Navy Opposes Lexington Park Rezoning

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Navy has opposed a proposal to rezone four parcels in Lexington Park to high-density mixed use to allow for townhouses and the redevelopment of Pax River Village, formerly known as Millison Plaza.

The opposition came at a June 26 county commissioner public hearing. The record will remain open until close of business on July 1. The commissioners are scheduled to make a decision on July 15 at their next meeting.

Naval Air Station Patuxent River Commanding Officer Capt. Doug Burfield said, "NAS Pax River recommends that the Commissioners of St. Mary's County do not approve this zone change. Our concerns are for both the health and safety of St. Mary's County residents and the continued mission of Naval Air Station Patuxent River. The existing zoning designation of limited commercial industrial zoning, or LCI has not been made in error as the parcel is abutting to the existing NAS Pax River Accident Potential Zone 2 (APZ 2). APZ 2's are defined as areas which have measurable potential for aircraft accidents, namely on account of their proximity to a runway at the Naval Air Station. In this case it's Runway 6 2 4. The property lies within the geographical area that is in the flight pattern of the most frequently used runway, Runway 6 at NAS Pax River. When used there are approximately 30 arrivals and departures per day that cross over the property with an average of 900 total arrivals in departures per month."

He added, "There are no plans to decrease the number of arrivals and departures at the Naval Air Station. According to the 2019 noise study, the property is located under the 60-decibel noise contour, but noise levels could reach up to 110 decibels. The proposed town homes within the development are located directly abutting APZ 2 with the closest town home being approximately 20 feet from APZ 2 and the farthest town home being approximately 500 feet away. Under the current zoning, LCI is intended for low occupancy commercial and industrial uses that are compatible with the Air Installation Compatible Use Zone (AICUZ)."

Capt. Burfield noted, "There is no housing development currently allowed in LCI per county zoning guidelines and allowing residential development of that parcel would require rezoning on the part of the county by changing the zoning to high density mixed use. The population density would increase by a hundred percent adjacent to APZ 2 and poses a potential risk to health and safety."

He added, "We're concerned that an increase in density will expose more residents to high noise from aircraft further compounding the impact."

Historically the AICUZ areas around air bases provided a buffer from noise complaints by the public that in some cases impacted base operations.

The captain said a reevaluation is planned. "This study is scheduled to be completed by the end of this calendar year and decisions made prior to the release of this study may not be based on the most accurate information."

He added, "If you choose to rezone this property, NAS Pax River recommends that the townhomes being constructed use the most current noise attenuating methods and materials to mitigate noise generated by jet aircraft. Sound attenuating construction does not, however, mitigate noise generated by rotary wing aircraft, such as helicopters."

The Navy recommends real estate disclosure to be signed by all renters acknowledging that development is located abutting to the APZ 2 and portions of the green space on the property are located in APZ 2. Additionally, the disclosure should include that the development is in the 60 decibel noise contours and will experience noise from both fixed wing and rotary wing aircraft, some of which could be at a lower altitude and higher noise."

Anticipating the objection, the developer's attorney Chris Longmore said they oppose the restrictions. Longmore said on behalf of Atlantic Realty, "I'm really proud to be here representing this client and this developer that came in and took a property that is well known in the county, is very important to the county, very important to Patuxent River Naval Air Station, because it's right outside of the gates. And as there is proof on the ground now as part of their Phase 1 project, how good the project is starting to look and how great it's going to be when it's done."

The first phase includes replacement of the old Belvedere Motel with a new Aldi grocery store.

Longmore said, "We feel that everything we've done has been in full compliance with both the specific regulations that have been enacted and the suggested ones that are in that guidance that came out in 2022."

The project was recommended for approval in May on a 4-3 vote by the planning commission. The developer based their rezoning request on a change in the neighborhood, one of the two possible criteria for rezonings under state law.

Longmore said the plan is good for St. Mary's County and Naval Air Station Patuxent River. "We think this is going to be a great amenity, for both."

Longmore insisted, "If it were to be denied for some of the reasons requested by some of the public comments, we believe it would have a great chilling effect on getting people to invest in this area of our county, which has been a priority of this county since I've been practicing."

Longmore said, "There's been a lot of bad activity happening in this area of Lexington Park. If we leave it a plain parking lot with no uses on it, the way that it's been for decades, that activity will continue if you don't allow these individuals to proceed with this reasonable project."

Three people spoke in support. Joan Sullivan Cowan said, "I live on South Essex, and I hear the planes go over all the time and I tell you what, it's a sound of freedom."

She added, "I am a community activist speaking frequently at planning appeals and to you county commissioners for the need for housing for new hires on the Navy base, the sheriff's department and our public schools."

"The Pax River Shopping Center will truly become a village, a very walkable, affordable village where residents can shop and live," she added.

County to Begin School Zone Speed Camera Program

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County have formally approved the sheriff's office's Automated Speed Photo Enforcement Program for school zones. The approval on May 24 included the hiring of two sheriff's office personnel, and the acceptance of a three-year contract with NovoaGlobal, which will supply the equipment and provide administrative services.

The new personnel will be a sworn deputy to sign off on violations and represent the sheriff's office in court if need be, and an administrative technician to assist with reporting and reconciling the violation, answer questions regarding the program with the public, and assist with community education.

The annual budget for the program is $670,000.

Commander of Special Operations Captain Richard Russell explained, "In November of 2023, this program was brought before the commissioners. And at the time, the Department of Public Works and Transportation was directed to come up with a plan to use their equipment to conduct a speed study in the school zones of the county. That plan and some of the partial data with that was presented to the commissioners in January of 2024. At that time, the ordinance was approved and passed. With that ordinance, there's a designated program administrator, who will be myself as the commander of the Special Operations Division with the sheriff's office, to run the program. The direction was to put this out for invitation for bid."

He said, "It's a tool to reduce speed. It's a tool to reduce accidents and save lives."

Business Development Manager Debbie Trainor, with the winning bidder NovoaGlobal, said they would use data collected by the county and gather their own data. "The reason for this is to obtain data specific to the hours of operation, when you can operate cameras in school zones, from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., and also confirm the first set of data. This can be used also as a baseline."

Trainor said, "The sheriff's office will select the sites, and we will also work with the sheriff's office on the best placement of either a portable image or an actual fixed violation image. We'll prepare all the necessary drawings and permits and seek DOT approval, whether it's county or state, and then deploy all the systems."

For the portable systems she said, "Our company handles all the moving of them, so it doesn't fall on the sheriff's office or any county employees. The systems are also battery operated, and they'll last about three weeks. We monitor the battery life, so we'll come out before any type of battery issues occur."

Trainor noted, "You want to train or change driver behavior. It's very important. And the longer that they're there, the more likely people are to change. They say it takes at least 30 days to change a bad habit no matter what it is."

A violation notice shows the vehicle, the speed limit and the vehicle speed, and the license plate. "And in addition to this, there's also a video that accompanies this," she said.

Trainor said, "Our company offers what we refer to as a full turnkey program where we perform the majority of tasks associated with the program. Again, this includes installing, operating, and supporting all the equipment. We'll provide pre-processing services. What that means for the county is that the sheriff's office will determine what criteria is used for that violation. We'll apply that. Those images are sent to law enforcement over at the sheriff's office for approval. Once that's approved, we can print and mail the citations for the sheriff's office, and we can also mail second notices. Our company provides an 800 number. We have bilingual operators, and we can answer any questions on the violation."

The public will be notified in advance before a speed camera is initiated in any school zone.

If the owner of the car isn't the driver, there's a method of appeal so the driver can be charged.

Commissioner Scott Ostrow asked, "So at the end of three years, if the program is successful, we may not need it anymore."

Capt. Russell said, "Yes!" "Awesome," replied Ostrow, "That would be the goal," Capt. Russell responded.

Ostrow, who lives in Town Creek, said, "I myself must get 10 complaints a week, at least, from people asking me to do something about [speeding around Town Creek Elementary and Esperanza Middle schools]."

Commissioner Eric Colvin observed the program was limited to school zones. "We're not having big brother all over the place. There is a very limited implementation of this program."

Commissioner Mike Hewitt, who voted against the motion last year to seek requests for proposals, said, "I'm going to vote for it because I've heard such a large outcry of people concerned about speeding."

The vote was unanimous.

Freedom Fest Returns with Fireworks and Family Fun

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

It used to be a 4th of July tradition – Freedom Fest at the St. Mary's County Fairgrounds. Then it faded away, the victim of the county fiscal belt tightening.

It returned last year and will be back again this year thanks to business and organizational sponsors. And the family event is free of charge.

Organizer Nick Simonds said, "Funding was cut, I believe. And the Hollywood Volunteer Fire Department took it over for quite a few years, let's say 12 plus years. They had stopped doing the fireworks for a year or two. And then, after that I went to the fairgrounds and said, hey, I'll go ahead and take this on, and we'll bring it back to the fairgrounds and we'll just call it St. Mary's Freedom Fest."

It'll be Saturday, June 28 from 5 to 10 p.m. It's an Independence Day celebration with music, entertainment, food, craft vendors, kids' activities, and a grand fireworks display at dusk.

The schedule includes the Ultimate Dogs Stunt Show at 6 and 8 p.m. and a watermelon eating contest at 7 p.m.

Parking will be limited to the main fairgrounds parking lot and Leonardtown Middle School across the street. Leonardtown High School and the tech center will not be available because their parking lots are being resurfaced. The south fairgrounds parking lot will also not be available because that is the fireworks staging area. Because of the limited parking, carpooling is encouraged, and attendees are urged to arrive early.

It's an alcohol and drug free event. Folding chairs and blankets are okay. No coolers are permitted.

For the return year, Simonds said, "We had a great attendance, especially for the first year. I think we had just as many people inside the festival as we did in the parking lots of the schools,

There's a lot to see and do for those who park and come into the fairgrounds. The Ultimate Dog Stunt Show, he said "that's a definitely a family favorite."

And what could be more All-American for a 4th of July picnic than a watermelon eating contest? "They're fun to enter, but I think they're even more fun to watch," Simonds said.

Live music will feature a variety of rock, blues, and jazz.

Simonds said there will be about 30 craft vendors. And "We've got a full food truck buffet of everything from ice cream to crabby fries to funnel cakes."

"There's no admission. So, if you've got a family of six people, you can come to this event, you can bring your chairs, you can bring your blankets, and you can just have a fun family time, really just celebrating Independence Day," he said.

Major sponsors include Mechanicsville Moose Lodge #495, Burch Oil, Windward Land Development, Great Mills Trading Post, Leonardtown Ford, and Lexington Park Chevy, Ford and Lincoln.

Deputy State Fire Marshals have charged a Mechanicsville man with setting his home on fire early Monday morning June 23 and later connected him to setting his parents' car on fire Saturday morning.

Michael Robert Guy, 47, was arrested shortly after the fire with the assistance of the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office.

Just after 1 a.m. on June 23, 2025, the Mechanicsville Volunteer Fire Department was dispatched to 27099 Morganza Turner Road for a dwelling fire. The St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office assisted in taking him into custody, and he was transported to the Maryland State Police Leonardtown Barrack.

As the investigation continued and during their interview with Guy, he told investigators that he had set his parents' 2003 Cadillac on fire Saturday morning

Business Professor Recognized for Teaching Excellence

College of Southern Maryland (CSM) Professor of Business Christopher Ripley was recently awarded the Accreditation Council for Business Schools and Programs (ACBSP) Teaching Excellence award. The award was presented at the ACBSP's annual conference, held June 19-22 in Las Vegas.

"As someone who's dedicated decades to both business and education, this recognition is deeply meaningful," said Ripley in accepting the award. "To me, teaching excellence means more than delivering content, it's about sparking curiosity, empowering students to think critically, and helping them see their place in the world of business and beyond."

The award is presented annually with the goal of recognizing classroom teachers and their roles at degree-granting institutions. The ACBSP considers three factors when evaluating nominees: teaching and learning; professional development; and institutional and community commitment. The recognition comes with an award, waived conference registration fee, and $500.

Ripley was nominated by Business department chair Tony Stout, who emphasized Ripley's willingness to tailor his courses to a changing world. Ripley declared 2024 his "Year of AI Learning," attending AI-focused professional development and redesigning courses to incorporate the latest AI tools and practices. These redesigned courses include interactive assignments and practical demonstrations of AI, ensuring students are well-prepared for the modern business environment.

"He addressed a critical gap in education by mastering AI's role in business. He integrated it into his teaching, ensuring students are future-ready," said Stout. "His commitment to excellence and preparing students for the evolving business world is most deserving of this award."

Ripley also took the lead in establishing a chapter of the Kappa Beta Delta Honor

Christopher Ripley

Society at CSM, which inducted its first cohort of students in 2023. The international society invites business students to join Delta Phi – CSM's chapter of Kappa Beta Delta – if they are in the top 20 percent of their class. Ripley was invited to join the International Board of Directors for Kappa Beta Delta in 2024, with the board noting that "although you are a relatively new KBD Chapter Advisor, we are impressed with how vital your chapter is already under your leadership."

Ripley said that in his teaching, he focuses on endowing his students with curiosity and problem-solving skills to carry them into a successful future. He reflected on one student, who created a business plan for a tattoo parlor in an introductory class. Today, she's a partner in a local shop while still attending CSM, leading her peers and excelling in AI-driven assignments.

"This award is a reflection of moments like that, where education sparks confidence, growth, and real-world success," he said.

A View From The BLEACHERS

Out of Patience

By Ronald N. Guy
Contributing Writer

It is hard to be a sports fan. The emotional continuum is wide: highs that spawn late night partying, maybe even streaking your cul-de-sac, and have you hanging championship bling in your man-cave for eternity, and lows that prompt anger, tears, even legitimate despair. It is all ridiculous — to get this jazzed or distressed by a sporting event in which you play no direct role. There's no rational explanation for it. No justifiable reason to be so psychologically dependent on a sports team. You'll get no argument against that from any fan — we all struggle with the infection, truth be told. Fanhood is very confusing; the only certainty is that the emotional connection between team and fan is real.

It is hard being a fan of Washington D.C. sports teams. There are better sports towns and easier teams to love. But this is no pity party. Objective assessment: Washington D.C. lands somewhere in the middle of the sports fans' experience. D.C. is neither Boston, a city spoiled with recent success, nor Minneapolis, a four-major-pro-sport-city without a championship since 1991. D.C. offers a faint memory of football dominance and hope for the future. The basketball team, is quite special. It hasn't had a 50-win season, a modest mark of competence, since the disco era and is mired in a soul-crushing, 45-year-long performance range between mediocre and awful. The hockey and baseball teams profile similarly: lots of playoff appearances, a packed resume of heartbreaking playoffs collapses and a single, glorious championship (not counting the Washington Nationals/now Minnesota Twins 1924 World Series win).

Regarding that hockey and baseball title, each seems like a one-time show of mercy from the universe, an acknowledgement of unjust pain. Few sports fans had suffered like Capitals fans prior to the team hoisting the Stanley Cup in 2018. The Caps' playoff collapses read like a fictional tale of psychological torture. Similarly, after over 30 years without a baseball team, the nation's capital received the skeleton of one in 2005. After seven years of rebuilding in D.C., the Nats went on a heater, making four playoff appearances in six years. Like the Caps, they lost in the first round all four times. By 2018, the talent began to age and exit (Jayson Werth, Bryce Harper) and, after a 19-32 start to the 2019 season, all seemed lost.

Then it wasn't. By Halloween, D.C. had a new hero — Juan Soto — and Stephen Strasburg had become all he had promised to be. A trophy was won. A parade was held. The Nats were on top of the baseball world. Six years ago. A lifetime ago.

The Nats haven't had a winning season since. Their championship team retired, broke down and was scattered across MLB in a painful teardown that at some point became inevitable and understandable. Six years later, fresh off an 11-game losing streak and with an abysmal 32-46 record, another season is over before the All-Star break. In a word, the Nats are adrift.

Patience is perhaps the greatest parental trait, especially for parents of adolescent and semi-adult children! I have a decent amount. Not enough, but a decent amount. And I'm grateful for my parents' patience. We're all seekers and personal growth is never linear. The Nats' growth hasn't just failed to be linear, it's failed fundamentally. They have flatlined and my forbearance well has run dry. There is a collection of young talent, but ownership has the franchise stuck in a too-stubborn-to-sell (the Lerner family has flirted with selling the team for years) and a too-cheap-to-spend death spiral (the Nats' active payroll of $64M ranks 25th in MLB). It's hard not to imagine a future where young stars like James Wood and MacKensie Gore bolt to more fertile MLB pastures via free agency or trade — like Max Scherzer, Trea Turner, Bryce Harper, Juan Soto, etc., etc., etc. — while the Nats spin in a perpetual rebuild. In parental terms, Nats fans have justifiably reached the "tough love" stage. Manager Jimmy Dugan, in "A League Of Their Own", established that "There's no crying in baseball." The Nats have proven there's only so much patience, too.

The Tackle Box Fishing Report

Spot continue to be plentiful in the Patuxent River. The spot have increased in size so that at least half of them are eating size. One skilled fisherman landed 38 eating spot in about two hours last Friday morning at Hawk's Nest just above Point Patience. Fishbites, lug worms and blood worms work for bait.

The spot, perch, and croaker (small ones) are also in the Potomac and its tributaries. The lower Potomac has been invaded by cow nosed rays and porpoise. When they appear in quantity, the fish go elsewhere (they do not like to become prey). Excellent catches of all species abruptly stopped last Saturday when the porpoise arrived in schools of fifty or more. They will be gone soon and the fishing will return to normal. Monday morning found some seatrout taking plastic lures in Cornfield Harbor with no porpoise in sight, but the usual rockfish had yet to return.

Bluefish are in the bay near the Target ship. Trollers using in line weights with sugical hose lures and medium sized spoons were limiting out. It seems that the cobia that were in the area before the season came in have left for the moment as news of cobia catches are nil. The heat wave this week should encourage cobia activity.

Ninety degree days are fine for all species except stripers, who will seek the deep and venture out to feed at sunset and daybreak.

Rockfish are very active in the Patuxent. Trollers and lure casters from the rocks found feeding rockfish in the mouth of West

One of three speckled trout Eric Packard caught Monday morning in the shallows of Cornfield Harbor.

Basin at the Naval Air Station. All other areas around Cedar Point can have good populations of rockfish hitting surface poppers, plastics and bucktails and swimming plugs. Go early and late; fish avoid the hot sunshine just as we do.

Jiggers at the Solomons Bridge pilings are doing well on slack tides. The water runs too fast there during the main flow to get all but the heaviest lures down where multiple snags await.

Catfish have retreated to the fresher regions of the Potomac and Patuxent. They are big, plentiful and eager to bite.

Fresh water fishing at St. Mary's Lake and other local ponds is very good.

FINANCIAL FOCUS®

Work toward your own financial independence

We're getting close to the Fourth of July, our national Independence Day. This celebration may get you thinking of the many freedoms you enjoy. But have you thought of what you might need to do to attain financial freedom?

Your first step is to define what financial independence signifies to you. For many people, it means being able to retire when they want to, and to enjoy a comfortable retirement lifestyle. So, if this is your vision as well, consider taking these steps:

- Pay yourself first. If you wait until you have some extra money "lying around" before you invest for retirement, you may never get around to doing it. Instead, pay yourself first. This actually is not that hard to do, especially if you have a 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, because your contributions are taken directly from your paycheck, before you even have the chance to spend the money. You can set up a similar arrangement with an IRA by having automatic contributions taken directly from your checking or savings account.
- Invest appropriately. Your investment decisions should be guided by your retirement goals, along with how long you have before you need the money and how comfortable you are with different levels of investment risk. If you deviate from these guideposts — for instance, by taking on either too much or too little risk — you may end up making decisions that aren't right for you and that may set you back as you pursue your financial independence.
- Avoid financial "potholes." The road to financial liberty will always be marked with potholes you should avoid. One such pothole is debt — the higher your debt burden, the less you can invest for your retirement. It's not always easy to lower your debt load, but do the best you can to live within your means. A second pothole comes in the form of large, unexpected short-term costs, such as a major home or auto repair or a medical bill not fully covered by insurance. To avoid dipping into your long-term investments to pay for these short-term costs, try to build an emergency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses, with the money kept in a liquid, low-risk account.
- Give yourself some wiggle room. If you decide that to achieve financial independence, you must retire at 62 or you must buy a vacation home by the beach, you may feel disappointed if you fall short of these goals. But if you're prepared to accept some flexibility in your plans — perhaps you can work until 65 or just rent a vacation home for the summer — you may be able to earn a different, but still acceptable, financial freedom. And by working a couple of extra years or paying less for your vacation home expenses, you may also improve your overall financial picture.

Putting these and other moves to work can help you keep moving toward your important goals. When you eventually reach your own "Financial Independence Day," it may not warrant a fireworks display — but it should certainly add some sparkle to your life.

Karl Szlendak, 81

Maryland, on June 12, 2025. Karl is now in heaven in the loving arms of our Lord Jesus Christ. God bless his soul.

Karl was born on September 23, 1943, in Germany, to Wladyslaw Szlendak (deceased) and Stanislaw Szlendak (deceased). He and his family came to the U.S. in August 1948 when he was at the age of five.

Karl studied at Margaret Brent High School in Helen, Maryland before attending plumbing trade school in Virginia. His plumbing skills and numerous other talents prepared him to begin a 30-year career with the Association of Machinist and Aerospace Workers, working at Placid Harbor in Hollywood, Maryland. His job title as Maintenance Specialist didn't capture the wide variety of things Karl could do. He was more like a Maintenance Swiss Army Knife, tackling everything that needed to be done. He was truly a devoted employee that could be counted on in every instance.

It is with deep sadness that Krystyna Szlendak Morgan, loving sister, announces the passing of her beloved brother, Karl Egon Szlendak, of California, Karl enjoyed the many outdoor activities St. Mary's County offered, including boating, fishing, crabbing, and hunting for all varieties of game, including geese, duck, deer, turkey, and anything else in season. He loved NASCAR, the Pittsburgh Steelers, and collecting Budweiser beer steins. He was a member of the National Rifle Association, and he loved Cabela's outdoor store, Snap-On tools, and John Deere tractor equipment. Karl really enjoyed working on his farming equipment.

If Karl was telling one of his many stories, and he began with, "Hey, you're not going to believe this," you could rest assured it was going to be a good story.

He was a 4th Degree Knight of Columbus and devoted much of his time to helping with all their events and the Color Guard. He was also a member of the Optimist Club.

One of Karl's most precious possessions was his black lab, Boomer, given to him by a dear friend, Allie Raley. Boomer was Karl's companion for 12 years.

Karl is survived by sister, Krystyna Szlendak Morgan (husband Bernard Morgan, deceased); brother George Szlendak and son Austin and daughter (Lisa Marie Steffek (husband David Steffek, two children Abigail and Zac); brother Joseph Szlendak (wife Jill Szlendak and their daughters, Brittany and Nicole Vehawn (husband Jason Vehawn and their son Kaleb).

Karl was preceded in death by both his beloved brother Casimir (Caz) Szlendak and wife Mary Szlendak. Caz, Krystyna (Sis), and Karl referred to themselves as the "three musketeers," always causing mischief in their younger years.

The family will receive friends on Tuesday, June 24, 2025, from 5:00 PM to 8:00 PM, with the Knights of Columbus reciting the rosary at 7:00 PM, in the Mattingley-Gardiner Funeral Home, 41590 Fenwick Street, Leonardtown, MD. A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated on Wednesday, June 25, 2025, at 10:00 AM in Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church, 225 Alexander Lane, Solomons, MD, with Father Bob Kilner officiating. Interment will immediately follow at Charles Memorial Gardens, 26325 Point Lookout Road, Leonardtown, MD. Serving as pallbearers will be Claye Gross, Michael Maher, James R. Hammett, Jr., James (Dickie) Hammett, III, Allie Raley, and Dale Tarleton.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations in Karl E. Szlendak's name to either the Lexington Park Volunteer Rescue Squad, 21685 FDR Blvd, Lexington Park MD 20653 or the Bay District Volunteer Fire Department, 46900 S. Shangri-La Drive, Lexington Park, MD 26253

Karl was a devout Christian and a loving, caring, and thoughtful man. He was always willing to help others when needed. He will be missed by all.

"What we once enjoyed and deeply loved we can never lose, for all that we love deeply becomes a part of us."

Condolences may be made to the family at www.mgfh.com.

July 11 & 12, 5 p.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Godiah Spray Tobacco Plantation
47755 Old Cove Rd., Lexington Park
Admission: $20; $15 for HSMC members

What does justice look like—and who gets to define it? Join us for this immersive, adults-only evening tour based on true 17th-century court cases from Maryland's first capital. As you walk through the plantation, you'll meet characters whose lives were entangled in the legal system—people navigating interracial relationships, enslavement, adultery, abuse, and public scandal. Their stories are complex, raw, and very real.

The tour ends with a dramatic outdoor court hearing, where you'll see how the colonial justice system delivered its verdicts—sometimes fair, often not. Come ready to question, reflect, and walk in the footsteps of the past.

This program is intended for adult audiences (18+). The stories presented are based on real 17th-century court cases and include sensitive topics such as enslavement, interracial relationships, abuse, adultery, and substance use. These themes are presented with care and historical context, but may be distressing for some visitors. We encourage thoughtful engagement and reflection.

Emergency cooling centers open when the need arises. Calvert County Emergency Management staff is closely monitoring the National Weather Service's excessive heat warnings and will make a determination to keep certain cooling centers open past normal business hours if the need arises.

Calvert County residents are urged to take the following precautions to protect themselves and their families when temperatures rise:

- Drink plenty of fluids; water is best.
- Avoid beverages containing alcohol, caffeine or large amounts of sugar as they can dehydrate the body.
- Stay in an air-conditioned room or building during the hottest part of the day.
- Stay out of the sun.
- Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing.
- Check on elderly relatives and neighbors.
- Never leave children or pets in parked cars since temperatures can rise to 130 degrees inside vehicles in only a few minutes, even with the windows rolled down.

Heat can affect anyone, but most at risk are the very young, senior citizens and people with underlying health problems. Symptoms of heat illness include heavy sweating, muscle cramps, weakness, dizziness, nausea, weak but rapid pulse and headaches. People with these symptoms should find shade, drink water slowly and make sure there is good ventilation. Those with severe symptoms should seek medical attention.

Pet owners should provide ample shade and water for their pets or bring pets indoors. Any time a pet is outside, make sure it has protection from heat and sun and plenty of fresh, cold water.

Residents can stay tuned to emergency alerts and information about the location and availability of cooling centers online at www.CalvertCountyMd.gov and through the Calvert Prepare mobile app. Visit www.CalvertCountyMd.gov/BeAwarePrepare to download the free app and sign up for local emergency alerts.

New Chesapeake Beach Waterpark Still Planned

Exact Path and Timing Remain Unclear

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Town of Chesapeake Beach is moving forward with plans to demolish the existing waterpark and replacing it with a new one. But the exact path to that end and a schedule for it to happen remain unclear.

At the June 12 town council meeting, a decision was delayed on demolition of the existing park. Mark Wilkinson of Paddock Pool Company recommended that be done immediately in order for the town to meet its desired schedule opening the new park next June.

Paddock constructed the existing waterpark 30 years ago and would like to do the new one.

Wilkinson at the June 12 meeting was not able to provide any cost estimates, saying they would be ready in time for the July meeting. He did present two design alternatives. One would be a replacement similar to the current layout with some additional amenities and the second would be substantially different.

Wilkinson presented some preliminary findings of a study that showed the existing foundation by and large can support a new facility.

But some council members are not sure that Paddock would qualify as a sole source provider that would allow them to bypass the normal bid process. Bidding would take several months and delay the schedule.

That reluctance caused several council members to be reluctant to give Paddock the go-ahead to demolish the existing waterpark down to its foundation.

Council member Laura Blackwelder said it made more sense to her for the demolition and construction projects to be awarded at the same time to the same company.

Council member Eric Reinhardt said, "Before we were dumping additional money into it, I'm not all that concerned with it opening this next summer. I want it to be done right. And I want us to be able to make intelligent decisions about the direction that we're going. And we just don't have the information right now to throw more money at it when we have no idea what it's going to cost. And from a town perspective, this waterpark has, in my knowledge, never been a profitable enterprise or endeavor. So, if we're planning on cutting the capacity, we're talking about additional subsidies from the taxpayers to fund the waterpark for people who may or may not go there. Most of the taxpayers are older people, so if it's not really targeted towards them, they're going to be bearing that cost and it's not really their amenity."

But Council Vice President Jamey Shuls said, "I will counter and challenge your thinking a little bit, in the sense of we know this waterpark is not repairable, so it has to come down no matter what. Whether you build a new waterpark or you do something else with it, the demo does have to occur at some point in time or otherwise, we have zombie land over there and we're going to have this just ugly looking waterpark. That was a part of the DNA that just is rotting in front of our eyes."

He added, "So I think we have to also look at this from a perspective of demo then build. I think you're assuming that when we demo that automatically means we're tied into a build. And I think there's contractual language that could be oriented away from a demo that assumes you have to build, or you have to build with Paddock."

The council did not meet in executive session after the meeting as originally intended and did not vote on anything related to the water park.

Corrections

A story in the June 19 edition of the Calvert County Times entitled "Grasso Explains Her Priorities" mentioned the ribbon cutting for the Ladies of Charity Food Pantry and listed the location as Chesapeake Beach. The pantry actually is in North Beach.

Also, in a June 12 story about the passage of the county budget, it was reported that Commissioner Hart was seeking an extra STEP for county employees. His motion was actually for an additional one-percent COLA. Also, in the 2-2 vote on Hart's motion, Commissioner President Hance did vote against, and Commissioner Grasso was the one who did not vote.

The County Times apologizes for the errors.

Planners Ponder Intersection Policies

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Planning Commission on June 17 received a briefing from the Department of Public Works on intersections in Prince Frederick. The briefing was prompted by the commission's failure to vote on the proposed Prince Frederick Town Center Master Plan. Commission member David Bury insisted that the plan did not recognize failing intersections and the impact of development from the Adequate Public Facilities Ordinance (APFO).

The presentation was led by Public Works Director J.R. Cosgrove and consultant, John Rectanus, from the Wallace Montgomery firm. Rectanus went over the sometimes complicated method of rating intersections, including having them be considered as failing.

A signalized intersection's level of service is determined by the wait time. The county considers "C" to be inadequate and the state uses a "D" level.

Rectanus said, "For a level service D, your threshold for signalized intersections is 35 seconds to 55 seconds. So that's how you sort of calculate that level of service."

But the bulk of the discussion revolved around intersection light timing and what intersections would be considered impacted by a specific development.

The planners were told that was generally within a mile of the development. But commission member Chris Gadway observed "Let's say there's 200 trips per day that are going to be added based on XY development. So, if a residential development XY goes in place, there's going to be an estimated 200 trips per day in your... program that you said analyzes everything all the way out. Are those 200 trips or a portion of those 200 trips also added to, let's say if it's Prince Frederick, are they added to the traffic count as far as away as Dunkirk and Solomon's?"

He was told it would be limited to one or two miles.

Gadway said, "So being a bedroom community, the 200 possible that's added in this particular area, Prince Frederick, most likely is still going through Dunkirk."

Cosgrove said, "When we look at the study area, our APFO kind of defines what the study area can be, but it is still up to the director of public works to expand. Let's just say the study area for the traffic situation, generally we keep it within a certain distance. So, if we're looking at development in Prince Frederick, generally we don't look at intersections in Dunkirk when we're studying the traffic in the north, because it's so far out. If you look at, let's just say a 200-townhouse community, part of that traffic from that is going to get washed out by the time it gets to Dunkirk, so you're not going to notice the difference in the study itself.

"So we kind of limited to the intersection within sometimes a one-mile radius and sometimes we shrink them down, maybe we could expand it."

He said he thought the area for the last study was extended to Stoakley Road, a point disputed by Bury.

Cosgrove said, "We know how many are going to leave the site, but it doesn't define one hundred percent headed north or it's only 50 percent in the north, 50 percent in the south. So that's where it kind of gets to more of an estimation in a traffic study, which is why I think a lot of us view that maybe the studies aren't the most accurate, but once again, you're looking at an estimate. So, what they actually do in the real world might not be what we estimate, but we don't know what they're going to do in the real world until it's built and they're actually doing the moving."

Bury said, "I've got a recommendation though, and that is, the geographic bound study is really critical, for the Armory Square and the Magnolia Ridge studies. Those studies actually were geographically bounded in a way that excluded looking at the impact of traffic on Stoakley Road. And so, typically, BPW goes out to the first major intersection or so. In the case of those studies, that criteria excluded the intersection really the most problematic in Prince Frederick."

"So, what I'd like to suggest is it makes sense to have a policy where all of the intersections within a town center are studied."

Planners Approve Armory Pavilion

Artist's rendering of the Armory Pavilion

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Planning Commission has approved the site plan for the Armory Pavilion, the county's redevelopment project at the site of the former National Guard Armory in Prince Frederick.

Principal Planner Christine Finamore told the planning commission at their June 18 meeting, "A sketch concept plan for the project was submitted to Development Review staff in December 2023. This plan was reviewed by several staff who provided comments and feedback. The site plan was submitted and accepted by the Technical Evaluation Group (TEG) at their meeting in December 2024. Plan #2 was submitted for review in April 2025. Plan #3 was submitted in early June."

She said, "The Site Plan Application proposes to redevelop the former location of the Prince Frederick National Guard Armory includes a publicly owned and operated open-air pavilion (13,506 sq. ft.) as well as façade and interior updates to the existing storage building (4,792 sq. ft.) to add bathrooms, for a total of 18,298 sq. ft."

Finamore said, "Parking calculations have been evaluated for the proposed buildings, with a total requirement of 64 parking spaces."

The site plan includes a memorial on the front of the property that will be constructed from bricks saved during demolition of the armory.

Director of Public Works J.R. Cosgrove said about 600 bricks were saved. "There's a bush in the middle with the concrete band going around it. There are also words inscribed in there that are related to the National Guard."

The pavilion will be used part of the time as an open-air farmers market and some of the parking spaces will be set aside for vendor parking and set up. But the traffic flow through the property will be maintained even during those times.

A traffic light is being constructed on Routes 2/4 at the new shopping center across from the pavilion. Curb and gutter are being constructed along Armory Road in front of the pavilion.

The county has received several grants to help defray the cost of constructing the pavilion.

Hoyer Leads Roundtable at CalvertHealth

As part of House Democrats' Save Our Hospitals Week of Action, Congressman Steny H. Hoyer (MD-05) hosted a roundtable with doctors, medical professionals, and hospitals to discuss the implications of Trump and House Republicans' cuts to Medicaid and health care services.

Congressman Hoyer and roundtable participants highlighted how nearly 17 million Americans stand to lose their health care coverage and millions more will pay higher premiums, copays, and deductibles under the reconciliation bill that House Republicans passed. Experts predict over 21,000 people in the MD-05 alone will lose coverage by 2034 because of this bill. That includes over 8,000 people losing ACA coverage and 13,000 losing Medicaid coverage in MD-05.

The discussion took place at the Calvert Health Medical Center. Participants included the CalvertHealth Medical Center, Maryland Department of Health, Maryland Hospital Association, MedStar St. Mary's Hospital, MedStar Southern Maryland Hospital Center, Luminis Health Doctors Community Medical Center, and the University of Maryland Medical System.

"Donald Trump and his Republican allies in Congress are laser focused on making health care unaffordable for millions of Americans in order to give a tax break to the wealthiest 0.1 percent of Americans," Congressman Hoyer said. "As Trump's administration decimates federal health care services and fires the federal employees providing those services, more pain will befall Maryland households. Seniors might have to ration medications; families with disabled children may have to forgo treatment; hospitals will be squeezed; and the number of uninsured Americans will rise. That's why I will not stop working to protect Americans' access to quality, affordable health care."

"The Maryland Department of Health was proud to join Congressman Hoyer to hear directly from hospitals on how changes at the federal level will impact Maryland's health care delivery system. Maryland has been a national model for innovation and population health improvement, paving the way for other states to learn from our system that has both improved health and reduced overall health care costs," said Ryan Moran, Deputy Secretary of Healthcare Financing and Medicaid Director, Maryland Department of Health.

Grant Would Help Combat Youth Depression

Teachers Called Front Line in Recognizing Problems

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Suicidal thoughts among school-age children continue to be a concern of the Calvert County Health Department. Health Officer Dr. Nimfa Teneza-Mora, in a June 10 briefing to the county commissioners, said, "There are some elevated rates of feelings of sadness and hopelessness among our high school students and in the middle school students. There were attempts of suicide or consideration of suicide."

The 2022-23 Maryland Youth Risk Behavior Survey, conducted in schools, shows:

- Feelings of sadness or hopelessness — 33.3 percent of high school students and 34.2 percent of middle school students
- Seriously considered suicide in past 12 months — 16.9 percent of high school students and 22.8 percent of middle school students
- Attempted suicide in past 12 months — 7.2 percent of high school students made at least one attempt and 9.4 percent of middle school students made at least one attempt.

She added, "Studies have shown that post-COVID, depression levels in children and adults really were significantly higher than those before the pandemic. There is no data specific to Calvert County, but this is from papers and studies that are done generally throughout the US. And it is thought that those feelings were linked to social isolation, the lack of exercise, fear of contracting the virus, stress associated with just being inside the home with their parents and then stress that they might be sensing from their parents as well."

Dr. Teneza-Mora noted, "If they are in a low socioeconomic status, then they have even added stress."

She said, "We currently have school-based services that are available...to individuals who are currently suffering from depression. And those services are available at the individual level as well as in the group session level."

They hope to do more. They have submitted a grant proposal "for another new school-based prevention program that's organized into three tiers," adding, "The whole purpose of this is to really expand the services of prevention so that students who are still not at risk have access to some of the prevention programs, and then students who are at increased risk can access the tier two and lower. And then the students who have an active illness, they can access tier three and then the actual services that are being delivered now."

The health officer said teachers are the front-line of defense. Which brought a reaction from Commissioner Mike Hart.

He said, "I'm a hard love guy, don't get me wrong, but it's like, if they don't win the Super Bowl, they fell short. So how do they assess what these risks are?"

She said, "Actually we really will rely on the teachers."

Hart responded, "That's too much pressure on a teacher. If I go to school to be a math teacher, I don't know anything about mental health."

He added, "That's what drives me nuts with Maryland. Maryland has done this like it washes its hands of mental health. It's one of the biggest problems we have out there. We put it on law enforcement. We go, you had a month training to identify somebody who's autistic or not. And then it's put on a teacher."

The health officer mentioned the network of social workers in the schools.

Hart, noting the suicides on the Gov. Thomas Johnson Bridge, said, "I don't want to say Maryland's not taking it seriously, but every year we do these presentations, and I don't see this real focal point on each child. Somebody needs to kick the tires on this kid and say, hey, how are you doing?"

Commissioner President Buddy Hance

responded, "The teachers are with these kids every day and they notice changes that sometimes parents miss or sometimes parents ignore. I think what she's trying to say is that when the teachers notice these changes, it's up to them to reach out, to try to help the children and get them the resources that they need."

Later, Hance clarified that the defense for the problem should also be with the support staff in addition to the teachers.

Public Hearing Set on Proposed Ethics Ordinance Revision

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) has set July 15 as the date for a public hearing on proposed changes to the county's ethics code. The changes were mandated by a bill passed by the legislature in 2024 at the behest of advocacy group Calvert Citizens United, after their unsuccessful suit against former commissioner Kelly McConkey went all the way to the Maryland Supreme Court.

Constituent Services Specialist Emily Shrieves explained at the June 17 BOCC meeting, "On April 25, 2024, Governor Wes Moore signed HB 834 into law. The law mandates the Calvert County Ethics Code to be updated to include a regulation which requires the Calvert County Ethics Commission (CCEC) to publicly disclose recommendations to expel a commissioner. The law also mandates that the county adopt a regulation authorizing the governing body to remove county elected officials for local and state conflict of interest violations based on the CCEC's public recommendation. On April 1, 2025, the CCEC presented the draft ordinance in a work session to the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC). The BOCC requested additional clarification on the scope of the ordinance and voted to direct the County Administrator to assign staff to confer with the CCEC on the grounds for taking action. On April 17, 2025, the CCEC held its monthly meeting and discussed the code update. The CCEC clarified that any recommendation for removal of a County Commissioner due to a conflict of interest must be based on existing ethics rules that already apply to county elected officials."

She said, "The Commission voted to make two minor revisions to better distinguish local and state ethics provisions."

Ethics Commission Chair Timothy Cox said a potential conflict of interest is not a conflict of interest. He explained, "A summary of what the provisions could be by which there would be an allegation of a conflict of interest, that the Ethics Commission would evaluate the circumstances and come up with a determination if any of the provisions are violated. I do recall from seeing the last working session, there was some discussion, or at least questions, concerning the scope of what the conflicts of interest could be. I think there were some examples of speeding tickets and using public office for private gain. My comment here is that while there is a provision under 41-13 (ethics code) that does say (that) no county employee or elected official is allowed to use their public (office for) private gain. Whether or not that constitutes a conflict-of-interest allegation that would be substantiated by the Ethics Commission. It would be determined based on the facts of what that might be. If that conclusion is, and then a recommendation is made, that's just a permissive requirement (for the Ethics Commission). But what the Board of County Commissioners does is entirely within its discretion."

Cox further clarified, "The Ethics Commission within its scope of authority makes a finding, there is a conflict of interest under 41-3 under provisions that are provided there under, and then we have to make that recommendation public if the recommendation is to expel the member. Now, just because we find a conflict of interest doesn't mean that we would make a recommendation to expel a member, but if we did make the recommendation to expel a member, we have to make that public. But then it's up to the Board of County Commissioners as to what they do with that recommendation. And there are already procedures and processes in place for the Board of County Commissioners to do business in a contested hearing. And that's been incorporated into the ordinance that we proposed for today."

Ethics Commission Attorney Todd Pounds said the committee only makes a recommendation. Once the commissioners have it, "At that point, you could easily say, Nope, no further action. It ends there."

If the commissioners decide to proceed with a hearing they would conduct a mini trial. He said, "You'd have to, in essence, be the judge and jury."

Health Departments Discusses Dangers of Cannabis Use

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

Calvert County Health Officer Dr. Nimfa Teneza-Mora on June 17 briefed the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners, sitting as the Board of Health, on dangers of marijuana, its health and enforcement implications.

Dr. Teneza-Mora reported, "In July 2023, licensed dispensaries were authorized to sell regulated cannabis products to adults age 21 or older and to certified medical patients. So, the Maryland Cannabis Administration (MCA) regulates various aspects of the cannabis industry, including cultivation, manufacturing, testing, packaging, labeling, sales, as well as distribution of medical and adult use. Cannabis within the state is a regulated product. What meets the MCA standards bears a symbol."

She added, "And there are products that are unregulated that are being sold at various places, either online, at convenience stores, gas stations, some vape or smoke shops. Now, only adults age 21 or older can legally purchase, possess, and use cannabis. And there are limits in the amount that they can possess, depending on the type of product that they have. Driving under the influence of cannabis is illegal and smoking cannabis in public indoor spaces such as restaurants, bars, and schools is illegal. Cannabis also cannot be smoked in public outdoor spaces, including streets, sidewalks, and parks."

She noted, "It's important for us to emphasize that youth under 21, it's not allowed for them to buy it, to possess it, to use it. And if they are caught, they can be charged. They can be fined, depending on the amount that they have."

After some discussion it was decided to bring in Sheriff Ricky Cox at a later date to discuss under-age enforcement.

Commissioner Mike Hart observed that enforcement of impaired driving is difficult because there are no roadside sobriety tests as there are for alcohol.

The health officer said, "Currently there's a test called the DRE or a driver recognition evaluation. But they require experts. And I did consult with our sheriff's office. Since legalization, they have conducted four of those, and none of them indicated use of cannabis. And they did admit that it's quite challenging because you can't really tell whether that person being evaluated used cannabis alone or cannabis plus other substances. So, it's challenging."

Dogs can't be used, noted Hart. Dr. Teneza-Mora said, "They would make an arrest or a charge or a citation based on odor of cannabis in the car. They would have to be able to show impairment. And that's where the challenge is, because it's a specialized type of evaluation that takes several hours to execute. So, by the time they get to the station where a test could occur, the levels would've waned, and you wouldn't see the effects anymore."

What are the dangers of cannabis use? Dr. Teneza-Mora said, "So the short-term effects are great. So, it includes difficulty focusing, slower reaction time, decreased ability to concentrate and make decisions. Then there's a reduced awareness of time and distance. And so all of these factors contribute to the risks associated with driving under the influence. And that is really the case."

"If a person drives within six hours of consuming the product, and sometimes taking either moderate or high doses, can cause individuals to have other symptoms, including nausea, vomiting, panic attacks, anxiety, and sometimes those will require visits to an emergency room or emergency department."

She said, "For adolescents, it is important for them to understand that consuming cannabis can really harm the development of their brain. This really has been shown mostly in animal studies, but also there are studies that show this behavior among the teens and the adolescents, so regular exposure can impair brain development and making them difficult to carry out all of their responsibilities at school."

She added, "Their ability to achieve further becomes lessened. And that's a big disadvantage. There are also studies that have shown that cannabis users have higher rates of depression compared to those who are not using the product."

Dr. Teneza-Mora observed, "I think the biggest risk is really addiction. So, adults who use cannabis have a one in 10 risk of becoming addicted to the product while an adolescent becomes addicted one in six (times). So, they're more likely to also get addicted to it because of the effects of the cannabis product on the brain receptors."

The health officer said the Maryland

Youth Risk Behavior Survey and Tobacco Survey showed that cannabis use among high school students has decreased over time since 2013 to now. And (for) middle school and high school students in the past three years, "that trend seems to appear to also decline, except in 2023 when there was a bit of an increase, both in the middle school use and high school students."

But she said, "It's important to note though, that the data here does not really reflect the what's happening after legalization. And so, we have yet to collect that information and analyze that."

She said, "Overall Calvert County's usage rates tend to be generally lower than the states, with one exception, and that's the rate of high school student use in 2023. So, in 2023, 15.6 percent of Calvert County high school students reported cannabis use, and that's higher than the state average of 14.4 percent."

She said surveys show "teens primarily use cannabis to fit in and to socialize with their friends. That's the top reason among white, Black, and Asian students. Depression and anxiety were also a second common reason, particularly among the Hispanic students."
