determine what changes you may need to make to your lifestyle.
- Address insurance issues. If you will receive a death benefit from your spouse’s insurance policy, what will you do with the money? It may prove helpful in funding your own retirement or meeting other financial goals. But you’ll also want to be clear about what other beneficiaries, such as your children, might receive. And while you’re looking at insurance, you also might want to look at your own policies — do you need to change beneficiaries?
- Review your Social Security options. If you are at least 60 and you were married at least nine months, you may be entitled to Social Security survivor benefits. (If you remarry before age 60, you typically cannot receive survivor benefits, but you can reinstate them if this subsequent marriage ends.) The amount of your survivor’s benefits depends on your age and the age of your deceased spouse. You can’t claim your deceased spouse’s benefits along with your own retirement benefits, so if you qualify for survivor and retirement benefits, you’ll receive the larger amount. Depending on your situation, you might come out ahead by delaying your retirement benefits, giving them the chance to grow, while you accept survivor benefits. For more details on receiving Social Security benefits, visit the Social Security Administration’s website at www.ssa.gov.
- Review your estate plans. The death of a spouse can certainly affect your family’s estate plans. So, it’s a good idea to review these plans to see what changes, if any, need to be made. When conducting this review, you’ll benefit from working with an estate-planning professional.

Finally, keep in mind that you don’t have to go it alone during this difficult time. If you’re already working with a financial professional, they can help. If you aren’t currently working with one, now might be the time to start. By looking at your finances and your family situation holistically, a financial professional can provide guidance that can help ease the stress you are naturally feeling.

Few events are as sad as losing a spouse. But when you feel ready, start taking the steps necessary to continue forward on your life’s journey.

At a recent Calvert County Board of County Commissioners weekly meeting in celebration of Military Appreciation Month, two well-known county officials were caught off guard when the Calvert "Faith and Freedom" Quilts of Valor organization honored them with their own quilt in recognition of their years of service and dedication to our country, our state, and our community.

County Administrator Julian "Mark" Willis and Lieutenant Colonel David Payne, assistant sheriff, were surprised when it was announced there was to be a special ceremony before the large audience that attended the meeting.

Joyce Stinnett Baki, president of the Ladies Auxiliary for the Arick Lore American Legion Post in Lusby, sponsors for this presentation, was invited to the microphone to announce what was about to happen. Most of the audience were there by invitation so it came as no surprise with what was about to take place.

The "Quilts of Valor" is a nationwide group of dedicated volunteers who come together to recognize veterans and active-duty military personnel and award them with special patriotic handmade quilts to show appreciation for their service and sacrifice. This practice came about due to the efforts of Catharine Roberts in 2003. Her son was deployed to Iraq at the time and like all mothers with children serving overseas, she was concerned for his welfare. She was haunted by memories of the poor treatment veterans received upon returning home from Vietnam. She witnessed many service men and women arriving from overseas at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware near where she lived. They often appeared to her as very uncomfortable and unappreciated.

Further, she often watched as flag draped caskets were off loaded from military aircraft to much pomp and circumstance. The idea of wrapping surviving military personnel with a warming quilt came to her in a dream one night and later, with a few friends, started this nationwide effort now known as the Quilts of Valor! Due to her initiatives, the total number of these specially made quilts all hand-sewn completely by volunteers now number 382,765. It is noted these quality quilts are made to very specific instructions and they are "awarded" and not "given" to the recipient.

This ceremony was particularly made special by the fact that both men being recognized are former Marines. Mark Willis served in the Marine Corps for 21 years. He was assigned to many combat units and has served as a drill instructor at Parris Island, South Carolina and as an instructor at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, New York. He was a platoon commander at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina and served as Manpower Manager at the Marine Corps Headquarters. He graduated with honors from the Army War College at Fort Lee, Virginia and the U.S. Army Ranger and Airborne as well as the Army Rigger school.

Willis holds a B.S. degree in Psychology from the University of Florida. He was appointed county administrator in 2020 after serving as the director of Planning & Zoning. He previously served as deputy director for the county Department of Public Works where he oversaw the Solid Waste and Water and Sewer enterprise fund programs, the Highway Maintenance Division and was the county's first Fleet Maintenance and Management Division Chief.

Additionally, he has served as on various community boards including the Calvert County Historical Society, Jefferson Patterson Park and Museum, Relay For Life, and president for his Homeowner's Association. He is a 2014 graduate of Leadership Maryland and a 2021 graduate of the Academy for Excellence in Local Government at the University of Maryland School of Public Policy.

David Payne came out of retirement to serve as Sheriff Ricky Cox's assistant. Payne was involved in county youth programs. In his youth he was an athlete and participated in all high school sports in the small town of Beloit, Wisconsin. His parents instilled in him the need for helping others by their constant efforts in fundraising that taught him the value of helping one another.

Next to his parents, his mentors were his high school coaches who he admired. He worked summer jobs outdoors and soon realized he wanted more than anything to become a US Marine! Following an enjoyable tour of duty, he was offered a position with the Defense Intelligence Agency and was able to find his way to Calvert County. Within a few years he was hired by the Calvert County Sheriff's Office and soon realized his new passion was to work with the youth of the county much as others had worked with him in his early days.

Payne worked the Patrol Division from 1998 to 2002 when he became instructor for new police recruits at the Southern Maryland Criminal Justice Academy and is credited with turning young energetic men and women into sharp, polished police officers. For his efforts, he received the Maryland Police and Corrections Officer Instructor of the Year Award.

Payne advanced rapidly through the police ranks. He coached county youth football teams starting with the Solomons Steelers and even helped coach the Calvert High Varsity Football program. With all this extracurricular activity, he still found time to volunteer his help with the St. Leonard VFD. Finally, as one more example of his love for his community, he raised $30,000 for the Calvert United Way and was crowned the Mardi Gras King in 2015.

The "Faith and Freedom Chapter" for Quilts of Valor was established in Lusby in 2019 with the help of the "Pax Sound of Freedom Chapter" in St. Mary's County. All of their efforts are accomplished by dedicated volunteers. Their time, material, and financial support are all donated, therefore their success can only be attained through the generosity of their donors. For information of how you can help support their efforts or to nominate a future recipient for one of these quilts, contact Dee Wunder at 443-624-5547.

O'Donnell Retires from Public Service Commission

Commissioner Anthony J. O'Donnell, who has been a member of the Maryland Public Service Commission for nearly eight years, has retired as of June 1, 2024.

First appointed to the bench by Governor Larry Hogan in 2016 to fill out the unexpired term of Commissioner Anne Hoskins, Commissioner O'Donnell was reappointed in 2021. The Commission regulates electric and gas utilities, and passenger-for-hire transportation companies.

For 21 years, Commissioner O'Donnell represented the people of Calvert and St. Mary's counties in the Maryland General Assembly's House of Delegates. He held a variety of leadership roles including senior minority member of the Environment and Transportation Committee (2015-16), House Minority Whip (2003-06), and House Minority Leader (2006-13).

Commissioner O'Donnell worked for 15 years at the Calvert Cliffs Nuclear Power Plant in Lusby, Maryland (where he lives), serving in various capacities supporting safe and reliable nuclear power generation. Prior to working at Calvert Cliffs, Commissioner O'Donnell served for over eight years in the United States Navy.

He served as Chair of the Subcommittee on Nuclear Issues-Waste Disposal and as a member of the Committee on Electricity for the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC). In 2021, Commissioner O'Donnell was elected President of the Mid-Atlantic Conference of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (MACRUC).

"The Public Service Commission helps ensure safe, reliable, and economic public utility and transportation service for Marylanders across the state," said Gov. Wes Moore. "We thank Commissioner O'Donnell for his dedicated work in service of the commission's mission and for his years of dedicated service to the state."

"Tony O'Donnell is the best example of a true public servant," said Frederick H. Hoover, Chair of the Public Service Commission. "It has been an honor to serve alongside him on the PSC bench. He could be tough on the regulated companies that came before the Commission, always with an eye towards protecting Maryland utility ratepayers and making sure those companies complied with our laws and regulations. I join Commissioners Michael Richard, Kumar Barve and Bonnie Suchman and all of our PSC colleagues to commend him for his years of dedicated service to our country and the people of Maryland."

"Tony and I have enjoyed a professional relationship that spans a quarter century," said Commissioner Kumar Barve, also a former delegate. "Even when serving in the legislature in adversarial roles, we found opportunities to be allies and collaborators. Through it all we were the best of friends. It has been my pleasure to work with him this past year at the Public Service Commission, where we have had a chance to agree 95% of the time! Congratulations my friend after a long and honorable career of service to the citizens of Maryland."

In a farewell message, Commissioner O'Donnell shared words of praise for the PSC's staff: "Our staff is among the best anywhere and it has been the honor of my career to have worked with you to carry out our mission. Safe and reliable utility service is vital to the well-being of our state and my colleagues have been exemplary in their commitment on behalf of the people of Maryland. I'm so proud of all we have accomplished together. As we say in the Navy, I wish you fair winds and following seas."

Broadband Rollout Hits Roadblock at Homestretch

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert County's goal of providing 100 percent coverage for homes desiring broadband service has hit a stumbling block as the process reaches the homestretch.

Special Projects Program Manager Ashley Staples-Reid told the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) on June 4 that service to 123 homes had been waylaid because the cable provider Comcast has been unable to secure right-of-way agreements with neighboring property owners in order to reach the homes desiring service.

As background Staples-Reid said, "In August 2021, the BOCC temporality removed the customer contribution requirement between the customer and Comcast to any residence in Calvert County beyond the 300-foot requirement, outlined by the 2018 Comcast Franchise Agreement. Staff have since worked with Comcast to determine the homes that are in need of connection in an effort to achieve the BOCC's buildout initiative."

So far funding for the project has been with state and federal grants and the cable franchise fee, with Comcast kicking in a percentage. The county had hoped to have the build-out completed by the end of 2023. So far $6.6 million in grants has been received or earmarked.

So far more than 700 homes have been connected, including 390 in the last phase completed last year.

The board in the past had made the decision for the cable to be underground.

"It is the easement issues that we're having," she said, adding "The majority of the remaining properties are identified as needing easements to complete the build. It's causing setbacks in predicted timelines. And it's actually encumbering costs, not necessarily for us; it is encumbering costs for Comcast."

She said, "So once they [Comcast] have done a design, they identify if an easement is needed, either from a neighboring property, multiple neighboring properties, or from the homeowner themselves."

Whether it's above or below ground, easements are required. Comcast's contractors sent out requests for easements to the property owners involved on three occasions, and for the bulk of the properties having issues, there was no response.

Some of the properties may be vacant with out-of-town owners. But there also may be issues between neighbors that may be getting in the way of a resolution.

She said, "So, of those over 123 homes that we have, a lot of them are due to easement issues for why they haven't been completed yet. So, one denied easement can affect a whole project because mind you, it's not always just the homeowner that needs to sign an easement. It could be their neighbors; it could be multiple neighbors."

At Staples-Reid's suggestion, the commissioners decided to give it one official last try to get easement agreements. They will send out once again up to three attempts to get a response. But absent that, those homeowners affected may not be able to get the service they desire.

The cutoff to apply for the free connection has come and gone and a half dozen have come forward since that cutoff date. But later in the meeting the commissioners accepted a $2.2 million grant from the state that requires the county to open up the process again.

So, anyone desiring service who hasn't contacted the county previously can do so by July 5 to be added to the list for service.

Calvert has been in the forefront in providing broadband service to all who want it, with other counties and state funding hopping on the bandwagon. The concern driving the movement started during the pandemic with people working at home and with virtual learning making internet access a necessity instead of just a nice thing to have.

Architectural Review Committees to Be Shuttered

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) voted at their May 29 meeting to eliminate the architectural review committees that serve the county seven town centers. The elimination will take place with the adoption of the updated zoning ordinance, which is expected later this year.

The committees, known as ARCs, have been plagued with vacancies and thus lack of a quorum which has slowed the development process and has been costly to applicants.

The BOCC was given an update of the situation from Director of Planning and Zoning Mary Beth Cook and Planner III Jessica Gaetano.

Gaetano said, "During the development of the seven town center master plans from 1986-2000, participants identified the need for architectural design standards. Architectural guidelines and the creation of citizen Architectural Review Committees (ARC) were included in each of the town center zoning ordinances. Committees are structured to be composed of five members each.

"The ARC's reviews exterior design features of applicable projects in accordance with the appearance standards and guideline provisions of its respective master plan and zoning ordinance. In 2015, staff was directed to analyze the need for Architectural Review Committees for possible restructuring and/or dissolution. At that time, a previous Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) voted to abolish the ARC's and transfer the architectural review process to staff of the previously named Department of Community Planning and Building, now known as the Department of Planning & Zoning. Staff worked on zoning ordinance amendments through 2017. Ultimately, the zoning ordinance(s) were only amended to add additional meeting dates and an administrative function to the architectural review process due to public feedback.

"The ARCs have been the subject of long-standing concerns regarding operations, review efficiency and structure.

The deficiencies staff continue to observe include the following:

- Lack of quorum at meetings
- Chronically unfilled vacancies on committees
- Reviews and recommendations inconsistent with town center master plans and zoning ordinances
- Significant and increasing amount of staff time needed to manage seven committees
- Results of concerns are significant delays experienced by applicants"

She said, "Most committees are not consistently achieving quorums. We have unfilled vacancies on almost all of the committees and reviews and recommendations received are sometimes inconsistent and impermissible with town center master plan and zoning ordinances. Ultimately, all of those deficiencies result in a significant amount of additional staff time and significant delays experienced unnecessarily by the applicants since November of 2020, which is when I personally became involved in the architectural review processes to April of 2024.

"The total number of projects reviewed by an architectural review committee is 92. While the total number of projects reviewed administratively by staff is 134. Staff has performed about 59 percent of the reviews while the architectural review committees have performed 41 percent."

Commissioner President Buddy Hance observed, "In most cases, the ARC is just enforcing the guidelines that are already in the town master plans and the zoning ordinance."

Gaetano responded, "Ultimately, that's all that they have the authority to do. What they were kind of created to do is to have that back and forth with business owner or a tenant to say, hey, we'd like to see this here. We'd like to see that there, as long as it was within the design criteria, they can have that rapport with somebody. That's not really what is happening as of today."

With the elimination of the ARCs, architectural review will be handled in house by planning and zoning staff.

Property, Income Tax Rates Increased

Demands Made on School Board

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners [BOCC] has adopted a $518.4 million budget for the next fiscal year that includes four cents per assessed $100 property tax rate increase and an income tax increase from three percent to 3.2 percent. The decision came after public hearings at the BOCC June 4 meeting.

Four of the commissioners supported the motion by Commissioner Vice President Catherine Grasso, with Commissioner Mike Hart abstaining, saying he would have preferred using the fund balance to close the budget revenue gap.

The motion by Grasso included a message to the school board, which is facing significant budget challenges because of the state cutting $22.5 million from them.

Grasso motion was: "I move that we close the record and approve and adopt the fiscal year 2025 operating and capital budgets as submitted with a one-percent COLA for county pay scales and a single merit step for eligible employees and adopting and setting the tax rates, fines and fees being effective as reflected in the resolutions presented for each. I further move that we set the Board of Education's budget appropriation within the major categories as our county Director of Finance and Budget deems appropriate at maintenance of effort, including the use of $22,500,000 of its existing fund balance to offset state cuts. And an additional use of $6,500,000 of the Board of Education's existing fund balance matched with an education reserve fund of county appropriations, which will include the Board of Education's fiscal year 2024 unexpended funds in the amount of $3,500,000 to be held by the county in financial reserve for the use of the Board of Education in Fiscal Year 2025, upon the following conditions:

"One, honoring the negotiated contracts with the Calvert Education Association and the Calvert Association of Educational Support Staff,

"Two, adopts a three percent cut across the board with no reduction in workforce,

Commissioner Vice President Catherine Grasso

layoffs, or similar actions without the consent of the Board of County Commissioners,

"Three, continued discussions among staff leadership regarding budgetary matters with detailed information and access reasonably requested by the county's leadership team.

"Four, no new renewal or extension of existing employment or personnel service contracts or similar until the Board of Education seats subject to election this year are elected and sworn in."

Only three people spoke at the two public hearings on the tax increases. Joseph Cornier spoke at both, and the serial commenter suggested that the commissioners were exceeding their authority over the school board in imposing those conditions. He also wondered how the school system was going to absorb the cuts without cutting staff.

Director of Finance and Budget Bruce Miller outlined some of the highlights of the budget from its earlier two iterations:

"Changes in revenues were real estate tax increase of $5,945,504. income tax increase at $3.6 million, water and sewer loan note at $5.4 million. in removing use of unassigned fund balance at $11,508,595, making the total general fund revenues $343,690,900. A decrease to the Board of Education of $2,469,199. A step of one percent and a one percent COLA [cost of living adjustment] of $2,586,746; transfers to other funds of $413,814' planned surplus at $2,905,548, making total general fund expenditures at $343,690,900. The fiscal impact is the tax supported general fund budget is decreasing by 0.29 percent as compared to the prior year."

Commissioner Mike Hart

During the public hearing, Julie Fuller, speaking for the Southern Maryland Association of Realtors [SMAR], said of the proposed property tax rate increase, "This proposal amounts to a hefty annual tax increase on homeowners, which comes in as an additional burden as most county residents continue to see higher real estate assessments. Since 2020, Calvert County has seen its median home price grow nearly 20 percent. Just this past April, the median sold price of a home in Calvert County rose 14.94 percent year over year from $435,000 to $500,000 for the first time ever.

"While there are many reasons to oppose a property tax increase, SMAR IS concerned for several notable reasons; one of the most concerning is how raising property taxes can have a negative impact on affordability and the region's desirability. Higher taxes can potentially deter home buyers and potentially decrease property values, both of which can have long term negative impacts on a government's revenues. As growth has remained minimal over the past several years, the property tax base has also grown minimally.

"Another major concern that we have is the negative impact that raising property taxes can have on seniors and retirees with inflation skyrocketing for several years. Older individuals and those on fixed incomes have experienced financial strain in many aspects of their lives. From the grocery store to the gas pump, this proposed additional tax burden disproportionately impacts property owners and especially hurts those seeking to retire in their own beloved community."

On the income tax increase, Sarah Weems testified, "It is the working-class families who will feel the most impact in times when inflation and interest rates are already out of control. Adding additional financial pressure on our community is simply not the right move."

Commissioner Hart, before abstaining on Grasso's motion, said, "With the circumstances we're dealing with now, my belief would be to use the fund balance this year and potentially maybe the following year."

Hart said he could not support any school system layoffs or not giving their teachers and support staff the same pay increases as are being given to county staff.

Commissioner President Buddy Hance said, "You know, it weighs on all of us. You know, there are 4,000 kids in the school system getting free lunch because of the income levels of their families. We understand that this tax increases that we've proposed are going to be extremely hard on them. Extremely."

But he said funding what the school system asked with tax increases would have been unaffordable for county residents.
