Future of Elms Center Uncertain

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Since the early spring the Elms Environmental Education Center in the southern portion of the county has been closed down after an apparent cease and desist order from the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) resulting in halting of its use for programs that have gone on teaching students about nature for decades.

Sources speaking privately with the public school system have said the order from DNR came in March because of the aging and dilapidated condition of the structure.

Sources also said that educational programs would continue there in the coming school year for students without the use of the building itself but summer programs this year were cancelled.

“The Department of Natural Resources holds a memorandum of understanding with St. Mary’s County in which the building can be used by St. Mary’s Public Schools for environmental educational programming, and the county is responsible for maintenance of the property. The department strongly supports environmental education and is proud of its long association with the Elms program,” said DNR spokesman Greg Boortz “During a routine inspection of the property in March, our engineers found health and safety concerns with the building, and advised school district and county officials via email that the building should not be used for classroom or office space until repairs are made.

“DNR remains in communication with the county in hopes the issues can be resolved. The safety of all who use our facilities is paramount.”

While school board members have not spoken about the issue publicly, it was brought to their attention at the June 12 meeting of the Board of Education in Leonardtown.

Kelly Rossi, who said she was an instructor at the Elms facility for the past three years, told board members she and other teachers there were “stunned” to be told by DNR officials that they had to vacate one of the buildings on the site without any explanation.

She said neither she, nor anyone else at the site, had yet to be given any explanation as of that meeting nearly two weeks ago.

She said the “lack of information... has led to speculation in the community that the Elms program is in jeopardy.”

Worries over funding constraints this budget year, Rossi said, also led to fears that the programming there would be shut down permanently as well as the building.

Tina Reilly, another Elms instructor, said this year was the 44th the site had been in operation.

She said the proclamation from DNR April 16 came with “no warning.”

“We didn’t let this effect the kids’ experience,” Reilly said. “We continued to see kids, sometimes as many as 100 a day.”

The instructors said the education opportunities at Elms were important because it got students outdoors and disconnected from their personal electronics long enough to have direct learning experiences with the environment by observing wildlife, learning about the ecosystem and even being taken on canoeing trips that helped some of them conquer their fears.

As is customary during school board hearings, the board members did not address or acknowledge the concerns of the speakers at the meeting during public comment time.

County Commissioner Eric Colvin offered some explanation about the future of the Elms educational center.

“What I have been told is that the state DNR did close the Elms Environmental Center building permanently,” Colvin told The County Times. “DNR, [county schools] and our Recreation and Parks [Department] are working together to determine the path forward.

“My understanding is that our school system is committed to continuing outdoor environmental education, but not sure exactly how that will look in the next school year.”

Cathy Allen, school board member, said the school system was obligated by law to provide some kind of environmental education experience to students and had partnerships with other sites and facilities — such as Historic Sotterley Plantation — to fulfill that requirement.

“The meeting where people spoke; that’s the first I heard of it [the facility being closed permanently],” Allen said.

The county leases the Elms Beach property, upon which the educational center sits, from DNR, confirmed County Administrator

David Weiskopf.

Allen could not say what form the environmental education piece would take for the coming group of students but that it would take place.

“I know students will have an environmental experience next year,” Allen said.

Heat Wave Hit St. Mary's Hard

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

A blistering weekend of high temperatures had the county opening cooling centers for those without air conditioning, while firefighters put out an open brush fire along a set of power lines in Mechanicsville that sparked in dry grass putting a focus on the dangerous levels of heat locally.

The heat plus relatively low amounts of rainfall recently have also left the county abnormally dry, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor, an on-line survey of moisture levels across the country observed by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Agency and the National Weather Service.

The distinction is one step away from moderate drought, according to the monitoring service.

The brush fire in Mechanicsville took about 50 firefighters to extinguish June 22, according to volunteer fire company Deputy Chief Tyler Burroughs.

"Due to the heat, we added other personnel... to lessen the work load," Burroughs said. "People need to take a break."

Burroughs said the heat index that day of the fire reached 102 degrees

The fire ground was about half-an-acre in size, Burroughs said, with a portion of it occurring in a wooded area; no property was destroyed.

Firefighters do not know what caused the blaze, Burroughs said.

The deputy chief warned that continued heat coupled with dry grass and brush was a volatile mix for outdoor fires.

He warned that people should be cautious when using fire, particularly grills or even fireworks, in the outdoors

"Any embers can cause vegetation to ignite," Burroughs said. "People should use caution.

"If you're going to use grills or fireworks it needs to be in a controlled environment."

Would-Be School Board Candidate's Campaign A Non-Starter

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Tyra Janet Bennett, a Lexington Park resident who only in the last two weeks filed a notice of intent to run on a petition drive as a candidate for the at-large Board of Education seat was disqualified according to a notice from the state's Board of Elections.

The reason, explained attorney Cynthia Panos, legal counsel for the county's Board of Elections, was that election law in Maryland forbids an office seeker from running on a petition in a non-partisan race.

The school board elections are just such a race.

"She can't do that," Panos told The County Times. "Because it's not permitted by statute, she's precluded from running." Panos explained that state law does allow for petition drive candidates in partisan races, however.

"It's [the school board race] the only one that's precluded," Panos said.

For more than a week, Bennett's name was listed on the state Board of Elections website as a legitimate candidate until June 25, when it was listed as disqualified, though it remained on the site.

"Her name there doesn't mean anything other than she submitted paperwork," Panos said of the candidate's declaration of intent.

Tyra Janet Bennett

"She's not a candidate."

During the primary election, there were four candidates for the at-large seat, Brandie Edelen, Josh Guy, DeForest Rathbone and Angela Wathen.

Guy and Edelen had the top two vote tallies in that race and will face each other in the general election in November.

New Sign for California Shopping Center Approved

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The county planning commission approved an amendment to the more-than-30-year-old planned unit development in California known as Oak Crest, which is the home of Lexington Exchange, that would allow for a sign to be placed in the median of Oak Crest Lane.

The plan, which was first promulgated in 1990, did not allow for the placement of any such signs as the developer of the shopping center, St. John Properties, had in mind, said attorney for the applicant Christopher Longmore.

The approval for the new sign, which will be similar in size to the one immediately across from the shopping center at the entrance to the Wildewood community, Longmore said, came with the condition that it be set back 30 feet from the travel lane of the intersection of Oak Crest Lane and Route 235.

Longmore told commission members that the continued construction and land grading at previously undeveloped acreage of the site would soon bring more commerce to the center.

"Pad site 'B' will be a Chipotle [Mexican restaurant] and it is undergoing site work right now," Longmore said at the June 24 business meeting in Leonardtown. "And there will also be a Royal Farms [fueling station and convenience store] there."

Both will be visible from Route 235.

Longmore said the Royal Farms development is currently pursuing its building permits and construction is expected to begin this fall.

The store should open, he said, by the first quarter of 2025.

Maryland Opposes Virginia's Winter Crabbing Decision

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

This week the Virginia Marine Resources Commission, on a split vote, decided to repeal the prohibition against dredging for hard crabs during the winter at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, a move that the State of Maryland vehemently opposes.

"In Maryland we are committed to making management decisions based on data," said Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary Josh Kurtz of the 5-to-4 June 25 vote. "The data show that female crabs are below target levels and lower than last year's abundance.

We also see persistent below-average numbers of young crabs."

Kurtz said that the success of the species' recovery after a steep decline in the 2000s is due to Maryland and Virginia cooperatively managing blue crabs, especially females.

"Today's action by Virginia breaks with this successful approach," Kurtz said.

According to Maryland DNR the presentation given to the commission by its own staff, the winter dredge fishery was estimated to harvest 32% of the female crabs that are in the bay at the start of the dredge season and up to 96% of the dredge fishery harvest is female.

John "Willy" Dean, president of the St. Mary's County Watermen's Association, said "a lot of watermen are scratching their heads on this one."

"I don't like that they're doing it," Dean told The County Times. "It's going to have a huge effect on the spring run of crabs, our big crabs."

Dean said many of the estuary's crabs migrate and hibernate into the waters of the mouth of the bay around Virginia where they gain in size and weight before coming back north into the bay's Maryland waters where they are harvested in the summer.

"The crabs just never get a break," Dean said.

The Virginia blue crab dredge fishery has been closed for nearly 15 years as part of the overall cooperative management efforts with Maryland to ensure a sustainable blue crab fishery.

Maryland DNR contended that scientists engaged in studying the bay and changing conditions such as warmer waters and expanding predators of hard crab such as the invasive blue catfish, were against the Virginia commission's vote.

Scientists cited an adult female population of blue crabs that has not hit desired target levels, in addition to concerns that it could negatively affect future spawns and the blue crab population as a whole,

Maryland DNR said.

Dean said a few Maryland watermen, including some from St. Mary's County had the license to go to the Virginia waters to harvest crabs in the winter but should avoid doing so for the good of all.

He feared that the lifting of the prohibition would take too many egg-bearing female crabs — also known colloquially as sponge crabs — out of the fishery, thereby removing forever valuable, critical species breeding stock for future harvests.

It once again highlights a stark difference between Virginia watermen and their Maryland counterparts, he said.

"In Virginia, they can keep them [sponge crabs] in Maryland, we can't," Dean said. "We have battled over this with Virginians forever and we can't get anywhere.

"It takes millions and millions of crabs out of the fishery, in my opinion."

Dean said he and other watermen had been operating under the assumption that Virginia would stay with its status quo with regards to crab catch limits, as Maryland had; the latest action by Virginia upset that balance.

Essentially, he said, it gave a significant advantage to Virginia watermen at the expense of the entire fishery in the near future.

"Someone's not playing nice in the sandbox," Dean said. "That's not fair."

County Dedicates Ball Field to Employee's Memory

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The county named an entire ball field at Chancellors Run Regional Park in honor of long-time county Department of Recreation and Parks employee Marcus Tyrone Harris, who died last December in motor vehicle crash in Lexington Park.

The dedication took place June 25 with the installation of a memorial plaque memorializing Harris and his dedicated service.

According to the county, Harris' leadership and dedication were instrumental in the development and upkeep of the park, ensuring it was a well-maintained, vibrant, and safe community space for all.

"The dedication of baseball field No. 1 in [Harris'] name serves as a fitting tribute to his legacy, ensuring that future generations will remember and be inspired by his contributions, and that his spirit will continue to live on in the park he so dearly loved and worked tirelessly to enhance," a statement from the county government reads.

Harris, 69, had been a county recreation and parks employee for more than 30 years and had made connections with many in youth sports leagues and the larger recreation community.

Sheriff's Office Investigating Piney Point Drowning

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Investigators say there appears to be no foul play involved in a drowning that occurred June 25 in Piney Point.

The victim, according to sheriff's office spokesperson ALisa Casas, was 82-year-old Ba Thi Hang, whose family was staying at a vacation home in the 4600 block of River Run Lane.

The victim, Casas said, was walking with her daughter on a pier when she fell into the water; she was pulled from the water by her daughter and husband.

Family and neighbors began cardiopulmonary resuscitation and law enforcement officers and emergency responders continued life-saving actions, Casas said, before the victim was taken to MedStar St. Mary's Hospital and placed on a ventilator.

She was later removed from the ventilator and pronounced dead, Casas said.

Plan Outlines Future of County Parks

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The latest strategic plan for guiding the work of the county's Department of Recreation and Parks comes in part from a survey of the community on what they said were the strengths and weaknesses of the county system and how it could be improved.

Parks and recreation chief Arthur Shepherd and the department's deputy director Jessica Hale briefed the Commissioners of St. Mary's County on the plan this week at their June 25 meeting.

While community respondents to the survey gave the department high marks for the number and quality of playgrounds for children, preservation of historic sites — such as the U.S. Colored Troops memorial in Lexington Park — and the overall number of parks (there are 23 parks and 118 athletic and multi-use fields), residents also believed the department could improve in other areas.

The weaknesses outlined in the survey were not having enough indoor facilities and concurrent amenities.

The strategic plan calls for the department to develop a list of future projects to include opportunities for more indoor facilities in the central and northern reaches of the county as well as create a list of what amenities in current facilities could be improved.

A significant part of the department's activities over the next several years according to the strategic plan, will be to acquire land for new facilities, including regional parks and indoor facilities and public water access.

One of the key improvements to help customers interface better with the department is finding a new on-line registration system software package.

Commissioner Eric Colvin commented that the current on-line system was impressive with the amount of data collected on what programs customers had used in the past, but he called the use of the system "cumbersome."

"We'll come up with some recommendations for some integrated software systems," Shepherd said.

"It is a little bit antiquated with what we have now," added Hale.

NAS Patuxent River Sets Noise Advisory Through July 9

Communities surrounding NAS Patuxent River are advised that noise-generating testing events are scheduled to take place through July 9, 2024 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Residents may notice increased noise levels due to these operations.

Pilots at NAS PAX will be conducting Field Carrier Landing Practices (FCLPs). FCLPs are simulated carrier landings conducted to prepare the pilot to land safely on an aircraft carrier. The practices consist of series of touch-and-go maneuvers, "bounces." Airspeed, altitude and power are all precisely choreographed in order for a pilot to approach the ship within an acceptable window to land on the deck safely.

FCLP training is essential for the precision and safety of our military aviators and the success of their mission. Landing on an aircraft carrier is perhaps the most difficult task in military aviation. It is a highly complex and perishable skill, and requires intense period of training before pilots deploy. Residents may notice increased noise levels due to these operations.

As with all operations, NAS Patuxent River takes precautions to lessen the impact of testing activities on the community. For more information, call 1-866-819-9028. To view all current NAS PAX noise advisories please click the following link: <https://www.cnic.navy.mil/PaxRiverNoise>.

Fire Marshal Suggests Attending Public Fireworks Displays

With the arrival of summer and the Fourth of July holiday quickly approaching, Acting State Fire Marshal Jason M. Mowbray suggests that Marylanders attend public fireworks displays. "I would highly suggest the safest way to enjoy fireworks is to attend one of the many public fireworks displays throughout the state," stated Mowbray. To help Marylanders enjoy a safer summer season, the State Fire Marshal offers several ways to enjoy fireworks while avoiding injury:

- Consider attending one of the numerous public fireworks displays in Maryland every year. Leave fireworks to the professionals.
- Visit <https://mdsp.maryland.gov/firemarshal/Documents/2024%20Firework%20Permits%20List.pdf> for the most updated list of all legal and permitted displays throughout the state.

Examples of prohibited fireworks include:

- Firecrackers, Cherry Bombs, Black Cats, M-80's, Crackling Balls and Smoke Bombs
- Roman Candles and Bottle Rockets (whistling and/or with report)
- Sky Rockets, Helicopter-type Rockets, Spinning Wheels, moving tanks or other vehicles
- Any firework that is shot from a mortar tube

For those individuals who insist on the use of consumer fireworks:

- Purchase the fireworks in the location where you intend to discharge them. Check with the local municipality to determine what fireworks are legal for use in that area.
- Fireworks are PROHIBITED in Baltimore City, Montgomery, Prince George's, Harford, and Howard counties, as well as Ocean City.
- Read and follow label warnings and instructions.
- Do not allow small children to use fireworks.
- Do not consume alcoholic beverages while using fireworks.
- Have a bucket of water or hose available.
- Fully extinguish remains of fireworks in water before disposal.

Any law enforcement officer may issue a criminal citation and confiscate fireworks for violations. Confiscated fireworks must be turned over to the State Fire Marshal's Office for disposal. The penalty, according to state code, for intending to ignite or igniting prohibited fireworks is $250.

"Fireworks have been a long tradition of the 4th of July holiday celebrations. Please make safety your number one priority so everyone can enjoy the holiday season," stated Acting State Fire Marshal Mowbray. "By acting responsibly, we can help eliminate fireworks injuries in Maryland."

Mechanicsville Man Charged with Attempted Murder

During the evening of June 22, 2024, The St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office Patrol Division responded to a reported assault at the 45000 block of Nicholas Court in Lexington Park, MD. Deputies spoke with the victim, who advised she was supposed to meet her ex-husband, John William Alvarado, 47, of Mechanicsville, MD. When the victim approached the suspect, Alvarado exited his vehicle, pointed a loaded handgun at the victim, and proceeded to strike her with the handgun several times. Alvarado then discharged the handgun twice and fled the scene.

The victim was flown to an area hospital for treatment of her injuries.

Detectives from the Criminal Investigations Division responded to continue the investigation, and the subsequent investigation revealed that Alvarado had a previously disqualifying criminal conviction that prohibited him from possessing firearms.

On June 23, 2024, Detectives received an arrest warrant for Alvarado. Detectives received information Alvarado was in the Leonardtown area, and with the assistance of deputies from the Patrol Division, a traffic stop was conducted where the suspect was taken into custody and served the arrest warrant charging him with:

- Attempted First Degree Murder
- Attempted Second Degree Murder
- Assault First Degree
- Assault Second Degree
- Firearm Use During the Commission

- of a Violent Crime
- Regulated Firearm Illegal Possession
- Loaded Handgun on Person
- Loaded Handgun in Vehicle
- Reckless Endangerment and related charges

Alvarado is currently being held at the Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown, MD.

Sheriff's Office Recovers Loaded Handgun from Juvenile

On Friday, June 21, pursuant to an ongoing criminal investigation, detectives with the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office Criminal Intelligence Unit served a Search and Seizure Warrant for a juvenile suspect. With the assistance of other detectives from the Criminal Investigations Division, the juvenile was stopped as the driver of a vehicle in the Walmart parking lot in California, MD.

During the traffic stop, the juvenile was detained for the service of the search and seizure warrant. SMCSO K9 Maja performed a free-air sniff of the vehicle, which resulted in a positive alert. A subsequent search of the vehicle revealed a loaded Smith and Wesson M&P 2.0 9mm handgun located under the driver's seat.

The suspect, charged as an adult, faces multiple charges, including possession of a firearm by a minor, carrying a handgun on their person, carrying a loaded handgun on their person, transporting a handgun in a vehicle on public roadways, and transporting a loaded handgun in a vehicle on public roadways.

The suspect was transported to the Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown to await a bond hearing.

Letters to the Editor

'A slap in the face'

In the County Times June 20th issue, former Board of Education candidate, Ms. Angela Wathen, urges winning candidates, Mrs. Cathy Allen and Mrs. Mary Washington, to withdraw from their races. She says the other candidates have better qualifications and visions and they should just step aside. Really?

If that were true, the voters would have voted accordingly. Instead, the voters believed that the incumbents, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Washington, have the better qualifications and vision; and overwhelmingly so, 57.21% and 60.14% respectively.

Voters know the school system and community benefits with experienced and knowledgeable Board of Education members. Voters know these times call for seasoned leadership and serious governance at local and state levels. They know our current members have the know-how for carrying out the education legislation and its requirements because they are doing it now and in a way that best serves St. Mary's County.

Ms. Wathen's seemingly polite plea is truly a slap in the face to the incumbents, and especially to us, the voters. It unquestionably disrespects our democratic process and voters' choices. Ms. Wathen fails to explain what qualifications her preferred candidates possess vice the incumbents. Ms. Wathen's absence from several candidate forums prevented voters from even learning her platform. Voters cannot afford to take Ms. Wathen's suggestions on blind faith, especially with two highly qualified, knowledgeable candidates on the ballot.

United States Naval Test Pilot School Graduates Class 164

The U.S. Naval Test Pilot School (USNTPS) held a graduation ceremony for Class 164 on June 14. Thirty-four students successfully completed the intense 11-month course of instruction and earned their designations as Engineering Test Pilots, Engineering Test Flight Officers, or Test Project Engineer.

Naval aviator and NASA astronaut Capt. Victor Glover Jr. delivered the keynote address. Glover was the Navy's exchange pilot selected to attend the Air Force Test Pilot School where he graduated in 2007. He is an Artemis II pilot and spent 168 days in space in 2018. Glover will be one of four astronauts on the first mission to the moon in more than 50 years.

"I would trade places with any of you today," Glover told the graduating class. "Being a test pilot was the best job I ever had."

Glover charged the class to protect their passions while developing healthy ones.

"I love that [you] show up and still want to be public servants," he said. "You are not like anybody else—use that power to help us create the next generation of responsible people."

The graduation ceremony happened at the Hollywood Volunteer Fire Department in Hollywood, Maryland. Graduates included members of the German Air Force, Italian Air Force, Republic of Singapore Air Force, United Kingdom Royal Air Force, Swiss Confederation, as well as U.S. Army, Marine Corps, Navy, and Air Force.

Naval Test Wing Atlantic Commodore Capt. Elizabeth Somerville, USNTPS Commanding Officer Lt. Col. Aaron Kia and USNTPS Chief of Academics Dr. John Tritschler presented diplomas and offered congratulations to the new testers.

Army Capt. Christopher Smith earned the Capt. Willie McCool Outstanding Student Award for the top performing student in the categories of academics, flight performance, and technical report writing. He was also recognized with the Developmental Testing Thesis Award for the best final capstone report.

Maj. Philip Wheat earned the Capt. Syd Sherby Leadership Award named after the founder of the test pilot training division, now USNTPS. The Capt. Sydney Sherby Award recognizes the student who displays exemplary leadership in the class.

Twenty-two students completed the requirements for the engineering test pilot course, six students completed the engineering test flight officer course, and six students fulfilled the requirements for the test project engineer course.

USNTPS trains pilots and engineers for development test and evaluation of aircraft and aircraft systems. USNTPS is a component of Naval Test Wing Atlantic under Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division (NAWCAD) in Patuxent River, Maryland. NAWCAD advances capability and operational readiness for naval aviation.

The Tackle Box Fishing Report

By Ken Lamb
Contributing Writer

Spot are in the Patuxent, bigtime. Bottom fishermen are filling their coolers with medium to large spot in the mouth of the Patuxent all the way to St. Leonard's Creek. By the fourth of July they should be all the way to Benedict. The spot love bloodworms, which are expensive and scarce this week as digging conditions in Maine were very bad with heat wave and tide timing. Excellent bloodworm substitutes are Lug worms, Fish Bites, peeler crab, night crawlers, razor clams, and squid.

Spot are also caught in numbers in the Potomac around Ragged Point and St. George Island. The Point Lookout area is loaded with tiny spot and croaker. The bigger spot are further up the Potomac to escape the porpoise schools that eat them like candy. There are hungry porpoise in the Patuxent too.

White perch, puppy drum, slot reds are in the shallows for lure casters, but the heat has made a small window of really good activity at dawn and dusk. A high tide with moving water is always good.

Breton Bay in the Potomac seems to have an excellent run of red drum and white perch happening now.

Cobia are now active in the bay south of the Target Ship. Several good catches have been made by experienced captains either sight casting or drifting live spot. Live eels are good but come into their own a little later in the season when they are essential. Trollers using big surgical eels are getting cobia.

There are schools of big bluefish (4 to 6 pounds) marauding the lower bay, but they play hide and seek. The guides that fish everyday are doing well trolling spoons and surgical eels; blue and purple eels worked well this week.

Rockfish are up the rivers and in the northern bay from the Choptank to Baltimore Harbor. Live liners in the vicinity of the Bay Bridge find hot action and in addition to stripers there are hefty, tasty catfish in the mix. The mid-bay was tough going for rockfish hunters this past week in the heat and wind.

Crabs love this hot weather and are eager to eat the bait in the crab pots off the piers of waterfront property owners. They love alewives, razor clams and spot. Hand trap users and chicken-neckers are doing well.

The crappie run in St. Mary's Lake continues with great fishing. Plenty of bass, bluegill, and pickerel too.

There are some rain and cooler temperatures forecast for this week, so let's go fishing!!

A View From The BLEACHERS

SAY HEY

By Ronald N. Guy
Contributing Writer

Mornings land a little harder now. The night's sleep isn't as restful as it once was. Feet still hit the floor, thankfully, but the morning stretch is labored and always includes the pops of aging joints readjusting to walking upright. The image in the mirror is surreal – lines keeping history, three days of facial hair that reveals more gray than brown and a head of hair that offers a similar split. An older, wiser man once said, "That's not gray hair, it's earned silver." I'll roll with that description, for sure.

Such are the struggles of middle-age, a time when the mind is still young and the body is decidedly...not. I respect those who have embraced age-related realities. I am in denial, fighting daily to keep the spirit young. Acceptance is out there somewhere, a moment when even my most absurd psychological gymnastics make the reality of my date of birth simply undeniable.

But every now and then, I appreciate those gray hairs, my vintage, and the things and people I've been fortunate to see. June 18 was one of those days.

I never saw Willie Mays play baseball. He retired in 1973, not long after my birth. But I met the man, ever so briefly, a long time ago. As a child of the 1980s and 90s, I was enthralled with the sports memorabilia craze (autographs, trading cards, artifacts) and wore out a copy of Ken Burns's "Baseball" documentary. Baseball nostalgia was hot and Willie Mays was as relevant as any current player.

My amateur research focused on many familiar names across baseball's rich history – Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Jackie Robinson, Mickey Mantle, Hank Aaron, Roberto Clemente, Frank Robinson and Mays, just to name a few. Ruth was baseball's most famous star. DiMaggio was perhaps its most regal. Jackie Robinson its bravest. Mantle its best overall prospect. Gehrig and Clemente its tragic heroes. Ted Williams was arguably the game's greatest hitter. Aaron was (still is?) its home run king. But it was Mays who seemed, in my mind, the game's greatest all-around player. He didn't hit as many home runs as Aaron or Ruth, his average was below Williams's and he didn't have Clemente's arm. But he was the ultimate five-tool star – elite hitting power and average, speed, fielding and throwing – before it was cool.

Willie Mays, the "Say Hey Kid", passed away last Tuesday at the age of 93, two days before MLB's return to Rickwood Field in Birmingham, Alabama, an ancient ballpark where Mays started his professional career with the Birmingham Black Barons of the Negro Leagues. It was a reminder of Mays's humble professional beginnings, not dissimilar from just about every MLB star, and that America's history is many things - amazing, inspiring, imperfect, troubling and shameful.

For ethically grounded lovers of the game, the steroid era and its damage to player legacies and cherished baseball records sows deep regret. Is Roger Maris the single-season home run record holder? Or Barry Bonds? Or Aaron Judge? Is Aaron still the all-time home run champion, or is it Bonds. There's no clear answer. And that's a damn shame.

That baseball was segregated for over half a century, not different from society, casts an even darker moral shadow. Would the white stars of the segregated era have been as dominant with a full complement of baseball's best players? How would have the Negro Leagues' stars fared in MLB? And how much greater would Mays, Aaron and other early African American MLB stars have been had they not been burdened by the sport's reluctant integration and the injustices of a segregated America? These are just some of the sad consequences of racism.

If anything lasting came of Mays's passing, and the celebration of his life and the Negro Leagues at Rickwood Field, let it be that his journey sears into our minds that prejudice and inequality minimizes us all, and that our potential, as ballplayers, Americans and humans, can only be fully realized together. That endeavor that remains, 73 years after Mays's MLB debut, very much a work in progress.

June Mini Movie Festival

Calvert Library Prince Frederick
850 Costley Way
9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Join us as we watch "Paul Robeson: Tribute to an Artist," "Taste of Cherry" and "The Watermelon Woman." Come to Calvert Library Prince Frederick this June to enjoy 3 in-library screenings on 1 incredible day!

First up is "Paul Robeson: Tribute to an Artist," a 1979 documentary short that explores the life of Paul Robeson, and how his public image changed as he became increasingly involved in the Civil Rights Movement, perfect for African American Music Appreciation Month.

Then for Men's Mental Health Month, the second screening will be the feature "Taste of Cherry," a 1997 film by legendary Iranian director Abbas Kiarostami. Taking place within the span of one day, we follow a man consumed by depression and alienation, confronted with the inexplicable beauty of the everyday when talking to three different people living in Tehran.

Finally to finish off the day, we'll be watching "The Watermelon Woman" from 1996. A piece that finds itself pushing the boundaries of the American New Queer Cinema movement of the 90's, "The Watermelon Woman" confronts the many injustices marginalized people face, and the hierarchies of power that exist within those margins. While this sounds intimidating at first, really the film is a great comedy that invites the viewer to laugh with the many ridiculous moments a woman has to deal with as she struggles to make a documentary; and it's our pick for celebrating PRIDE Month!

Join us for 1, 2 or all 3 films, with an optional discussion following each! Screening times:

- 10:30am - 11am Paul Robeson: Tribute to an Artist
- 11am - 11:30am Discussion #1
- 12:30pm - 2pm Taste of Cherry
- 2pm - 2:30pm Discussion #2
- 2:45pm - 4:15 pm The Watermelon Woman
- 4:15pm - 4:45pm Discussion #3

Chesapeake Beach 2024 Annual Drinking Water Quality Report

Is my water safe?

In the 2023 calendar year, as in years past, the Town of Chesapeake Beach is pleased to provide this annual water quality report. Public Works staff work around the clock to provide you with a safe, dependable supply of drinking water, to provide transparency of the water treatment process, and to protect our water resources. There are no reported unsafe levels within the Town's drinking water. Last year, our system received a monitoring violation; when one of our drinking water treatment plants was not tested for nitrates during the 2023 calendar year. The laboratory in charge of collecting and analyzing our drinking water samples neglected to collect the annual nitrate sample. However, historical data for the past five years and current analytical data indicate this treatment plant had no detectable nitrates.

Do I need to take special precautions?

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/Centers for Disease Control (CDC) guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Water Drinking Hotline (800-426-4791).

Where does my water come from and what are the potential sources of contamination?

Your drinking water is supplied by three wells. The source of Chesapeake Beach's water supply is the Aquia aquifer, which is located 500 feet below ground. The susceptibility analysis for The Town of Chesapeake Beach's water supply is based on a review of the water quality data, potential sources of contamination, aquifer characteristics, and well integrity. For more information on the source of your water, the significant potential sources of contamination, and susceptibility analysis, contact the Maryland Source Water Assessment Program at the Maryland Department of the Environment at (410) 537-3714 or https://mde.maryland.gov/programs/Water/water_supply/Source_Water_

Assessment_Program/Pages/by_county.aspx

Why may there be contaminants in my drinking water?

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791). The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

1. Microbial contaminants such as viruses and bacteria that may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

2. Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.
3. Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm water runoff, and residential uses.
4. Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff, and septic systems.
5. Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which must provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data Table

The table below lists all of the drinking water contaminants that we detected in your water. The presence of contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. The EPA or the State requires us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants do not change frequently. Some of our data, though representative, may be up to five years old.

Units of Measurement & Conversions:

- pCi/L: picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity)
- ppm: parts per million, or milligrams per liter (mg/L)
- ppb: parts per billion, or micrograms per liter (µg/L)

Important Drinking Water Definitions:

- MCLG: Maximum Contaminant Level Goal. The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risks for safety. MCGL allows for margin of safety.
- MCL: Maximum Contaminant Level. The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- AL: Action Level. The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.
- ALG: Action Level Goal. The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. ALGs allow for a margin of safety.
- MRDL: Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level. The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbe contaminants.
- MRDLG: Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal. The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbe contaminants.

Lead

Lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. The Town of Chesapeake Beach is responsible for providing high quality drinking water and removing lead pipes but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components in your home. You share the responsibility for protecting yourself and your family from the lead in your home plumbing. You can take responsibility by identifying and removing lead materials within your home plumbing and taking steps to reduce your family’s risk. Before drinking tap water, flush your pipes for several minutes by running your tap, taking a shower, doing laundry or a load of dishes. You can also use a filter certified by an American National Standards Institute accredited certifier to reduce lead in drinking water. If you are concerned about lead in your water and wish to have your water tested, contact Kiley Gorgard at 410-257-2230. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Copper

Copper is an essential nutrient, but some people who drink water containing copper in excess of the action level over a relatively short amount of time could experience gastrointestinal distress. Some people who drink water containing copper in excess of the action level over many years could suffer liver or kidney damage. People with Wilson’s Disease should consult their personal doctor.

Arsenic

Some people who drink water containing arsenic in excess of the MCL over many years could experience skin damage or problems with their circulatory system, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer.

Barium

Some people who drink water containing barium in excess of the MCL over many years could experience an increase in their blood pressure.

Fluoride

Some people who drink water containing fluoride in excess of the MCL over many years could get bone disease including pain and tenderness of the bones. Fluoride in water at half the MCL or more may cause mottling of children’s teeth, usually in children less than nine years old. Mottling, also known as dental fluorosis, may include brown staining and/or pitting of the teeth, and occurs only in developing teeth before they erupt from the gums.

PFAS

PFAS – short for per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances – refers to a large group of more than 4,000 human-made chemicals that have been used since the 1940s in a range of products, including stain- and water-resistant fabrics and carpeting, cleaning products, paints, cookware, food packaging and fire-fighting foams. These uses of PFAS have led to PFAS entering our environment, where they have been measured by several states in soil, surface water, groundwater, and seafood. Some PFAS can last a long time in the environment and in the human body and can accumulate in the food chain.

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) conducted a PFAS monitoring program for Community Water Systems from 2020 to 2022. The results are available on MDE’s website: <https://mde.maryland.gov/PublicHealth/Pages/PFAS-Landing-Page.aspx>.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed regulations for 6 PFAS compounds in drinking water in March 2023. The MCLs for PFOA and PFOS are proposed to be 4.0 parts per trillion (ppt). The proposal for HFPO-DA (GenX), PFBS, PFNA and PFHxS is to use a Hazard Index of 1.0 (unitless) to determine if the combined levels of these PFAS pose a risk and require action.

The 5th Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring Rule (UCMR5) began testing for 29 PFAS compounds and lithium in 2023, and testing will run through 2025. The UCMR5 should test all community water systems with populations of at least 3300 people. Three randomly selected systems in Maryland with populations less than 3300 people will also be tested under the UCMR5. Detections greater than the minimum reporting levels for each constituent should be reported in the CCR.

TOWN OF CHESAPEAKE BEACH
PUBLIC NOTICE FOR JANUARY 2023 TO DECEMBER 2023
Monitoring and Reporting Violation of the Safe Drinking Water Act

We are required to monitor your drinking water for specific contaminants on a regular basis. Results of regular monitoring are an indicator of whether or not your drinking water meets health standards. During January 1, 2023 to December 31, 2023, we did not complete testing for NITRATE and therefore cannot be sure of the quality of our drinking water during that time.

Reason(s) for failure to collect, test, and report January 2023 to December 2023 results for nitrate:

The laboratory in charge of collecting and analyzing our drinking water samples neglected to collect the annual nitrate sample. Historical data for the past five years indicate this treatment plant had no detectable nitrates; analytical data for the current year also indicates no detectable nitrates.

Additional testing will be conducted during 2024. For additional information contact Jay Berry, Public Works Administrator, at 410-535-1600, ext. 2554

Please share this information with all other people who drink this water, especially those who do not receive this notice directly (for example: people in apartments, nursing homes, schools, and businesses). You can do this by posting this notice in a public place, distributing copies by hand, or mail.

Calvert Schools Receive Recognition for Theatre Education

Calvert County Public Schools has been honored with the distinction of being named a Premier Community for Theatre Education for its outstanding commitment in the field. The Educational Theatre Association (EdTA) recognizes individual schools and districts that demonstrate outstanding achievement in efforts to provide theatre access and education to all students.

"We are honored to be recognized as a Premier Community for Theatre Education," said Dr. Andraé Townsel, Calvert County Public Schools Superintendent. "This designation speaks to our dedication to fostering creativity, collaboration, and expression through the arts. We are proud to provide our students with exceptional theatre education opportunities that enrich their lives and empower their voices."

To qualify for the distinction, each high school answered detailed questions about funding, teacher development and evaluation, theatre class curriculum and participation, instruction time, facilities, and support for the theatre program. Responses were verified with official documentation and reviewed by the Educational Theatre Association. As a result of the individual applications from Calvert High School, Huntingtown High School, Northern High School, and Patuxent High School, Calvert County Public Schools has been named a Premier Community for Theatre Education.

Research affirms the educational and social-emotional benefits of participating in school theatre. In one study, it was found that students who received drama-based instruction made better connections to the curricular content. 95% of school administrators believe that theatre experiences improve students' overall academic skills.

"EdTA celebrates the community effort it takes to build and sustain a quality theatre program," said Dr. Jennifer Katona, EdTA's executive director. "The Premier Communities for Theatre Education distinction recognizes the work done by the entire school or district—from administration to teachers to students and parents—to ensure a safe and robust education in theatre is available to all students. We are thrilled to celebrate this cohort of schools and look forward to continuing to recognize high quality programs in future years."

North Beach Volunteers Make Water Rescues

The North Beach Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad was kept busy the July 21-23 weekend with rescues on the water. On Saturday, June 22, Fireboat 1 responded mutual aid to Herring Bay, near the Sanctuary, with units from Anne Arundel County for a watercraft taking on water. The boat was on station in about five minutes after getting under way.

A Good Samaritan was on scene monitoring the situation and assisted guiding the fireboat to the scene. When Fireboat 1 arrived, it encountered a sport fishing vessel with a failed bilge pump. The crew used Fireboat 1's portable pump to assist with pumping out the distressed vessel's bilge and provided guidance on getting the distressed vessel's bilge operating again.

While assisting the initial vessel taking on water, Fireboat 1's crew encountered another vessel disabled, and against the rocks at the entrance to Herrington Harbor. The crew assisted the boat off the rocks and into the harbor.

On Sunday, June 23, Fireboat 1, Squad 1, and units from Talbot and Anne Arundel Counties were dispatched for a person in the water in Fishing Creek, just off the Rail Trail. Fireboat 1 responded, along with Zodiac 1.

The crew of Zodiac 1 encountered a person in the creek, unable to extract themselves. The zodiac's crew was able to get the person out of the water unharmed and returned to shore.

The NBVFD reminds you to ensure your vessel's are seaworthy before heading out onto the bay, you have USCG approved personal flotation devices for everyone onboard, reliable means to call for help in an emergency, and you let someone know your departure and return time.

For inland waters, use caution when exiting a boat and entering the water. Diving should be avoided due to the shallow depths. Creek and marsh bottoms are extremely soft. It is easy to get stuck and unable to extract yourself.

Release from NBVFD.

Independence Day in Chesapeake Beach, Solomons

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert County's celebration of America's 248th birthday will be centered this year, as in years past, in Chesapeake Beach and Solomons, with annual fireworks displays.

Chesapeake Beach will be celebrating on July 3 with viewing beginning at dusk, or around 9 p.m. Rain date will be July 6.

The Town of Chesapeake Beach sponsors the event in the center of town.

The traffic plan is set up to eliminate all left-hand turns on a portion of Route 261 going through the Twin Beaches, eliminating the need to stop traffic randomly and enabling traffic to flow with minimal stopping. The centerline of Route 261 will be blocked with delineation devices that will prohibit vehicles from making U-turns. Traffic north of Route 260 along Route 261 on the east side of Route 261 must make right turns and exit left on 5th Street to Boyd's Turn Road to Route 260. Traffic on the west side of Route 261 must make a right turn and exit on 27th Street to G Street to Route 260. Traffic south of Route 260 along Route 261 on the east side of Route 261 must make a right turn and must turn left onto Route 260. Traffic on the west side of Route 261 must turn right and continue along Route 261 to Summer City Blvd or continue south to Ponds Wood Road and proceed to Maryland Route 4.

Solomons Business Association (SBA) has released the event schedule for this year's 4th of July activities on Solomons Island. Primary funding for the annual 4th of July Fireworks is provided by Calvert County government through a grant from the Department of Economic Development. Additional funds have been donated by a group of generous local businesses.

Also, funds are being raised by individual citizens through a GiveSendGo account: <https://www.givesendgo.com/SolomonsFireworks>

All events are FREE and open to the public. Updates are posted at www.Facebook.com/groups/SaveSolomonsFireworks

One-hundred-percent of the proceeds from parking at Glascock Field will be donated to the Calvert High ROTC.

Trolley buses are planned to help transport visitors from Glascock Field and around the island.
