Development Flexibility Raises Concerns

Part of Zoning Ordinance Update

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

A proposal to create “Community Benefit Agreements” (CBAs) has raised concerns from community groups and individuals. The proposal is one of the changes proposed for the update of the county’s zoning ordinance. During the Nov. 20 planning commission public hearing on the update, all four of the persons who spoke addressed the CBAs. Based on the concerns, the commission kept the hearing record open until Dec. 20. The county commissioners have a public hearing on the zoning ordinance update scheduled for Jan. 7.

At the Dec. 3 commissioner meeting, as he had done at the planning commission public hearing, Planner III/Zoning Will Hager explained what a CBA is. “A Community Benefit Agreement or CBA is a planning tool for commercial, industrial, and institutional developments to provide flexibility in design elements. The CBA is like other land use development projects, but requires planning commission and Board of County Commissioner approval to achieve substantially higher quality development. That provides a public benefit that would otherwise not be obtained. CBA permits creative and innovative approaches to the development of commercial, industrial, and institutional uses and in growth areas encourages mixed development patterns. To avoid monotony in large developments allows the developer to take advantage of special site characteristics, locations, or land uses.

“It provides for relief from the strict application of land use standards, development regulations and performance standards found in the base zoning districts, decreases the burden created by new development on utilities and other infrastructure systems, provides a mechanism for increasing development in growth areas without adversely affecting traffic, circulation, infrastructure and public services or existing or planned adjacent development.”

Hager said the CBA’s had to be consistent with the zoning ordinance. They require county commissioner’s approval after a recommendation from the planning commission.

Hager explained that CBAs could not be used for residential development.

Commissioner Mike Hart pressed staff as to what could happen with a CBA. He wanted to know if they could circumvent the property’s zoning.

Director of Planning and Zoning Mary Beth Cook noted, “If a development wanted to exceed the size limitation of a building, say in a town center, it’s set at hypothetically a hundred thousand square feet and they wanted to do 120, they could enter into a CBA offering, providing some public benefit to kind of offset that.”

Commissioner President Buddy Hance said, “They could make sure if they wanted to go above the size limit that’s currently required, (for) that exemption we could say in return for that, we want a public park in this vicinity that would serve those residents that live near this development.”

Hart insisted, “I just don’t want to be labeled of enabling more density.”

Hager explained the CBA process. He said, “Prior to submittal, the applicant shall hold a public meeting with affected property owners, county staff, representatives of business and community organizations to discuss the CBA project’s potential concerns and/or site design alternatives. The purpose of the public meeting is to generate ideas and provide assistance. Decisions are non-binding and cannot overrule the provisions of the ordinance or town center ordinances and submission requirements for CBA proposal shall include an explanation of how the project meets the CBA criteria, a statement of benefit to the community, and a statement outlining how the CBA process is superior in this instance to base zoning.”

The proposal appears to be aimed at the possibility of luring data centers to the county. But speakers at the planning commission public hearing were skeptical.

Susan Dzurec, speaking for Keep Calvert Country, said more time was needed for review. “While we are pleased to see it does not include residential development, it is completely unacceptable to introduce such a new concept at this late date. It was our understanding that if the county does move forward with two data centers to be located in Lusby, citizens were told the county won’t need to worry about tax increases. However, the strong argument for, as Commissioner Hart stated, the need for circumventing the process to favor commercial, industrial, and institutional development in the name of supposed tax revenue contradicts the reasoning for the data centers. Any process such as the proposed CBA process which circumvent existing processes in the revised zoning ordinance, could be abused in ways not currently understood and which would not respect the will of the people.”

David Bury of Breezy Point said, “I ask that the planning commission defer on whether to include CBAs in the new zoning ordinance until the public has a much better understanding of the implications for the county.”

Myra Gowans of Calvert Citizens United, said, “CBAs have a place, they do have place because they are good for business and tax income.” But she added, “There is a board when you have a CBA. You have rules and regulations and they’re mandated by an authority. You have to be sure the authority is making these decisions for our very tiny fragile county.”

“A CBA takes a long time to come to fruition,” she added. “There’s a lot of discussion, like three, four years of discussion, and then that wouldn’t even help the county to have that happen and get stayed in the process.”

Bob Estes said he was concerned about the effect on the environment. “A small environmental issue, in a small plot of land, maybe you could ignore, but when the development becomes large to the problems, they don’t scale. It’s a little bit like rocket fuel or bombs. Each class of them, they do not scale from small to big. You have to consider them on their own. And the same is true with environmental issues.”

The concept will be considered as part of the county commissioners hearing on the zoning ordinance updates on Jan. 7.

Staggered Commissioner Terms Suggested

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

When the new Chesapeake Beach mayor and town council are sworn in later this month, all the faces will be new. Although Bruce Wahl has served before as mayor and on the council, and Eric Reinhardt has previously served on the council, the rest of the members will be new to the job.

That situation prompted Calvert County Board of County Commissioners President Buddy Hance to comment at their Dec. 3 meeting.

Hance presented a proclamation to outgoing Chesapeake Beach Mayor Pat Mahoney at the town's Nov. 21 meeting, the outgoing council's final regular session.

Hance told his board on Dec. 3, "Based on the recent election, they have an entirely new council. Mahoney stepped down. Mayor Mahoney worked in public service for over 30 years. So, we want to thank Mayor Mahoney for all this time. And as I said that night to the new incoming council, it's not as easy as it looks. You have to make tough decisions, and you get a lot of questions and calls and people want what they want and don't understand why they can't get it.

"So, I want to wish them all the best and certainly want to thank Mayor Mahoney and the outgoing counsel for their work."

Hance said the situation reiterated for him some earlier discussion about staggered terms.

"We did talk about staggered terms because Mayor Wall is the new incoming mayor of Chesapeake Beach. I want to wish him all the best. But Mayor Wall did serve on the council, was a previous mayor, but when you have a whole new board coming in, as I think that our new members will attest to, it's quite a learning curve. And it could be a shock to have five brand new commissioners that have never served come in all at one time. So maybe we will talk more about in the future how we might stagger terms on the board just to keep some continuity moving forward."

The commissioners did reject a proposal from J.C. Hooker to have three of the five commissioners be voted on just by residents of their commissioner district. Currently there is only a residency requirement for those three commissioners representing districts, but they are voted on by all county residents. The other two are at-large positions.

Hance said at the Nov. 21 town council meeting, "Tonight is the mayor's last meeting. And my last four years I've spent as president of the Board of County Commissioners, and I'm here tonight to recognize the mayor for the great working relationship that we've had. We've had great open communications, and I can tell all the mayor always had the best interest of Chesapeake Beach, always."

In the proclamation, Hance said, "Throughout his tenure, he championed local causes, enriched community life, and worked tirelessly to ensure a brighter future for all. Known as a strong advocate for open space programs and recreation, he prioritized accessible, vibrant outdoor spaces that residents and visitors alike could enjoy. His legacy includes numerous achievements from bolstering downtown development to enhancing public services. And his unwavering dedication has left a lasting impact on Chesapeake Beach."

During the town meeting, the council finalized the naming of the baseball field at Kellam's Field after Mahoney.

The current mayor and council did have a special meeting scheduled for Dec. 4 to approve a budget amendment for repairs to the tennis courts at Beach Elementary School.

Zoning Ordinance Update Nears the Homestretch

Densities 'Reduced' or 'Equivalent'

By Dick Myers
Staff Writer

With a Nov. 20 planning commission public hearing completed and a Jan. 7 county commissioners' public hearing scheduled, the county is nearing adoption of a revised zoning ordinance after several years of staff work.

That revision reflects lower or equal growth projected in the various parts of the ordinance, according to staff at the planning commission public hearing.

Planner III/Zoning Will Hager told the planners, "Broadly speaking in terms of permitted density with the provision of TDRs, every zoning district in the draft either reduces permitted residential density as compared with current regulations or equivalent."

Hager noted, "One thing that remains is a clear hierarchy where the highest permitted densities are found in the town centers, the next highest in the areas immediately surrounding town centers and then lower densities once you get out into the rural community and farm and forest districts."

He explained, "In current regulations, how much density is permitted on a parcel in the rural community district is determined by whether that parcel is inside or outside of the one-mile radius from town centers."

He further explained, "So, under current regulations, the rural community district areas outside of the one-mile radius are permitted a density of one dwelling unit per four acres with the purchase of TDRs. And within the on-mile radius, they're permitted a density of one dwelling unit per acre with the purchase of TDRs. In the draft, the one-mile radius polity has been removed and in its place is the new rural neighborhood district surrounding the town centers of Dunkirk, Owings, Huntingtown, and St. Leonard, and a reconfigured residential district surrounding the town centers of Prince Frederick, Lusby, Solomons and Chesapeake Beach."

Leonard, and a reconfigured residential district surrounding the town centers of Prince Frederick, Lusby, Solomons and Chesapeake Beach."

Hager observed, "This isn't a dramatic change. What's being changed is we're removing a flawed policy, the one-mile radius policy that...dissects parcels rather arbitrarily and replacing it with zoning districts that follow parcel boundaries."

Town center densities, based on a commissioner vote, have been reduced to four units per acre. That and some subdivision regulation changes have led Hager to conclude, "What we're looking at is a rather significant reduction in density compared to what can be done under current regulations."

Hager also clarified some of the provisions of the new Heavy Industrial Zone (I-2) in the Lusby area, in part eyeing the possibility of data centers there. He said the zone "is intended to provide for a variety of energy production and associated uses as well as light manufacturing, fabricating, processing, distributing and warehousing uses."

Hager added, "And so, in regard to what the vision is for these areas, zoned Heavy Industrial, the intent is to provide flexibility for appropriate industrial businesses that generate little traffic, create high paying jobs, and substantially contribute to the county tax base with minimal, if any, impact to residential and commercial uses. So, we're not talking about uses that you might traditionally associate with a heavy industrial area, like heavy manufacturing, asphalt plants, fossil fuel refineries, etc. But we are talking about data centers..." an establishment, facility, building or series of buildings which are part of a unified development and arranged in campus setting, engaging in the storage, management, processing or transmission of digital data and housing, computer or network equipment systems, servers, appliances, and other associated components related to digital data operations."

Hager added, "So in regards to the November 2024 draft, data center is a conditional use in the I-2 district and no longer requires special exception. Approval and conditions for data centers have been revised as well in the November draft. The conditions now read as follows: 'The data center shall be set back 200 feet from a property lines and 400 feet from any lot or parcel with a residential building or active residential building permit except for adjacent properties. under comment, ownership. Primary building facades shall include at least two of the following treatments: fenestration recesses in the building facade and broken plain or changes in building material pattern text or color or accent materials. Any noise generated by the dentist data center, including any accessory mechanical equipment, must comply with chapter 80 of the noise control ordinance of the county code."

The only testimony at the public hearing was on the proposed Community Benefit Agreements (see separate story).

Calvert Deputies Gifted Guardian Angel Safety Devices

On November 25 and 27, 2024, eighty patrol deputies and district supervisors within the Calvert County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) Patrol Division were presented with Guardian Angel Safety Devices by Honor the Blue, a Calvert County-based non-profit corporation.

The Guardian Angel, a wearable electronic device, has several safety features for Patrol deputies, including a bright red and blue LED strobe light visible from up to three miles away, day or night. It also has a runtime of up to 60 hours before the unit may be quickly recharged using a USB-C cable. The units are distributed by SafeWear, Inc., a nationally recognized provider of safety gear for first responders.

CCSO Chaplain Dave Mohler, founder, and Executive Director of Honor the Blue, stated, "These safety devices are given to CCSO Patrol Deputies and supervisors at Thanksgiving because we are indeed thankful for the men and women within our community who stand upon the Thin Blue Line. We hope and pray that the Guardian Angel devices will provide another layer of protection to our law enforcement Patrol Deputies to help ensure that each of them completes his or her shift and arrives home safely."

Sheriff Ricky Cox expressed his gratitude, saying, "We are incredibly thankful to Chaplain Mohler and Honor The Blue for their generosity and continued support of our deputies. These Guardian Angel devices are a thoughtful gift that enhances the safety of our team. Our deputies are the best around, and they work tirelessly to protect and serve our community. It's heartening to see their efforts recognized in such a meaningful way."

Honor The Blue exists to support, encourage, and celebrate the dedicated men and women who serve as police officers. William Kernozek, 94

William Michael Kernozek, 94, of Lusby, MD, passed away peacefully at his home on November 26, 2024. Born on August 16, 1930, in Springfield, MA, he was the son of William and Mary Bohnak Kernozek of Groton, CT. William was the loving husband of his second wife, Ella Mae Pruitt Kernozek, whom he married on September 3, 2003, and who preceded him in death on December 6, 2020. William was also preceded in death by his first wife, Margaret Mahoney Kernozek, son Michael Kernozek, stepson, Selby Pruitt, stepdaughter, Debrah Ann Pruitt, and his brother, Frederick Kernozek. He is survived by his children, Deborah Anne Lamontagne and William Raymond Kernozek, stepchildren, William Pruitt, Frances (Connie) Putt, and Kelvin Pruitt, as well as five grandchildren, Danielle, Hannah Lynn, William Michael, Aubrianna, and Gregory, and numerous step-grandchildren.

Immediately after his birth, his family moved to Groton, CT, where the depression forced him out of school at the 5th grade to help the family survive. He took a job with Pfizer Pharmaceuticals at age 16, married Margaret Anne Mahoney, and purchased a home in Quaker Hill, CT, near the Thames River. They raised three children, Deborah Anne and twin boys, William Raymond and Michael Thomas. Pfizer was the only employment he would ever know. After rising in the ranks to foreman, William retired from Pfizer after 37 years of service while missing only six days. After retirement he moved to Lusby, MD on waterfront property and, after the passing of his first wife, he met and married Ella Mae Pruitt when he was 73. They enjoyed 17 years of a relaxed, loving marriage until Ella's passing in 2020. William spent his remaining days in his home with assistance from Ella's daughter, Connie, and son-in-law, Ed, whom he considered his close family and who supported him through the very end. He was a very strong individual and overcame a subdural hematoma, cataracts, and prostate cancer late in life, but succumbed recently to a hip fracture complicated by late-stage dementia.

William was completely self-taught, with his interests ranging from sailing, camping, hiking, home remodeling, fine furniture making, gardening, metal detecting, coin and arrowhead collecting, and card playing. He was also a singer/songwriter from a young age and favored mostly backwoods bluegrass music. He played multiple instruments and loved singing old country and bluegrass music at local nursing homes and other venues around Southern Maryland with the love of his life, Ella Mae. In his 80s and 90s he shied away from Seniors Citizen Centers because he thought those places were for old people. His gentle demeanor and happy smile will be greatly missed, and he will be loved forever.

The family will receive friends on Wednesday, December 4, 2024, from 9:00 AM to 10:00 AM in the Mattingley-Gardiner Funeral Home, Leonardtown, MD, where a funeral service will be held at 10:00 AM in the funeral home chapel. Interment will follow at Charles Memorial Gardens, Leonardtown, MD.

Condolences may be made to the family at www.mgfh.com.

Jim Williams, 65

James William Williams, Jr., "Jim", 65, passed away on December 2, 2024, at MedStar Washington Hospital Center, Washington, D.C. Born on September 1, 1959, he was the son of Eleanor Williams and the late James William Williams Sr., and the brother of the late Gary Edward Williams.

Jim was the proud owner of Cream of the Crop Plant Nursery in Charlotte Hall, MD for over a decade, where his love for nature and vast knowledge of plants inspired countless customers. His green thumb was legendary, but his warm, uplifting spirit is what truly set him apart. In honor of Jim, Cream of the Crop will continue to whole-heartedly serve the needs of the public. Beyond his love for plants, Jim was a devoted dog owner to two German Shepherds, Dakota and Gracie. They were his loyal companions and a constant source of joy. Jim loved time spent on the water, fishing in solitude alongside his son, Seth. He also had an undeniable love for classic rock, which could often be heard blaring through his box truck while he spent his days down at his nursery. Jim's infectious personality, good spirit, and upbeat energy made him a joy to be around. He had a knack for uplifting others with his humor. He will be remembered as a hardworking man who was loved deeply and lived his life to the fullest.

Jim leaves behind his mom, Eleanor Williams, his sons, Seth and Richard, his dogs, Dakota and Gracie, as well as countless customers and friends who will forever hold him in their hearts.

FINANCIAL FOCUS®

Consider these year-end financial moves

As we enter the holiday season, your life may well become busier. Still, you might want to take the time to consider some financial moves before we turn the calendar to 2025.

Here are a few suggestions:

- Review your investment portfolio. As you look at your portfolio, ask these questions: Has its performance met my expectations this year? Does it still reflect my goals, risk tolerance and time horizon? Do I need to rebalance? You might find that working with a financial professional can help you answer these and other questions you may have about your investments.
- Add to your 401(k) and HSA. If you can afford it, and your employer allows it, consider putting more money into your 401(k) before the year ends — including “catch-up” contributions if you’re 50 or older. You might also want to add to your health savings account (HSA) by the tax-filing deadline in April.
- Use your FSA dollars. Unlike an HSA, a flexible spending account (FSA) works on a “use-it-or-lose-it” basis, meaning you lose any unspent funds at the end of the year. So, if you still have funds left in your account, try to use them up in 2024. (Employers may grant a 2½ month extension, so check with your human resources area to see if this is the case where you work.)
- Contribute to a 529 plan. If you haven’t opened a 529 education savings plan for your children, think about doing so this year. With a 529 plan, your earnings can grow tax deferred, and your withdrawals are federally tax free when used for qualified education expenses — tuition, fees, books and so on. And if you invest in your own state’s 529 plan, you might be able to deduct your contributions from your state income tax or receive a state tax credit.
- Build your emergency fund. It’s generally a good idea to keep up to six months’ worth of living expenses in an emergency fund, with the money held in a liquid, low-risk account. Without such a fund in place, you might be forced to dip into your retirement funds to pay for short-term needs, such as a major car or home repair.
- Review your estate plans. If you’ve experienced any changes in your family situation this year, such as marriage, remarriage or the birth of a child, you may want to update your estate-planning documents to reflect your new situation. It’s also important to look at the beneficiary designations on your investment accounts, retirement plans, IRAs and insurance policies, as these designations can sometimes even supersede the instructions you’ve left in your will. And if you haven’t started estate planning, there’s no time like the present.
- Take your RMDs. If you’re 73 or older, you will likely need to take withdrawals — called required minimum distributions, or RMDs — from some of your retirement accounts, such as your traditional IRA. If you don’t take these withdrawals each year, you could be subject to penalties.

These aren’t the only moves you can make, but they may prove helpful not only for 2024 but in the years to come.

Wanderings of an Aimless Mind

by Shelby Oppermann

Beautiful Distractions

When things get crazy, I try to notice and appreciate all the simple things in life like all the animals and nature around us. Right this minute for instance, Mindy is hopping around wanting to go outside with my husband. He said, “Mindy’s following me around just like a puppy”. I said, “Mindy do you want your jacket?”. Then she really started getting excited. Two weeks ago, we bought Mindy a pink quilted fleece lined jacket at Lowes. It was only $20, so I figured if she didn’t like it that somebody in the neighborhood might buy it. I put it on her one chilly night when we were sitting outside and she loved it! In fact, it was hard to get it off of her because she would lay down and look at me with a look that said “No, I am not taking this off!”. Now, all I have to do is pick it up and show it to her, and she is wiggling her body and wagging her tail for me to put it on her. I really didn’t think she would be a clothes loving dog.

Maybe it will help keep some of Mindy’s joints warm since now she doesn’t really hop around its actually more like hobbling around. Her arthritis seems to be making it harder for her to get up and walk well. And we are now thinking about the recent injection for dogs called Librela. Mindy’s Vet has recommended it at the last two visits and says it has made a big difference in some of her canine patients’ quality of life. This is what the Caninearthritis.org states about Librela, “It is a monoclonal antibody (mAb) that targets nerve growth factor (NGF) and is used to control pain in dogs with osteoarthritis (OA)”. My husband asked if maybe I could switch to that injection too. I guess Mindy and I would both be barking at doorbells on TV, and anything and everything that makes a sound.

Yesterday we had to go back to Lowes to pick out our new basement doors which really need to be replaced after 30 or more years. They were the neighbors doors before they were put in this house. An estimator had already been to the house to take accurate measurements for the installation. Naturally, we walked around the store after that and bought things we didn’t know we needed. When we got to the bird seed bags for our bird feeders, I was mesmerized with the number of birds who were living, chirping, and feeding in that area. I imagine they were bossy house wrens. At times there would be 5 or more birds eating the seeds that were all around the bags; bags that I am sure they pecked until they reached the good stuff. I took some photos, but they were so fast with their swooping from the food to the rafters that the pictures were a bit blurry.

As to nature, just in the last few days, we have noticed that all of the beautiful Red Maples that we, and our neighbors have, have lost their leaves in one fell swoop. Each tree has a bright red puddle of leaves underneath them. All the other types of trees in our yard still have many leaves hanging on for dear life, though that will change later this week with the high winds that are expected. My husband has been trying to keep up with blowing leaves every day, but even he said this morning that he will wait until the last leaves are down.

I always worry about how the squirrels are able to keep in their nests (dreys) high in the trees on windy days. Squirrels must be great builders. The squirrels also have plenty of hollow holes in the trees where they can hide too. Lately I have been a bit upset with a few squirrels who have turned one of my bird houses upside down so they can sit on it and eat the corn left on the cornstalks. I don’t begrudge them the corn, its more of how they mess up the houses. My husband had one screw in the center of the house which apparently was perfect for the squirrels to turn it upside down. The next husband Honey-Do task is a second screw in that birdhouse. Last year they ate most of a birdhouse my son made for me. I do love to watch their antics though, just as I do with the birds or Mindy. You can’t worry about life, or the world, if you have nature and animals as such beautiful distractions. I hope you have lots of beautiful distractions in the coming hectic weeks.

To each new day’s adventure, Shelby

Pianist Brian Ganz to Play Free Recital

St. Mary's College of MD Musician-in-Residence Brian Ganz will perform his only full-length evening piano recital of the semester on Thursday, December 5 at 7 pm in the Main Concert Hall of the Dodge Performing Arts Center on the college campus. The free program will feature two great piano sonatas, Beethoven's beloved "Appassionata" Sonata and Chopin's virtually unknown Sonata No. 1 in C minor. Rounding out the program will be four popular mazurkas of Chopin. For more information call (240) 895-4498 or visit bit.ly/3C69OnR.

"I am thrilled to be playing these two sonatas back to back," pianist Ganz said recently. "The Beethoven is perhaps the greatest sonata ever composed for piano. It is universally revered as a masterpiece. The Chopin, on the other hand, is so rarely played it can honestly be considered unknown. Yet it has so much beauty, so much richness and excitement to offer! And as it comes right after the Beethoven on the program, one hears the latter's influence on the young Chopin, who was only a teenager when he composed this first of his sonatas. I can promise listeners an amazing discovery of a work that deserves to be much better known than it is."

Ganz has appeared as soloist with such orchestras as the St. Petersburg Philharmonic, the National Philharmonic, the Baltimore and the National Symphonies, the City of London Sinfonia, and L'Orchestre Philharmonique de Monte Carlo. He has performed in many of the world's major concert halls and has played under the baton of such conductors as Leonard Slatkin, Mstislav Rostropovich, Pinchas Zukerman, Jerzy Semkow and Yoel Levi. A critic for La Libre Belgique wrote of Ganz's work: "We don't have the words to speak of this fabulous musician who lives music with a generous urgency and brings his public into a state of intense joy."

Santa Claus Visits Southern Maryland Dec. 10

Good boys and girls of all ages across Southern Maryland should keep their eyes on the skies as Adm. Saint Nicholas conducts pre-deployment mission planning over parts of Southern Maryland on Dec. 10 from 11:00 to 1:00 p.m. ET.

Regional residents looking up might spot Nicholas, known by his festive call sign "Claus," as he soars through the skies aboard a U.S. Navy MH-60S Knighthawk helicopter with his trusty elves and holiday helpers from NAWCAD's Air Test and Evaluation Squadron (HX) 21.

"Delivering toys to children around the world takes careful planning and strategic intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance," said Claus during a pre-flight brief with HX-21 rotary pilots and aircrew. "The aviation pros at NAWCAD make prepping for the big night a little easier."

Claus and the HX-21 crew will spread holiday cheer over the following regional locations:

11:00 – 11:30 a.m.

- Naval Air Station Patuxent River Beach House
- Driftwood Beach
- Patuxent Appeal Elementary School
- Dowell Elementary School

Adm. Santa Claus conducts pre-deployment planning near the Patuxent River in Southern Maryland during a reconnaissance mission ahead of Christmas Eve.

- Bay Montessori School
- Park Hall Elementary School
- Spring Ridge Middle School
- Naval Air Station Patuxent River Child Development Center

Children are advised to be on their best behavior as Claus finalizes his naughty list ahead of upcoming operations on Christmas Eve.

As Rudolph rests up with the reindeer crew ahead of the holiday, inclement weather may delay Santa's mission to Dec. 11 or Dec. 12, at the same time. Stay up-to-date on Santa Over Southern Maryland on the Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division's Facebook page.

HX-21 is a component of Naval Test Wing Atlantic, the test wing for Naval Air Warfare Center Aircraft Division. Nicknamed the "Blackjacks," the squadron provides developmental flight test and evaluation for all U.S. Navy and Marine Corps rotary-wing and tilt-rotor aircraft. The Blackjacks are personal favorites of Claus, who tries to visit his HX-21 friends every year. Naval Air Station Patuxent River has been home to HX-21 since 1949.

Murderer's Life Sentence to Endure

State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling announced today that a convicted murderer's sentence of life without the possibility of parole will stand. Earlier this year, Dana Collins, 63, asked the Court to reconsider his sentence stemming from a 1995 murder. The State argued against Collins's motion. The Court agreed with the State, denied Collins's motion, and kept his sentence intact as life without the possibility of parole.

In 1995, Collins lured a man outside of his home in California, Maryland, before fatally shooting him with a crossbow. Collins then dismembered the victim's body and disposed of his remains in a dumpster at a nearby school.

In July 1996, Collins entered a plea of guilty to First-Degree Murder and was sentenced to life without the possibility of parole by the Honorable Marvin S. Kaminetz. After multiple post-conviction motions filed by Collins, in March 2002 the Court of Special Appeals (now the Appellate Court of Maryland) vacated the original judgment and ordered a new trial.

In 2003, at the new trial, Collins entered a plea of "not criminally responsible." On September 12, 2003, a jury found Collins criminally responsibly and guilty of first-degree murder. In February 2004, Collins was again sentenced to life without the possibility of parole.

Since his 2003 trial, Collins has filed 15 motions, petitions, and appeals for relief. His most recent motion, filed in January 2024, was scheduled for a hearing in October of this year.

Dana Collins

During the October 2024 hearing, the State maintained that Collins has exhausted all legal avenues for reconsideration. The State successfully argued that there was no legal basis for granting Collins another reconsideration. The Court agreed with the State and denied Collins's motion, requiring Collins to continue to serve his life without the possibility of parole sentence.

Collectively, on behalf of the citizens of St. Mary's County, Senior Assistant State's Attorneys Fran Longwell and Lisa Ridge handled the 2024 matters, while former State's Attorney Richard Fritz prosecuted the case in 2003.

The Honorable Brooke Murdock presided over the 2024 hearing.

Home Invasion Suspect Arrested in Great Mills

St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office Deputies arrested Robert Eric Hyatt Jr., 38, of Fort Washington, following a 911 report of a home invasion on Friday, November 29, 2024.

Deputies from the Patrol Division responded to the 45000 block of Military Lane after receiving a call from the victim, who reported that a male suspect was attempting to enter his residence forcibly. During the 911 call, a loud disturbance was heard as the suspect forced his way into the home.

Upon arrival, deputies entered the residence, where the suspect surrendered without incident. A search revealed that Hyatt was carrying a 9mm handgun, brass knuckles, and a large knife, and he was wearing body armor.

The victim was found on the balcony of the residence, suffering from a laceration to the head and a gunshot wound to the shoulder. He was transported to an area hospital by the Maryland State Police Aviation Command.

Hyatt faces ten charges, including attempted first- and second-degree murder, first- and second-degree assault, use of a firearm in the commission of a felony, wearing bulletproof armor in the commission of a violent crime, concealing a dangerous weapon, and related burglary offenses.

Robert Eric Hyatt, Jr.

He was transported to the St. Mary's County Detention and Rehabilitation Center in Leonardtown.

The case is now being handled by the Criminal Investigations Division, with Detective Benjamin Raley serving as the lead investigator. Anyone with additional information is asked to contact Detective Raley at 301-475-4200, ext. 8076, or via email at Benjamin.Raley@stmaryscountymd.gov.

Identity Needed for Theft Suspect

The St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office requests help to identify and locate the individual shown in this series of residential video screenshots. The subject entered a residence in Clements and was seen on video stealing checks and cash.

If you recognize this individual or have information about this incident, please contact Deputy Myles Chase-Johnson at Myles.ChaseJohnson@stmaryscountymd.gov or 301-475-4200, ext. 8175. Please reference case number 2024-62712.

Tipsters can also call Crime Solvers 24/7 at 301-475-3333 or text Crime Solvers at 274637. In the message block, type "Tip239" and select SEND. After you get a response, continue your conversation.

Commissioners Look to Add More Bus Shelters

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

In approving the acceptance of state grant funding for the St. Mary's Transit System (STS) bus service, the Commissioners of St. Mary's County are also hoping to improve the waiting situation for people who use the bus system regularly by having more bus shelters for riders to use in inclement weather.

Commissioners approved $626,619 in capital construction funding and $3.1 million in operating funds for the STS bus system this week at their Dec. 3 business meeting in Leonardtown.

Public works chief Jim Gotsch said the capital funding would go to replacing one medium-sized bus and three small-sized buses.

"What about bus stops?" asked Commissioner Mike Hewitt. "Are we ever going to get more bus stops?"

Gotsch replied in the affirmative. "So we have 91 of the 119 bus stops already approved," said Gotsch. "If you drive up Route 235 and Great Mills Road you will already see signs in place."

Gotsch said the county was "piggy-backing" on a Charles County contract to build bus shelters without lights or solar power generating capacity.

Gotsch said Charles County is looking to modify their contract to eventually bring on those amenities to bus shelters, but the county could go its own way and build them now without.

"We could do it today," Gotsch said.

"I'd just like to see us build them," Hewitt said. "I've been on this for years."

Gotsch estimated that the county, using its own resources, could put out six shelters now to aid waiting passengers.

Commissioner Eric Colvin asked what it would take to go a stop-only system away from the current flag system where riders would flag down a bus.

Alison Swint, Gotsch's deputy, said it would take a major educational campaign but said she did not believe the flag system would ever completely fade away.

"In our more rural areas... it would not be reasonable to want someone to walk five miles to the bus stop," Swint said.

St. Mary's Man Heads to Space

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The Karman Line is the widely regarded defining line between the Earth's atmosphere and outer space, existing at about 62 miles above the Earth's surface.

James D. Russell, a Hollywood native and business entrepreneur with deep roots in St. Mary's County, became the 670th person last week to break that line when he and a group of fellow travelers climbed on board the New Shepherd sub-orbital rocket Nov. 22 and took off for a brief, 10-minute, mission into space.

"It's an amazing experience," Russell told The County Times of his trip into space. "In the next few decades there will be hundreds, even thousands more people making the trip into space.

"The costs will come down significantly." He had to go through a brief but intensive training program before taking the flight, which he reached out to Blue Origins in order to become a part of.

"You don't see any stars, it's completely black," Russell said. "The geographical boundaries between countries don't exist. "There was a real sense of quiet, a real sense of calm."

Russell carried seeds harvested from the grounds of Historic Sotterley Plantation. The seeds are part of an experiment to study the effects of space travel on plant growth. Upon his return, the seeds will be replanted at Sotterley, connecting his mission to the preservation of local heritage and advancing agricultural science.

"This experiment symbolizes the growth

Russell, back right, with the rest of the flight's crew and resilience of our community. It's an honor to contribute to both science and the preservation of Historic Sotterley," Russell, 40, said. "I'm looking forward to getting those back to Sotterley."

The seeds he took with him were sunflower seeds and he is keen to replant them and reap more of the them to help raise funds for the place he used to work as a volunteer.

Preserving the Earth is something that took on more meaning for him as he watched it from close orbit.

"You can see how fragile our world is," Russell said. "It makes you want to take care of our planet more."

The reason Russell went to space was simple; he had always wanted to go.

"Everyone wants to go to space at least once in their life," Russell said. "When I saw the chance I took it."

The mode of travel used is manufactured

Russell in the capsule

by Blue Origin and uses a capsule sent up out of the atmosphere on top of a rocket that separates once it reaches the desired height and loiters for approximately 10 minutes while the booster module falls back to Earth before reigniting and making a controlled landing at the launch site.

The capsule containing the crew — the capsule has no pilots — then makes reentry into the atmosphere and comes back to Earth lofted by three parachutes slowing its descent.

The capsule and booster take off vertically from Blue Origin's launch site in West Texas. The capsule separates from the booster around 250,000 feet and continues on to space to reach an apogee of 350,000 feet. The booster autonomously makes its way back to Earth for a pinpoint landing on the pad about two miles (3.22 km) north of where the vehicle lifted off.

Russell is a graduate of Leonardtown

New Shepherd taking off

High School and the Dr. James A. Forrest Career and Technology Center; he went on to a career in law enforcement before becoming an entrepreneur.

In the business world he has started his own company called InfoHOA, a mail processing center and flagship operation for his technology-based community management companies.

Beyond his entrepreneurial success and historic spaceflight, Russell's other passion is in his philanthropy. He founded the Victoria Russell Foundation in honor of his late daughter, dedicating the organization to children's education and supporting the families of first responders. The foundation partners with Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, a program that fosters a love of reading by gifting books free of charge to children.

County to Distribute More Laptops

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Starting this month, the county government will be able to provide free Hewlett Packard Chromebook laptop computers to qualified county residents; mirroring two prior events where several thousand of the computers were given away gratis.

The next event is set for Dec. 14 at the sheriff's office's District 4 station on Great Mills Road in Lexington Park from 10a.m to 4 p.m, according to a release from the county government.

The distribution of free laptops over the past two years has been made possible by grant funding from the Maryland Office of Statewide Broadband.

The program is focused on providing the tools for personal internet access to those whom it is otherwise unavailable, including the elderly and economically disadvantaged but also veterans and some who are disabled.

The program has changed from prior events, though, as the event is open to qualified residents from throughout Southern Maryland, not just St. Mary's and qualified residents can still get a laptop even if someone else in their household has received one as well.

Residents must still provide proof of identification and eligibility and proof of address.

Applicants must meet one or more of the following qualifications: a household income at or below 200% of the federal poverty standard or participation in one of the following programs: Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), Medicaid, Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Federal Public Housing Assistance (FPHA) as well as veterans pension with survivors benefits, participation in Free and Reduced Price Meals for school students and Pell Grant recipients.

First Phase of Millison Plaza Redevelopment Underway

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

The shopping center at the heart of Lexington Park better known as Millison Plaza for decades but now operating at Pax River Village Center has been experiencing much change in the past few months.

Several buildings have been demolished, said Atlantic Realty President David Ross to the joint meeting of the Commissioners of St. Mary's County and the command staff of the Patuxent River Naval Air Station Dec. 3, and the first phase of the redevelopment, which includes a new grocery store, is expected to be completed by May of 2025.

The shopping center was first constructed back in the mid-1970s and has operated as one of the county's main commercial hubs until recently with interest having declined in the center along with the physical condition of many of the buildings and their commercial spaces.

The first phase will result in the construction of a new Aldi's grocery store, Ross told Navy command staff and county commissioners.

"Phase 1 is a $45 million endeavor," Ross said. "It's reorganizing some of the retail uses in the center."

"It's to make it more pedestrian friendly and to create some green space area around the property."

The second of two new properties at the site to be constructed, Ross said, is a military-themed Starbucks coffee shop, while there are plans to turn one of the older buildings there to a different use.

"AMC Theaters has elected to close their theater there," Ross said of the property located on FDR Boulevard. "We've filed an application with the county to pursue a daycare facility."

The entire facility is over 200,000 square feet.

"We're taking something that is 50 years old and reinventing it for the next few decades," Ross said.

Base Command Warns Over Private Drone Use

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

Private aerial drone use for work and play are a part of everyday life, but in St. Mary's County the Navy wants to remind residents that their use within a certain distance of Patuxent River Naval Air Station is prohibited without prior authorization.

During a joint meeting between base command staff and the Commissioners of St. Mary's County this week, the Navy reiterated that their pilots' operations are endangered by drones as they are not easily detected.

According to the Navy, pilots can only detect drones about 30 percent of the time when they are sharing the airspace; the Navy says drones are more difficult to spot when they are stationary as they more easily blend into the background.

At that point the success rate for spotting a drone drops to about 10 percent, according to the Navy.

Commissioner Eric Colvin put the crux of the Navy's position succinctly: "You can't fly a drone [without authorization] south of St. Andrews Church Road."

"I don't know how they enforce that," Colvin said.

Drones are prohibited over national security facilities and where they are allowed cannot go above a ceiling of 400 feet.

"Out on Great Mills Road that road lines up directly with our runways and when we have drones go up in that area it shuts down our flight operations," said Lt. Cmdr. Samuel Hughes. "The reason that was done was the safety of the aircraft."

Despite being military in nature, aircraft such as those stationed at Patuxent River Naval Air Station are still threatened by damage that could be caused by even small drones, much the same way one can be damaged by a wayward bird strike.

School System Curbing Renovation Projects

By Guy Leonard
Staff Writer

For the past several years the St. Mary's County Board of Education has focused on repairing and renovating its current stock of school buildings rather than considering asking for money to build any new ones since their student enrollment has remained flat or declined.

But Kimberly Howe, the school system's chief capital development planner says that their efforts are still behind where they should be for keeping up with all the demands of maintenance on aging buildings.

"According to the state's records we have eight roof projects and 12 projects for [heating, ventilation and air conditioning] that we have put in [for funding consideration]," Howe told the school board at their Dec. 4 business meeting. "But we should be asking for 15 roofs and 16 HVACs right now."

It was the product of much time and hard use of buildings, she said.

"The fleet is aging," said Howe. "We are closely monitoring what the governor [Wes Moore] does with his budget."

Howe said all of the combing through the budget meant she and others in the capital improvement section were trying to find ways to ensure the system had enough money to finish the project currently underway at Chopticon High School in Clements.

"I am excited to see Chopticon get refurbished," said newly sworn in at-large school board member Josh Guy "And I'm not just saying that because I went there."

The school board voted unanimously to approve the capital budget plan for review by the county commissioners.
