Fatal Accident Becomes Issue in Sheriff's Race

McDowell Explains His Involvement

By Dick Myers Editor

The accident on October 29th, 2019, which led to the death of Leah Clark has become an issue in the Calvert County sheriff's race as it has in the county commissioner race. Clark was struck and killed by a car driven by Joseph Migliaccio, then a sheriff's deputy, while she was walking along Dares Beach Road. Migliaccio was recently found not guilty of any criminal changes and fined $600.

At a recent forum at the American Legion post in Chesapeake Beach, candidate Craig Kontra held up a poster board with a picture of Clark, and said, "I retired in 2020, but in my heart, I'm not done. I can't in good conscience sit back and watch the continued mishandling of internal cases that involve sheriff's office personnel. To that point, there's no greater example than what happened to Leah Clark three years ago."

Kontra said Clark was walking to a convenience store to get her son a slushie, when "she was struck and killed by an off-duty deputy. The deputy who struck and killed her was charged with manslaughter by motor vehicle, speeding, driving intoxicated and several other charges. However, because of the negligent mishandling of this case, the deputy received a slap on a wrist and was convicted of speeding and reckless driving.'

Kontra said, "It's because of this and other questionable practices that I have run for your sheriff. I have felt so strongly about mismanaging that I believe a change is absolutely necessary.'

Assistant Sheriff Dave Mc-Dowell is also a candidate. He responded to the criticism, since he has been on the receiving end of it. He said, "Unfortunately one of the candidates put some things on

Facebook that insinuated because the second in command, that's me, was on the scene that that's why things didn't happen in the correct way that day. So, to clarify, 31 minutes into that horrific event, I was notified at home to come to the scene of the crash which I did. Sheriff Evans was on scene before I was, and he met me there. I did not see Mr. Migliaccio. He had already been removed from the scene. I'm told that he was removed from the scene because he was manic and combative.'

McDowell added, "The iff and I had a conversation about who was to handle the incident. I recommended to him immediately that we needed to have the Maryland State Police investigate the incident. He agreed. He himself made contact with the trooper who was on scene to initiate that process. At that time, he gave me the directive to stay on scene until our crash reconstruction team, which he decided would handle the reconstruction, arrived and got set up and got underway. That was my directive."

McDowell explained, "I stayed there for that time. And once reconstruction got set up, I made a phone call to the office to find out what the status was. And I was told that the Maryland State Police had taken custody of Mr. Migliaccio. So, at that point I had no idea of what went on at the sheriff's office with respect to Migliaccio being able to walk freely around the office, given water before an administrative breath test and the other things. So, when I found out about that, the next day, I was mortified. That is not the conduct that I expect from our staff. It's not the conduct that I would've condoned from our staff. And it was just wrong.'

McDowell said, "You know, as the second in command, I bear some responsibility for the actions of my troops and I accept that, but I do not live in their hearts and minds. I'm not there when they make every decision. I rely on multiple layers of supervision between myself and those individuals to make the right decisions, like letting somebody know in the chain of command that this individual had a problem with alcohol and maybe some PTSD. That's one failure that occurred."

For Leah Clark and her family, McDowell said, "Justice was not done. We failed them. We failed them on many, many levels. The courts failed them. The investigation failed them. The actions of some of the deputy sheriffs involved failed them."

"I'm not up here asking you for sympathy by any means," he said, "but I needed to clear the air about this and set the record straight as to what I know that occurred that day."

Candidate Ricky Cox, also a deputy, said he was out of tine when the accident occurred. He said, "They assigned one of my detectives to that case to kind of gather all the information in it. And you're friends with that guy. You go to birthdays with his kids. You put that guy in a bad position. when you do that. As sheriff, I'm not going to put any of my men or women in that position to investigate their own people with that severity of a case.'

"We're going to put policy in place so this will never occur again." Cox asserted.

The other candidates agreed that the case should have been turned immediately over to the state police.

Police Accountability Board Members Selected

By Dick Myers Editor

With a July 1 legislatively-mandated deadline looming, the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) on June 28 appointed a nine-member Police Accountability Board (PAB) and also members to the Administrative Charging Committee (ACC) and the trial board. All were mandated by the Maryland General Assembly as part of police reform.

As part of the decision, the BOCC appointed former commissioner and deputy county administrator Wilson Parran to be the PAB chairman. Parran most recently chaired the county's redistricting committee.

Other appointments were:

- •Voter District 1 for a term of one year -- Suzanne Benedict
- •Voter District 3 for a term of two years -- Brian Cedar
- •Voter District 2 for a term of three years -- Norman Dorn
- •Voter District 3 to the charging committee for a term of three years -- Alphonso Hawkins
- •Voter District 2 for a term of one year -- Quentin Jones, Jr. Ir
- •Voter District 2 for a term of two years -- Susan Justice
- •Voter District 2 for a term of one year -- Dawn Lister
- •Voter district one for a term of three years -- Wilson Parran, chairperson
- Stacey Stump from Voter District 1 to the charging committee for a term of three years.
- •Trial Board Retired judge Larry Lampson.

Cedar and Hawkins are retired police officers. Five of the appointees are minorities, including Parran. Five are female.

Sixty people applied and a committee consisting of members of the Democratic and Republican central committees, the NAACP and FOP reviewed the applications and made the recommendations.

Commissioner President Buddy Hance, after the appointments, said regarding the cost of the new boards, "Nobody knows what it's going to really entail," adding, "but mostly I want to thank the citizens for their involvement, because we couldn't have gotten to where we are today without them."

Hance added, "This is their process to make sure that we hold our police officers accountable and that everybody understands and has been treated fairly and equally."

Commissioners Propose Town Center Changes

Alters Prince Frederick, Lusby and Solomons

By Dick Myers Editor

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC), following an earlier decision to reduce the size of Huntingtown, at their June 28 meeting also decided to do the same for Prince Frederick, Lusby and Solomons. The recommendations will go to the planning commission and ultimately a joint public hearing.

The earlier decision removed two pieces of property owned by Commissioner Kelly McConkey and Huntingtown High School, all on the east side of Routes 2/4 from the town center. The Mc-Conkey properties have been the subject of a protracted ethics legal challenge.

The commissioners at the earlier meeting had decided to eliminate the proposed second phase expansion of Prince Frederick that would have included land along Route 231 out the College of Southern Maryland. There was, however, some discussion about pitting two parcels near the Stoakley Road and Prince Frederick Boulevard intersection that were in phase two into the much smaller phase one expansion.

At the June 28 meeting, the BOCC decided against that out of fear that it could result in extensive residential development of those tracts.

The two parcels are 92 and 44 acres.

Commissioner Chris Gadway, who originally brought up the idea, said, "I really liked the concept of having these areas available for (an) employment center. I believe that was my thought process, employment center and light industrial, light manufacturing, something like that."

But on further thought, Gadway

County Administrator Mark Willis

added, "If it's going to end up being full blown residential, I'd just as soon leave it out."

County Administrator Mark Willis noted that putting a piece of property in the town center didn't dictate what that property's zoning would become. "I think the biggest misconception is that when you incorporate anything into the town center, that it automatically is high density. The reality is, nothing happens until you, the commissioners decide what you want the density and the zoning to be."

But concerns about what a future board might do led the commissioners to decide to leave those two parcels out of the town center.

At the June 28 meeting the BOCC also decided to remove land on the south side of Lusby near the funeral home from the Lusby Town Center. Also, they removed sone land on Dowell peninsula from the Solomons Town Center, both out of concern they could be developed with high density residential.

Supreme Court Rulings Will Affect Maryland Elections

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

Last week was one of the most monumental in the recent history of the Supreme Court when majorities of justices eliminated 50 years of nationwide abortion rights by reversing the iconic Roe vs. Wade decision while in almost the same stroke striking down a strict New York statute that required citizens who wanted a permit to carry a concealed weapon to provide a substantial reason to the government as to why they should be able to exercise their 2nd Amendment rights.

Neither long standing practice was constitutional, the High Court ruled.

A local political science professor said both rulings by the court would have far reaching affects in Maryland, particularly in the rapidly approaching primary and general elections.

"It was an eventful week," said Todd Eberly, of St. Mary's College of Maryland. "Maryland is clearly a state that protects abortion rights.

"The question now is if Maryland becomes a state where women can come if their state bans abortion."

The likelihood that lawmakers will move to expand abortion rights and services in Maryland is a strong one, political observers have said, and the ruling will probably motivate Democrats to vote this elections season more so than they would have normally.

"Democratic candidates will be on the offensive" to press for more abortion rights and services, Eberly said. "That's a conversation that no Republican wants to have."

This is important for the supposed Republican front runner to succeed Gov. Larry Hogan, Kelly Shulz, as she has said she supports existing state law on abortion but is unlikely to go on record in support of expanding those rights, which would run afoul of many in her party's base.

State Delegate Dan Cox, however, who Eberly said is the insurgent Republican candidate in the governor's race, could benefit in the primary with his much more conservative stance against abortion.

The decision overturning Roe vs. Wade makes the political situation for Shulz more difficult to take the governorship, Eberly said, than it was before the ruling.

"Cox could win the primary," Eberly said. "It's even odds for either one to win the primary now.

"But Cox is not going to win the general election."

The High Court decision in favor of the New York State Rifle and Piston Association would have the same affect for Maryland as it does for the state involved in the case.

Maryland also has a "good and substantial reason" clause to successfully apply for a concealed carry permit and is among the most restrictive in the nation.

The court's latest ruling was "at odds with where most Maryland law-makers are and where most Maryland residents are," Eberly said.

"But the law is going to have to be challenged or overturned; the court has ruled."

Politicians on both sides of the aisle have taken to social media over the rulings.

Attorney General Brian Frosh said the gun ruling was a step backwards for Maryland.

"If the norm is that people can carry firearms, our neighborhoods, our streets and other public places will become more dangerous," Frosh said. "It will make the lives of law enforcement more difficult and more perilous.

"The epidemic of gun violence sweeping our nation demonstrates daily the folly of introducing more guns into this boiling cauldron."

Frosh added that Maryland laws on guns had been effective.

"Maryland, like many other states, has enacted common sense gun laws that place the lives and safety of our residents first," Frosh said. "They have been proven to reduce gun violence.

"We will examine [the] ruling to determine its impact in our state, and we will continue to fight to protect the safety of Marylanders."

St. Mary's Delegate Matt Morgan said the ruling would benefit law-abiding citizens who wanted to protect themselves.

"Maryland has only issued 24,000 concealed carry permits," Morgan said in a statement. "Virginia has issued 718,000 permits, and neighboring Pennsylvania has given a whopping 1.49 million concealed carry.

"Yet their murder rates are significantly lower, and the disparity can especially be seen clearly in areas like Baltimore City."

The ruling would help equalize the situation in favor of law-abiding citizens, Morgan said.

"Criminals do not care if they break the law," said Morgan. "Conceal carry permit holders are trying to protect themselves from those criminals."

U.S. Rep. Steny Hoyer (D-MD-5th) decried the ruling overturning Roe vs. Wade.

"This is a dark day for Americans and a frightening time for many," Hoyer said. "For nearly 50 years, Roe v. Wade has withstood its constitutional challenges, consistently affirming to women in our country that they have a right to make their own reproductive health care decisions.

Today, a generation of young women and girls -- especially in Republican states hellbent on rescinding abortion access -- will grow up facing extremist barriers when pursuing health care. The harmful ramifications of this ruling are broad and will be particularly dire to women of color and low-income women who already must deal with health care inequities on a daily basis."

Hoyer said Congress must make Roe vs. Wade a law rather than a court decision.

"Maryland must elect leadership on July 19 that will uphold the legacy of Roe. v. Wade and America must vote to expand our Democratic majority in Congress to codify Roe into federal law," Hoyer said. "I will do everything in my power to reach that goal."

Either way, Eberly said, the GOP face political headwinds in Maryland because of Supreme Court decisions they laud.

"Both of these decisions hurt any Republican candidate statewide in Maryland," Eberly said.

Morgan, Gowen Face Off In District 29 C Forum

By Guy Leonard Staff Writer

St. Mary's County's current, longest-serving county commissioner and the commander of Maryland's National Guard took their messages to prospective voters last week to prove that they have the vision to be the next state delegate for District 29C

Todd Morgan is term limited after 12 years on the commissioner board and Timothy Gowen still serves as Maryland's Adjutant General.

Both men have had careers dealing with Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Morgan as a businessman working in the defense contracting industry and Gowen as an engineer and aviator with the U.S. Army.

They faced each other at the June 22 St. Mary's County League of Women Voters forum at the Lexington Park Library.

"I've worked with budgets," Morgan said. "I understand your checkbooks." "I also understand your struggles."

"Gas, inflation, crime, these are the kitchen table issues people are talking about right now," Morgan continued. "With my background, I can serve the citizens of St. Mary's and Calvert County well."

District 29C also contains a portion of Southern Calvert County.

Gowen Todd Me

"I'm an American like most Americans frustrated with poor leadership in government," Gowen said. "Poor leadership is my No. 1 concern."

"Too many of our elected officials lack the competence, character or courage to properly lead in government," Gowen said.

He added that political leaders throw money at problems "and it magically falls into the hands of their supporters."

"When you lack character you tend to make self-serving decisions," said Gowen. "When you lack courage, you tend to be risk averse."

Being able to take risks was critical to making progress, Gowen said.

"I want to replace the Solomons Island Bridge, I want to repair the Police Reform and Accountability Act... I want to ensure our schools are safe, transparent and accountable," said Gowen. "Most of all I want to reduce the cost of living for Marylanders.'

Both men saw getting a new bridge across the Patuxent River as a top priority; Gowen said St. Mary's residents were most concerned about crime, whereas in Calvert the major issue was the bridge replacement.

"I will be the point person on it," Gowen said of the bridge project. "This will be my main initiative."

Of the police reform act, Gowen said it was "counterproductive."

"Looking at the rising rate of crime... there's probably a better way of doing things."

Morgan said the bridge replacement, quality of education and taxes were the biggest issues he saw in Calvert County, similarly in St. Mary's they were taxes, transportation and education.

Morgan was asked if he would press for a law to aid in homeownership and enforce rent control.

"This is a free market, the marketplace has a right to adjust itself." Morgan said in opposition to rent control.

Morgan supported the idea, though, of finding ways to assist with homeownership, either through specialized loan or grant programs.

On the issue of bringing in state funding to support a YMCA in Lexington Park, Gowen said he "wanted to see a return on investment" to justify spending on the project.

"I supported the YMCA," Morgan said. "I am not in support of tax payer dollars funding it.

"Right now, the [construction] bill is going to be $17 million to the tax payer,"

Both men agreed that construction of FDR Boulevard had taken too long.

Gowen said he might be able to influence infrastructure priorities in both counties, but ultimately it was a decision for the county commissioner boards to make.

"Once the county decides I'm going to work with them to get the funding necessary to meet their objectives," Gowen said.

Morgan said counties had other options open to them for funding projects besides the state.

"When we need to do something, we put our CIP [Capital Improvement Plan] together and we prioritize them and put a bond bill together and go to Annapolis," Morgan said. "That bond bill is approved at the discretion of the delegation.

"But we can self-fund them through other methods such as paygo funding."

Local Housing Market Strong Amid National Economic Uncertainty

As fears of a recession loom across the country, the Southern Maryland housing market has already begun showing some new trends.

Although the market is still busy, as would be anticipated at this time of year, it appears that the impacts of economic uncertainty have started to impact our region.

Based on the most recently available data provided to the Southern Maryland Association of REALTORS® (SMAR), the Southern Maryland region saw a total sold dollar volume decrease of approximately 2.84 percent year-over-year, for a total of $272.4 million sold.

The region has also begun to see active inventory grow, but new listings have slightly slipped. Year-over-year, active listings are up approximately 8.45 percent, and new listings are down 9.96 percentr.

Approximately 624 units were sold over the last month in Southern Maryland.

Months of supply indicate that we are still in an unhealthy seller's market, with approximately 0.81 months of supply available. The amount of supply will likely continue rising and reach healthier levels as new regulations begin to drive the market.

Homes are still moving relatively quickly from the market, as the average days across the region saw a slight drop from last year, down from 12 to 10 days on average.

Over 87 percent of all homes that sold last month were on the market for 20 days or less.

One sign that the market is slowing is seeing a decrease in the sold price to original list price ratio. This variable helps illustrate how much flexibility is in the market between buyers and sellers, and it decreased year-over-year from 102 percent to 101.4 [ercent

The average sold price and median sold price both saw increases, up 8.95 percent and 9.93 percent, respectively.

This could be the result of numerous factors, however, economic uncertainty paired with higher interest rates often leads fewer people to buy or sell homes. Seeing inventory begin to sit for lengths of time we saw pre-pandemic might become more common in the coming months.

As interest rates rise, consumers will not be able to afford nearly the same home price that they used to. Experts from the National Association of REALTORS® have emphasized the need to increase oil supplies to help tame inflation and prevent mortgage rates from rising more.

"While our economy struggles with recession and while interests are increased to curb that economic factor, buyers should not wait to enter into homeownership," SMAR's 2021-2022 President Gregg Kantak said. "The impact of higher interest rates may result in potentially less purchase power, but the power still exists, and the time to purchase remains now. This is not a wait-and-see moment, but it is ripe with opportunity, and your Realtor® can help you achieve your homeownership goal."

July 4: Time to Celebrate Our Country

Enjoy Fireworks in Solomons and Chesapeake Beach

The fireworks tradition is continuing in Solomons this 4th of July weekend and returning to Chesapeake Beah after a COVID hiatus.

Last year the fireworks in Solomons had been cancelled only to be resuscitated with the single-handed resolve of businessman Kyle Webber. He was able to raise enough money to pull off the tradition that had been going on for more than 30 years.

"I got involved last year because I really liked the fireworks at Solomons. I grew up on the other side of the river in St. Mary's County and I watched them every year. It was always a real treat and I just thought they needed some help, and I could maybe chip in," he said

Webber joined the Solomons Business Association (SBA) last year and partnered with them for the event that SBA has run for years.

About last year, Webber said, "I would say it was amazing, but I think I'm partial. We were able to get the fireworks back. Not only that, we did musical performances, we had a shuttle and offsite parking."

This year Webber is organizing things along with other SBA members.

Vandy Young, SBA president, said compared to previous events, this year "in fact it'll be slightly higher in the sense that the fireworks will be the same, but there'll be a lot more facilities on the island, which we haven't been able to fund before, that we can now."

The fireworks display alone costs $4,000. A number of sponsors, in addition to an annual contribution from the county, enable SBA to put on the event for the area that pulls people into Solomons not only for the fireworks, but to spend the day shopping and eating at the island's restaurants.

The event has in the past drawn more than 10,000 attendees.

For the first time it will have hospitality tents. "That's for anybody to pass by if they need a little bit of shade, if they need some sanitizer, if they need to sit down for a minute. There's water to be had. It's just a way of making sure that people don't become overheated and over exhausted," Young said.

Webber said things get underway on July 4 at 10 a.m. with a flag racing ceremony at the watermen's monument. That will be followed by a prayer walk organized by the SBA in conjunction with Southern Calvert Baptist Church and local leaders. It will end at the Pier Restaurant where "there will be a small reception with light refreshments and it's open to the Webber said the walk "is just a chance for us to commemorate people who have perished as a result of suicide or drug abuse or mental health issues, to kind of have public discourse about something that is a very difficult subject."

That will be followed at noon with a boat parade

From noon to 4 p.m., Webber said, "We are going to have a really cool thing for kids. They can go on a secret mission. We've got some reenactors who are going to be at the Calvert Marine Museum, and the kids will be able to go to them to get a secret mission. They're going to have to visit three businesses on the island and give them a pass phrase. And then once they give the pass raise, they'll receive a pass phrase back, and then they bring those pass phrases back to the reenactors who will give them a, a gold coin.'

The island also will be alive with the sound of music. "The whole north half of the boardwalk will be wired for sound," he said.

"We have all local performers," Webber said, with "Stormy in the Blue Skies" starting things off at 7:30 p.m. They will be followed by "Unclouded Day," and then two solo artists, Bethany Yeh and Janet Allen, who will sing the National Anthem right before the fireworks go off at dusk.

The fireworks will be handled by the same company that has entertained the viewers in the past.

Parking will be at two locations, Anne Marie Garden and Glascock field. A bus will shuttle people to Patuxent Plaza from 4 to 8. And a trolley will run from there and stop art Glascock Field and other locations. The trolley will also run from 10 to midnight to bring people back.

For those who park at Anne Marie Garden, it is recommended they take the shuttle back at 8 and watch the fireworks either from Patuxent Plaza or Anne Marine Garden.

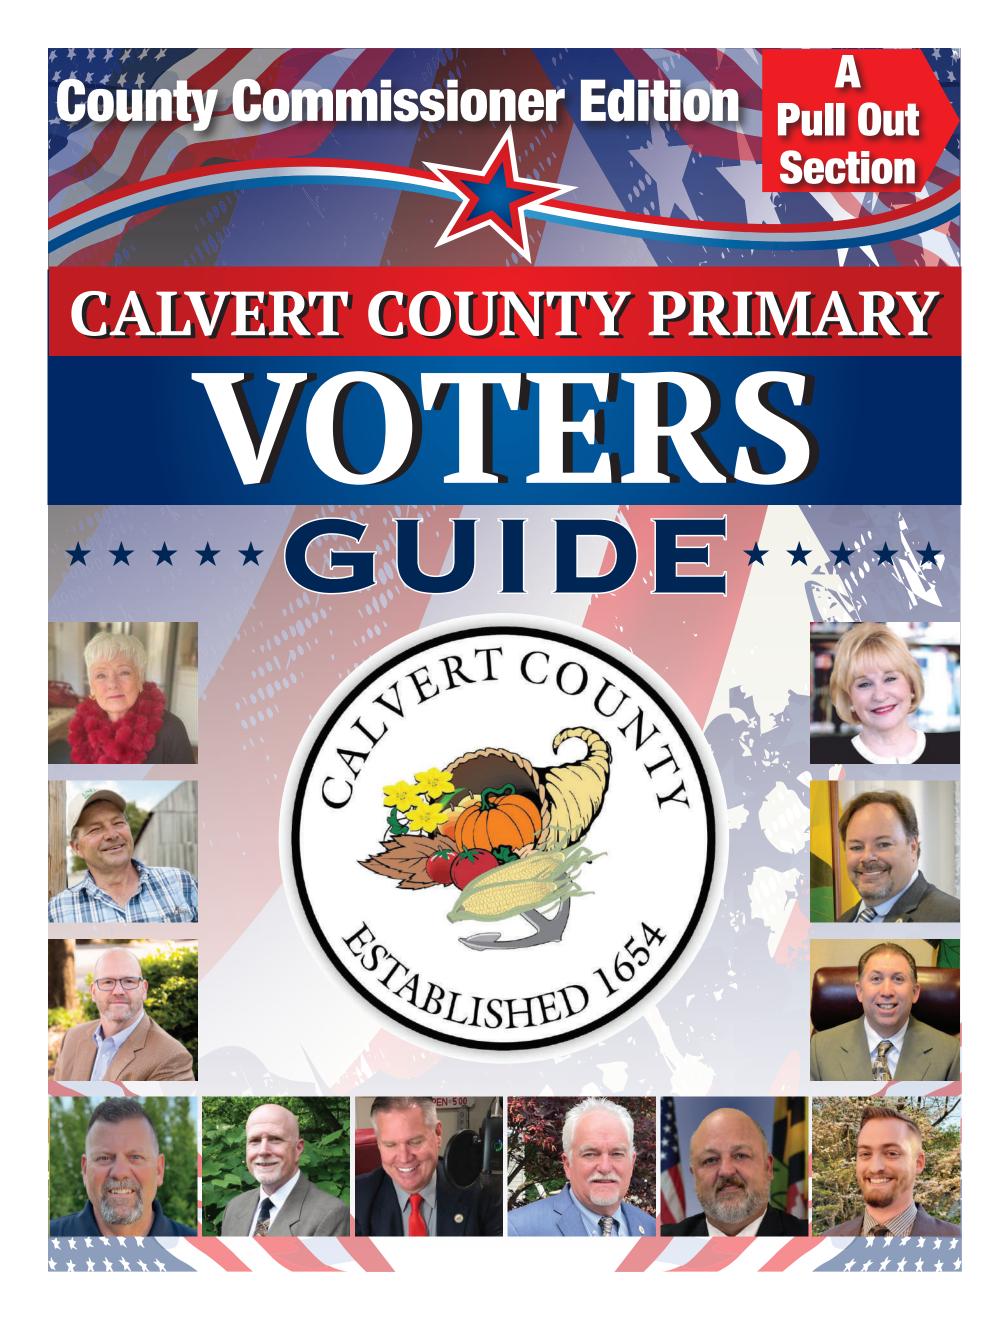

Questions can be emailed to solomonfireworks@gmail.com.

The return of the Chesapeake Beach fireworks will be Sunday, July 3 at dusk. A good viewing place is at Kellam's Field behind town hall and across the street from the water park. There's parking and you can take a blanket or folding chair to the field to watch. Alcohol is not allowed in the park.

Another good spot to watch is at Rod "N Reel Resort. Fireworks can be viewed anywhere on the property. They're featuring Rock the Dock with Eclipse, a journey tribute band from 6 to 10 p.m. on the rooftop of the parking garage, a spectacular viewing spot. There's also a cornhole tournament at 2 p.m.

REPUBLICAN CALVERT COUNTY VOTE RESPOND TO K

Earl "Buddy" Hance

Paul Harrison

Todd Ireland

Patrick Flaherty

Steve Jone

1. IS THE CALVERT COUNTY GOVERNMENT RIGHT-SIZED, TOO SMALL, OR TOO LARGE? PLEASE EXPLAIN.

AT-LARGE

MYRA GOWANS

Calvert has approximately 1,302 employees spread over 11 departments. For the administration's standards and goals it appears the government is right-sized at the current time to support the County's essential institutions and keep them strong.

EARL "BUDDY" HANCE

Government should be sized to meet citizen's needs and is affordable. There are currently some wants by staff but we currently are only adding those positions that are absolutely necessary and can be funded by current revenues or funded by other sources.

PAUL HARRISON

Government creates rules and hurdles and then hires a person to enforce the rules and then another to provide help navigating the rules, inevitably growing larger and more expensive as our local government has. We should strive for the smallest government possible. Areas that do not directly benefit citizens (Planning & Zoning) should shrink and a portion of that budget should go to areas that do (Parks & Recreation, Office of Aging, Public Works).

TODD IRELAND

I tend to believe the Calvert County government is about the right size. We have grown accustomed to have certain services provided to our citizens that are likely not afforded to citizens of other counties throughout the state. A small example of this is the services rendered by the employees at the various convenience centers throughout our county. How many times have you seen them help others, specifically, the elderly, unload their refuse into the compactor? Another example are the parks afforded to us at no additional cost for our recreation be it sports, the playgrounds or for walking to exercise and to unwind after a long day.

1ST DISTRICT

PATRICK FLAHERTY

Too large. With hundreds of millions from Dominion/BHE, the BOCC went on hiring and spending sprees.

Spending several millions of dollars on a golf course clubhouse when a much less expensive and modest building would do, which would as well compete with private businesses for the same consumer dollars. County can't pay a high enough wage to attract the necessary staffing for the swimming pools and parks, yet spends millions for unneeded expansions. From a $342 million budget, a paltry $4.2 million for paving/infrastructure. No tax relief, no debt reduction. Nothing for the people, except for those within government.

MIKE HART

Because of Federal and State Government requirements, I believe it is the right size.

STEVE JONES

Calvert County Government is assessed every year for potential increases and or decreases in staff. For the most part I believe that all the jobs are performed to the citizens satisfaction. I would like to see County Government Planning and Zoning opened at least one day per month on a weekend. This would prevent our citizens from having to take off work while submitting requests for permits etc. This would also apply to any County service that will serve the citizens at a more convenient time.

2ND DISTRICT

MARK COX

In order to make an informed decision, I believe that discussions must first take place with the County Administrators and the Department Heads. I would like to see a more streamlined communication process between departments.

CHRIS GADWAY

Before I was a commissioner, I would have answered the question as too large. Now that I seen the great people working and the extent of their work, I believe it is just right. The people we have employed in the county are amazing and their effectiveness in providing customer service is incredible. We currently have openings for many positions. If you are looking for a great local new job, please visit www.calvertcountymd.gov.

3RD DISTRICT

CATHERINE GRASSO

Calvert County government is the right size to address the needs of our community.

2. IS THE COUNTY IN THE PO-SITION TO OVERCOME THE PO-TENTIAL LOSS OF REVENUE FROM DOMINION WHEN THE CURRENT PILOT ENDS?

AT-LARGE

Property taxes account for 61 percent of Calvert's revenue. Exelon and Dominion (Calvert's two utilities) are the backbone of our property assessments and the significant revenue funding the BOCC's Operating and Capital Budget. The cost to run Calvert County is over ONE THIRD OF A BILLION DOLLARS. Dominion's Pilot Plan was ill conceived and the negotiation by and between the last Director Of Economic Development alongside Dominion's accountants/negotiators/lawyers was doomed from the Opening Strategy Session. It's not a case of "when" the Pilot ends. The BOCC mandates the Budget be approved and if a significant source does not come from Dominion's assessment of BILLIONS in Property Value citizen taxes will rise, the very outcome the citizens cannot afford.

EARL "BUDDY" HANCE

We are currently in the process of determining what the future revenues will be from Dominion. The county is in excellent fiscal shape and will be able to adapt if there is a reduction. In the past three years we have always taken part of surpluses and placed them into the rainy day fund in case there is a reduction in revenues from any source.

PAUL HARRISON

According to the County's FY23 budget, Dominion (now Berkshire) will pay $62,785,000 in taxes to Calvert County, that is $760K less than they paid in FY22. As a reminder, that amount is a 42% discount to what they should have paid on facility completion in 2017. According to the Commissioners at a recent candidate forum, the PILOT is currently being renegotiated through a hired consultant. I am not sure why we are taking this route since the original PILOT called for full payment of property taxes at expiration, especially since energy prices are at an all time high. Do you get a discount on property taxes? I don't.

COMMISSIONER CANDIDATES EY-QUESTIONS

Chris Gadway Catherine Grasso

TODD IRELAND

Fortunately, the budget for the county this past cycle was balanced. I'm not exactly sure what the shortfall will be with the loss of revenue from the Dominion PILOT. A study is being done by an outside entity, which will help Calvert County to better negotiate with Dominion in the future. As I have said multiple times in the past the last action I want to have to take is raising taxes. Tough decisions must be made when putting the budget together. Every department, the school board, the sheriff's office and anyone else involved in the budget process wants a slice of the pie.

1ST DISTRICT

PATRICK FLAHERTY

We are in a terrible position. A disaster in the making, the path already set upon, by the current and past BOCC. Hundreds of millions received from Dominion/BHE, frittered away. Instead of conserving what was a windfall of revenue, planning for the long term; government expansion, unnecessary building constructions, special projects, ruled the day. Unending justifications for everything. Nothing for the people in the way of roads infrastructure, reducing debt, or real tax relief. Everything though for those within government, taking care itself, first and foremost. Fiscal prudence thrown out the window. Hey, but the budget is, "balanced", right? Right?

MIKE HART

Yes, we have known about the potential loss of revenue and have been preparing for that. If there is a loss in revenue, we will be able to adjust as needed.

STEVE JONES

I don't believe that we are ever ready for a decrease in revenue. Kerwin in itself will cause a second financial issue on top of the loss of the Dominion funding. There will need to be a cut in budget for a balance.

MARK COX

We are currently in renegotiation with Berkshire Hathaway Energy. My hope is that the proposal will be well thought out so that it is a benefit to the citizens of Calvert County.

CHRIS GADWAY

While the PILOT program is coming to an end soon, the taxes from Dominion will continue to come in. I do not foresee an unplanned loss of revenue to the county.

3RD DISTRICT

CATHERINE GRASSO

I have followed the county's budget for the past few years and find our county has a fiscally responsible approach to budgeting. I have a strong budgeting background that I will bring to the table.

3. WHAT IS YOUR OPINION ABOUT THE CURRENT COUNTY GROWTH POLICY AS EVIDENCED IN THE COUNTY'S MASTER PLAN, ZONING ORDINANCE AND TOWN CENTER PLANS?

AT-LARGE

MYRA GOWANS

As Founder, Calvert Citizens United as well as Candidate, I witnessed hardworking citizens stand against the 2019 BOCC while simultaneously financing our attorney, G. Macy Nelson in the matter of CCU v. the BOCC. Throughout 2017 to 8/5/2019 our citizen/home-owners pleaded, begged and attempted to reason with the BOCC, the Planning Commission, Planning and Zoning along with the Baltimore paid consultants to NOT approve the Comprehensive Plan which would promote the massive, unrestricted buildout of Calvert, the smallest and most fragile county in Maryland with 126 square miles of wetlands and watersheds that filterthe Bay and River. All this to no avail. The Plan passed by a 3/2 margin.

EARL "BUDDY" HANCE

I have opposed all proposed town center expansions because I believe our citizens want to see our towns retain. their small town feel. Also with the current TDR requirements for town centers we are not just transferring density to the town centers but because of the disparity we are actually adding buildout population. Our topography and geography limit our ability to relieve traffic issues caused by additional growth. In order to protect our rural character we must take into account the impact high density has on our infrastructure and what steps will have to be taken to maintain that rural feel that our citizens treasure.

PAUL HARRISON

It is a mistake to concentrate development in the town centers, especially Prince Frederick with our aging sewer system and long neglected (until recently) stormwater management efforts. Development creates congestion on Route 4 to frustrate commuters and high density housing is antithetical to our rural character and the community spirit we cherish. However, zoning regulations, reviews and the TDR program have perverted the costs to build single family housing developments to house teachers, nurses, police officers and other noble professions.

Developers favor higher density housing so that development costs can be spread over more units. My sense is that the farmers have been shortchanged by giving up their development rights to the TDR program.

TODD IRELAND

Any growth needs to be thought out and well planned. The current issues with infrastructure need to be addressed and we need to ensure we don't fall any further behind the ball than we already are. The current master plan mentions vibrant town centers which afford residents the opportunity to walk to dinner, to the grocery store, to shop, to parks etc. Currently we do not have anything of the sort. I believe first and foremost the needs of the citizens of Calvert County need to be considered when planning future projects. The town centers were recently revisited during a BOCC meeting. Some of the town centers were reconfigured, boundaries were changed, and others were separated from one another.

1ST DISTRICT

PATRICK FLAHERTY

That it needs overhauled to seriously scale back high density housing which does nothing for the quality of life that Calvert County so prides itself. High density housing increases traffic congestion, streets become crowded, parking becomes a significant issue, stresses resources. Not all high density housing is affordable to "low-income families" as advocates contend. I'd postulate that advocates of high density housing live in single family homes with spacious yards, and will not be affected by the building of these cramped living housing units. As some advocates might say, "high density housing, and smart growth, are great for other people."

MIKE HART

We are outgrowing our infrastructure. Traffic is already an issue and I don't support any growth that would add to this ongoing problem.

STEVE JONES

Growth is at .05 (half) of a percent. We have recently increased the TDR cost to the consumer to 100 percent in some cases. This policy will push out our children and the middle class and will only allow room for the above average income or the wealthy. Zoning is not completed, and this is what will dictate growth. We have never had controlled growth. We need to have a set number of building permits per year. This will allow us to truly control growth now and know what our population and growth rate will be next year or 20 years from now.

MARK COX

We need to reevaluate the county's master plan. We must keep in mind smart growth and ensure that proper infrastructure is in place to support such growth.

CHRIS GADWAY

I am against the current master plan expansions. So much so that I have already taken steps to either roll back town centers or eliminate the planned expansion of them. I will continue to ensure the work is done to keep Calvert's Rural Character.

3RD DISTRICT

CATHERINE GRASSO

High-density growth and too much traffic is spoiling our rural community. We need a pause on development, evaluate moving forward, take into consideration what our citizens want and proceed strategically.

We need to take a look at the laws and regulations that are on the books now as to how many residences can be built on an acre and change them. Fourteen residences per an acre is too much.

As a county, we do not have the infrastructure to accommodate the growth that is happening in our county.

4. IF AS COUNTY COMMISSIONER YOU DISAGREE WITH SOMETHING THAT THE SCHOOL BOARD DOES, WOULD YOU VOTE TO WITHHOLD FUNDING UNTIL YOUR CONCERNS ARE ADDRESSED?

AT-LARGE

MYRA GOWANS

Negotiations need to begin with the newly elected BOCC and the Maryland State Department of Education to get a handle on the School budget and the financing thereof. There are questions about "rounding up" (full-time equivalent student numbers), the costs associated with the Kirwan Plan, fuel costs and the like. The BOCC and the BOE need to meet bi-monthly to solidify and promote transparency for our taxpaying citizens. Roughly 36 percent of Calvert's budget funds the Public Schools; the BOCC is obligated to understand every nickel before release.

The BOCC cannot withhold funding from the BOE because of mandates established by Maryland State Board of Education. On behalf of Calvert taxpayers, this directive should be legally evaluated.

EARL "BUDDY" HANCE

I would not deny funding for education because of a disagreement between the Board of Education and the Board of County Commissioners.

PAUL HARRISON

I think we are missing an opportunity to exercise the important role of the Commissioners and that is to oversee areas where County tax dollars are spent and according to Article 66B, "to promote the health, safety, morals and general welfare" of the community. I think it is incumbent upon the Commissioners to speak out against incongruent issues, hold necessary discussions and hearings, pursue litigation where needed, and even withhold funding to preserve and protect Calvert County from those policies and practices that are hurting communities in other areas of Southern Maryland, Maryland and America.

TODD IRELAND

I believe it is essential for the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners to have an open line of communication with the Calvert County Board of Education. The majority of school board funding is mandated by the state through the maintenance of effort agreement. The Kirwan funding amount is not yet determined; however, it is believed it will pose a significant increase to the current BOE budget. If I had a concern and/or disagreed with the school board on a particular issue, I will ask questions, evaluate the situation and decide the best course of action from there.

1ST DISTRICT

PATRICK FLAHERTY

Absolutely. It is obvious the "Elected", Calvert County BOE, does not represent the best interests of the taxpayer, parents of the children, or the whole of the student body, but rather the forcing of radical indoctrination agendas which it has no business doing, instead of focusing on "education". Discipline has been thrown out the window in favor of not hurting 'Johnny's or Suzie's' "feelings". Parents demanding, that discipline be brought back and exercised against those students causing disruptions, or bullying, fall upon deaf, unsympathetic, ears. To change behavior, as with a child, withholding what they want gets their attention.

MIKE HART

I would never allow the children's needs to not be met however, I would not fund anything I believe would have a direct negative effect on the children.

STEVE JONES

No this will only hurt the students and teachers. The issues need to be addressed at the polls. Vote for the candidate that most represents you as a voter.

MARK COX

The role of The Board of County Commissioners is to fund the MOE. The Board of Education then has full discretion on how those funds are used. I believe we need to increase efforts to enhance communication and transparency between the two Boards. We all must work together to ensure that the School Board's vision puts our children first.

CHRIS GADWAY

Since being a commissioner, I have voted against budget adjustments for the Board of Education. Some of the reasons include the BOE limiting public comment and dedicating funds to students of a specific color and specific gender.

3RD DISTRICT

CATHERINE GRASSO

Absolutely! It is up to the Board of County Commissioners to be stewards of the tax paying public's money and listen to what they want for their children. I will always make sure that our children have what they need for education success.

Third Commissioner District candidates Kelly McConkey and Evan Turzanski did not respond to the request for answers to the questions.

American Legion Post 206 Donates to Meals on Wheels

American Legion Stallings-Williams Post 206 on June 17 donated $10,000 to Calvert Meals on Wheels (CMOW) at the post's monthly meeting.

The check was presented to CMOW President Shirl Hendley by Commander Scott Deacon and Fred Bumgarner, member, American Legion Stallings-Williams Post 206. CMOW presented the post with a certificate that read, "In grateful recognition of your continued generous support to CMOW."

Commander Deacon said, "The post is pleased to help reduce food insecurity for the county's homebound, including the elderly, Veterans, and Veteran families. We honor the Post 206 members who volunteer with CMOW." To fund this donation, the post hosts various fundraising events such as golf tournaments, dinners, breakfasts, karaoke, and dances.

Cavert Meals on Wheels' mission is to help homebound citizens who have difficulties preparing meals to live more independently. CMOW delivers a meal and a smile five days a week. CMOW is a volunteer organization governed by a Board of Directors. In addition to drivers who deliver meals, volunteer route coordinators manage eight delivery routes throughout the county. CMOW works very closely with the Calvert County Office on Aging. This office provides meals to designated locations for driver pickup, is the central contact point for new clients, and distributes monthly menus. CMOW is a United Way Agency and participates in the Maryland Charities and Combined Federal Campaigns.

The Stallings-Williams American Legion Post 206, located in Chesapeake Beach, is Calvert County's largest Post. Since its beginning in 1946, the Post has hosted Memorial and Veterans Day services, decorated the graves of all known veterans at local cemeteries, hosted annual Flag Day events, and supported active duty military, Veterans, and Veteran families. The Post also awards collegiate scholarships and financially supports many community projects and National American Legion Veteran and youth programs.

Phyllis Jean Smith

On June 22, 2022, Phyllis Jean Smith departed for her heavenly home at age 86. Born March 3, 1936, in Ayden, North Carolina, to parents Luther and Olive Stocks.

Phyllis married her college sweetheart, Charles Edward Smith when they attended East Carolina University in Greenville, North Carolina. They made a life for themselves while raising their daughter, Dianna Smith-Keith, who now resides in Tallahassee, Florida, and son, Dana Samuel Smith, who resides in Harwood, Maryland.

They relocated to Harwood, Maryland, after Charles completed his education at the University of Tampa to a long career at Southern High School. Phyllis also made a career of over 25 years in the education system. She moved up the ranks, starting as a school librarian to the principal secretary of Southern High School. Phyllis also worked as a CAT South as Principals' Secretary for years before retirement.

It was her love of reading books and knowledge of the library system at the school that led to one of her most outstanding achievements. Phyllis was instrumental in developing and creating the Christian library at Edgewater Baptist Church. She took a room that was once the pastor's office and built a library that any age could borrow from. She started a crusade to collect, buy, categorize, and manage the library for several years.

Phyllis also had a great passion for showing and raising horses. She developed this love from her daughter, Dianna, who showed horses as a child and as an adult. That was when she fell in love with a pony named Patches. She continued a show ring career with Patches for many years, many championship achieving awards. Phyllis was very involved with The Southern Anne Arundel Pony Club, held at Oakcrest Farms in Harwood, Maryland, helping mentor many of the younger and older equestrians.

Phyllis' greatest passion in life was the love of her savior, Jesus Christ. No matter what city or state Phyllis was in, she found a church to join and instantly made a family within it. The love of so many people created many lasting relationships she held throughout her life. Phyllis was very involved in every activity. She was known as "the organizer" and the one to bring her famous coconut cake! She was truly loved by all who knew her for her generosity and willingness to serve.

Phyllis is preceded in death by her mother, Olive Manning-Stocks. Father, Luther Stocks and brother, James L. Stocks. She is survived by her husband, Charles Edward Smith. Daughter, Dianna Lynn Smith-Keith. Son-in-law, David C. Keith. Son, Dana Samuel Smith and daughter-in-law, Joanne Smith. Grandchildren, John Wesley Fisher, Tina Marie Smith, Laura Elizabeth Smith-Beall, and her husband Thomas E. Beall IV.

Visitation will be Thursday, June 30, 2022, 6-8 p.m. at Rausch Funeral Home-Owings, 8325 Mt. Harmony Lane

Owings, MD 20736.

Funeral Service wi;; be Friday, July 1, 2022, 11 a.m. at Rausch Funeral Home-Owings.

Gilbert Raymond "Ray" Watson, Jr.

Gilbert Raymond "Ray" Watson, Jr.

Was born on August 10, 1960 and passed away on -June 20, 2022

Ray dearly loved his wife, two wonderful children and adorable grandson, Walker. After graduating from Northern High School, he quickly joined and learned the trade of plumbing. He became a craftsman at the trade and most often was in a supervisory position training other young men to become plumbers. He retired after working in that field for over 35 years. He enjoyed kayaking, boating, fishing, crabbing, and most of all, he loved going on walks on the beaches in Calvert County with his family finding shark teeth. He displayed his findings proudly in his home. In addition to his love for the Chesapeake Bay, he enjoyed as a hobby his motorcycles, trucks, cars, and hunting.

Ray made us all laugh by cracking a joke, including his quick-witted comeback jokes when you were least expecting it. He would make you laugh and put a smile on your face even in bad times. He always tried to make others feel better.

He will be greatly missed by his family and friends. He has left us all great memories to cherish forever.

May he rest in peace!

She was a lifelong animal lover nearly always having dogs, followed by cats and an affinity for birds in nature.

Dorothy married Charles Lazarz in January 1983. They loved to dance and did so frequently. They built a home together in the Chesapeake Ranch Club in 1988. Charles enjoyed his retirement golfing and flying, while she enjoyed working at O'Brien, later Remax Realty and breeding Shi-Tzu's until she retired.

Since Charles passed in 1996, she has remained in the home surrounded by the solitude and beauty of Solomons Island, her extensive gardens and the plentiful hummingbirds that visited her there.

Her son Bob found this quote written in her hand in her home after she passed away from an unknown source:

"The soul leaves the body like a schoolboy jumps through the schoolhouse door, filled with joy. There is no horror in death."

It is her families hope the rests in peace and joy.
