'Safe Space' Turns into Big Controversy

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

"Safe Space" and the stickers on which the words are attached, have turned into a major controversy in Calvert County Public Schools.

After school board member Mellissa Goshorn suggested the stickers could be used to lure students into an abuse situation, they were ordered removed from the schools. The decision brought a barrage of criticism at the May 8 school board meeting.

The online encyclopedia Wikipedia says "The term originated in LGBTQ culture, but has since expanded to include any place where a marginalized minority (e.g., gender, racial, religious, ethnic) can come together to communicate regarding their shared experiences."

Some, but not all, of the speakers against removal of the stickers, were from the LBGTQ community.

Before the school board public forum, Student Member of the Board Grance Minakowski spoke on the subject. She said, "I recognize that this is a sensitive issue and making students in our school system feel seen and safe in an appropriate way is a process that involves collaboration between parent, staff, and student stakeholders."

She said students had reached out to her, saying, "We cannot ignore the reality that LGBTQ+ students face unique challenges when it comes to feeling included and safe in schools."

Minakowsji added, "I recently took some time to look into the most recent data from Calvert County, Maryland's report card and the 2021 civil rights data collection reporting. Our county reported 22 separate cases of bullying and harassment on the basis of sexual orientation reported to the Office for Civil Rights in the dataset."

She said the data reporting "doesn't account for the countless students whose experiences of discrimination go unreported due to stigma."

She said, "I've gotten the opportunity to meet with LGBTQ+ students through my student advisory council and other outreach efforts who shared stories of harassment, bullying, both in person and cyber, and feeling left out of their school community on the basis of their sexual or gender identity. I tell you this, to not despair out the progress that Calvert has made in ensuring the academic and future success of its LGBTQ+ students, but to underscore that we are not yet where we need to be. LGBTQ+ students do require safe space in schools, whether it's indicated with a sticker or not."

She requested the decision be rescinded. During the public forum, the speakers repeatedly identified themselves with the pronouns they would like to be addressed as.

During the testy session, several people had to be escorted out of the room for heckling and several speakers had their microphones cut off for going over the allotted time.

Some of the speakers opposed to the removal of the stickers equated the decision with the earlier one to remove inclusive from the school system's mission statement.

Sheri Tardo said, "I understand that many people in Calvert County support you in these decisions. I am not one of those people. This board, excluding Ms. Minakowski, puts regressive politics over sound policy. Both of these aforementioned changes were hasty, ill-considered, and ignored feedback from the community."

Paul Quade, president of PFLAG (Parents and Families of Lesbians and Gays) Southern Maryland, said, "Let us be clear, this decision sends a dangerous message to LGBTQ students, their families, and their allies. And the rhetoric used to justify it, including the false and offensive claims, that these stickers somehow signal predatory intent. is not only baseless, it's harmful. Safe Space stickers are not tools for harm. In fact, they are supported by the State Department of Education. These stickers have historically served a simple but powerful function. They communicate to students that the educator displaying it is friendly and affirming for many young people.'

Quade said, "PFLAG Southern Maryland is pursuing an appeal to the MSDE (Maryland State Department of Education) and the Maryland State Board of Education to call for a reversal of this directive."

Patuxent High School senior Myanna Montgomery said, "What is happening in our schools is wrong, harmful, and completely out of step with the values that we claim to uphold."

Ash Ashleman said, "I'll start off blunt and strong. When I was 13, I tried to kill myself," adding, "I watched myself bleed with an odd sense of comfort at the thought that the Lord above would be more merciful and understanding than the people I'm speaking here before today. I still have the scars to show for it all down my wrist. That hopelessness I felt for the future was overwhelming."

Stacey Tayman, president of the Calvert Association of Educational Support Staff, said, "This meeting is extremely difficult to sit through. The recent removal of safe space stickers and inclusive language from our mission statement...are part of a much larger calculated strategy we are seeing played out across our country. It's not original, it's a script. And our district is now following at the expense of our most vulnerable students, which just as alarming as the process or lack thereof, protocols have been ignored, decisions have been made without transparency, community input, or even without proper procedure."

But others spoke equally passionately in support of the decision. Jason Skaggs said, "I am so happy to have a board that's willing to put the safety of all kids ahead of identity politics. I'm a conservative Republican and one of our core values is that I want to be left alone, and I want to leave you alone. This value extends to public education. My child's sexuality is my business. Same with your child. A hundred years ago, the community saw the value in publicly funded education, a system that taught kids math, science, reading, and how to be a decent, productive member of society. Today, the majority of taxpayers don't want public education systems involved in a child's sexuality. There are many resources outside of the school system that can help with those in need. It is unfair burden on teachers and staff to try and help with every possible problem a child could have outside of school.'

Jeremy Todzia, education chair for the Calvert County Republican Central Committee, said, "Apparently Democrats in Calvert County don't like being reminded that they live in a Republican County."

He added, "I just wanted to do another quick reminder and to quote the great prophet Barack Hussein Obama. 'Elections have consequences'."

Jana Barberio said, "The origin of the safe space stickers are promoting an agenda that is contrary to the voters of Calvert County, which includes the safety of all students, not just those represented by PFLAG and Glisten. If one took the idea of a safe space at face value, instead, we would expect the entire school to be safe. Is one to presume that it is not safe if there is no sticker. Is the sticker merely a way to signal a small population of individuals that they can form an alliance or relationship with teachers? If so, the sticker signifies a code which can drive a wedge between the pupil and their parent."

School board member Goshorn defended her actions. "As I attempted to communicate at the last meeting, while attending a session on child protection, it became very clear that CCPS has some gaps in its policies and procedures, effectively putting our children, our staff, and our school system at risk. At this session, they explained that grooming happens when an adult builds trust with the child and the other adults around the child to gain access to and time alone with that child. Safe space stickers, posters, buttons, shirts, lanyards, bags, and imagery have been used by some as a way to signal to children that they can safely discuss personal sensitive, intimate, and sex related topics with that person. This is the reality. CCPS has not provided any guidance, training, or certification to ensure that any person self-identifying as safe is in fact trained to support a child's personal, private, or intimate matters."

She added, "I know from my own experience that contact is not being made with the parent when these private conversations happen."

Goshorn said, "Since the last board meeting, we have received troubling reports from our middle and high school students indicating that some staff have been engaging with students in ways that create unnecessary fear and confusion around this topic. We heard from some of those students here tonight. I've personally heard from several students who started out by saying, 'my teacher said' and proceeded to talk about the removal of safe space stickers. Let me be clear. Creating mass panic among students is not only disheartening, it is unprofessional, disrespectful, and inappropriate. It's also a violation of policy 1750, employee discipline. Several violations have already been reported, and I'm disappointed that (Superintendent) Dr. Townsel has not taken any corrective action to date."

School Board President Jana Post said, "For the record, removing stickers is not a violation of an individual's first amendment rights. The classrooms belong to the school system and not to the individuals, and that was fact checked."

She added, "A recent board discussion focused on student safety was deliberately twisted into a political debate about LGBTQ students. Let me be clear, the conversation that was had at that conference was never about identity, sexual orientation, race, gender. It was and remains about protecting the safety and the wellbeing of every single student in our schools. Unfortunately, instead of maintaining professionalism, some staff chose to disrupt the school day, misrepresent the intent of these discussions, and then share them with students. This was both disgraceful and deeply disappointing."

She added, "You do not create and demonstrate inclusion by silencing or vilifying those who disagree with you. You do not create safety by alarming children. A sticker on a door doesn't protect students. In fact, the statistics that were shared here tonight might be an indication that those stickers that have been on the doors for such a long time may not be working. Real safety comes from a culture of trust, not hashtags and slogans. If students feel unsafe about who they can talk to, we have a systemic problem, and stickers are not going to fix it. Our job is to prepare students for the real world, not to model rage, not to model division, and certainly not to model hate. We must do better.'

Referrals for options counseling can also be sent to mdh.mfp@maryland.gov.

All requested referrals will be processed within a 48-hour timeframe.

Calvert One of the State's Healthiest

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

Calvert County still remains one of the healthiest counties in the state and nation. That according to Calvert County Health Officer Dr. Nimfa Teneza-Mora during a presentation on May 13 to the Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) sitting as the Board of Health. She said the data to back up the assertion comes from a variety of sources.

One of the data sets, the health officer said, "looks at two things, population and wellbeing, and then community conditions. So, for the population and wellbeing, the following are used as measures to contribute to it: premature death rates, child mortality, and infant mortality. In the goodness here is that Calvert County is performing very well in this measure. So, we see significantly lower premature death rates, a higher average life expectancy, lower child mortality rates, when compared to both the state and national averages."

Dr. Teneza-Mora added, "Most of the quality-of-life indicators of Calvert County are also quite comparable to those of the state and national averages."

Showing a color-coded map of the state, she said, "Calvert County is recognized as being among the healthiest counties in Maryland and in the country," which prompted Commissioner President Buddy Hance to ask, "So why aren't we the healthiest?"

The health officer answered, "I think it's a combination of potential funding and then the efforts from the entire community." Hance said, "It always comes down to it."

"It's a major factor," she said.

The health officer observed, "One of those factors is health infrastructure. And the county health infrastructure is generally on par with the state averages in areas like flu vaccination, food environment, and mammography screenings. We also have lower rates of preventable hospitalizations and lower rates of uninsured compared to the state and national averages. Additionally, 73 percent of our residents have access to exercise opportunities. However, one of the challenges we face here is that we have a lower number of mental health providers and dentists that indicate an area of need."

"There are lower rates of housing problems, unemployment, child poverty, and injury deaths here compared to the state and that of the national average.

However, compared to the other counties, there is a gap in terms of proximity to recreational spaces."

She said a quarter of the population reports insufficient emotional support for them. Although on par with state and national averages, she said "That's still an area in which support is being needed for community members."

Dr. Teneza-Mora said, "Calvert is performing above the average for Maryland, and is notably outperforming the national average in terms of community conditions."

Cardiovascular is the leading cause of death in the county, at 29.3 percent, an adjusted mortality rate of 166 per 100,000. "We are pleased to report that that trend is actually coming down for the county."

The next most prevalent cause of death is malignant neoplasms and cancers, at 20.2 percent. She said, "The most common cancers are lung, colon, pancreatic, and prostate cancers."

Accidents are the third leading cause of death in the county, followed by diabetes.

Injury deaths include motor vehicle accidents, suicides, homicides, and accidents. She said they are stable for the state and county. Suicide deaths in the county are actually declining.

"It's important to point out that there's an increase in the death rate from motor vehicle accidents in our county between 2022 and 2023."

As to drug overdose deaths, the health officer said, "Our county's drug overdose rate in 2023 was 31 per 100,000 residents. This is below the state average. And from 2021 to 2023, the drug overdose rate here has been decreasing. In 2022 the rate was in the twenties, down to 11 in 2023, and then last there were five deaths from overdose. And so that's actually equivalent to the decreasing rates throughout the state as well.

Health Officer Dr. Nimfa Teneza-Mora

But I think it's multiple factors attributing to that positive finding, including probably the distribution of Narcan, education of the community of Narcan." She also credits the work of her staff.

Due to a compressed schedule because of Business Appreciation week visits by the commissioners, the health officer will return to continue with her findings.

Proposal Calls for Water, Sewer Rate Increases

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

Staff of county government have been working for the past two years to come up with a rate schedule for water and sewer service that allows for collection of enough money to cover costs for the break-even enterprise funds, while at the same time not causing an undue financial burden on ratepayers.

The Calvert County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) seem to feel that the plan presented at their May 13 meeting fills the bill. It includes a several tiered system based on usage and calls for a nine-percent increase in sewer rates and a three-percent increase in water rates for the next fiscal year and then a three-percent increase for each for subsequent years.

Deputy Public Works Director James Ritter, in a memo to the commissioners, said, "The BOCC adopted a tiered bill structure for water and sewer last fiscal year (FY). At that time, a rate study was conducted for FY 2025 and is subject to continuing refinement each fiscal year. The rate analysis has identified the need for adjustments to the current rates. The Department of Public Works has collaborated closely with the Department of Finance and Budget to review budget trends and assess available funding balances within the Water & Sewerage division, providing essential inputs for the rate model. Additionally, the department has worked alongside the rate study consultant to evaluate funding requirements and determine the rate adjustments needed to sustain the lowest possible rates over time.'

Consultant Mike Maker from NewGen Strategies & Solutions said, "The water and sewer enterprise fund should be financially self-supporting, as an enterprise fund should be fundamentally run as a business and should maintain reserves, contingencies, and unplanned expenses. So, a rainyday fund, things like that. And ideally water rates and charges should be kept as low as possible over time. And we say this because you can defer maintenance and not invest in your system and have really low rates. But then at some point you're going to have a main break or something catastrophic."

He noted, "Maintenance expenses are predominantly affected by cost increases, inflationary increases. These are things like salary, cost- of-living adjustments, benefit increases, materials and supplies, things like that. Things in your supply, chemicals, electricity, capital improvement plans. This is usually one of the largest factors. This is just your investment in the system, the treatment system, distribution and collection systems, and debt service too. Both existing principal. interest payments you're paying now, as well as any capital projects that are going to be debt funded."

Maker said, "The reserve target we're working to hit is a minimum cash balance of 180 days of expenses. So roughly half a year of operating expenses maintained in a capital reserve."

"User rates are charged quarterly, and the dickmyers@countytimes.net capital connection fees are charged as onetime fees for new development," he said.

The study came after some residents received bills double or more what they were paying just before the holiday season two years ago.

As to the rate proposal, Maker said, "We also have some research on what other places have done in terms of increase and...they range anywhere from, we've seen just inflationary three percent all the way up to an over 65 percent increase just in other municipalities in Maryland. So, three percent and nine percent doesn't sound quite as bad when you look at what someone other places have had to do in terms of their increase."

The tiered system based on usage was intended to cut consumption, but Ritter said, "From what we're seeing, the usage has not changed. They're still using just as much, if not a smidgen more. I guess those are our green yards."

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

Allan Creamer has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the North Beach Town Council.

According to a press release from the town, "The position was originally posted on April 11, 2025. Creamer will serve the remainder of the current term, which runs from 2022 to 2026, until the next scheduled election." Creamer fills the position left vacant with the resignation of Lauren Kabler.

The town council conducted open, public interviews during its May 1 work session.

According to the town, "Creamer, a North Beach resident since 2004, has served more than 14 years on the Town of North Beach Environmental Committee. During that time, he helped develop the town's recycling program, advised on flood protection and living shoreline projects, and contributed to the town's Sustainable Maryland certification and recertification efforts.'

"He holds a bachelor's degree in fisheries science from Cornell University and a master's degree in the same field from Virginia Tech. Since 1991, he has worked as a fish biologist with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. He also serves on the Media Tech and Disaster Relief teams at Emmanuel Church in Huntingtown and has been an active member of the American Fisheries Society since 1989, participating in various leadership and committee roles, the release said.

"Mr. Creamer's experience, integrity and dedication to public service make him a valuable asset to the town council," said Mayor Michael Benton. "We look forward to his contributions as he begins this new role."

To be eligible for appointment, applicants were required to meet the following criteria under Subtitle 3, Section 19-302 of the Town Charter:

Allan Creamer

- · Be a resident of North Beach for at least six months;
- Reside in the town for the entire term of office:
- Be at least 21 years of age;
- Be a registered voter in the town.

Creamer was sown in by Benton at the May 8 town council meeting. After the swearing-in, Craemer said, "I am truly humbled and honored for the opportunity to do this. As I explained during my interview on Thursday, I've been for the better part of my career 34 years in federal government, serving the American people in public service. I look forward to continuing to do that. And this is one way that I can do that, working with these folks. I know of all of them, some quite well, and I believe we can continue to do good things, and I look forward to getting down to work."

Two Arrested in Stolen | Event Raises More Vehicle Crime Spree

Emmanuel Adjapong Mellish

Calvert County Sheriff's Office deputies on May 4 at approximately 7 a.m. responded to the 9700 block of Wildfire Lane in Owings for the report of a motor vehicle theft. Upon arrival, it was discovered that unknown suspect(s) had stolen a 2016 white Dodge Journey from the victim's driveway and stole a wallet and credit cards from a second vehicle at the residence.

Approximately one hour later, at 8:04 a.m., deputies responded to the 9100 block of Paulyn Drive in Owings for a report of an abandoned vehicle. Deputies located a stolen 2011 Hyundai Sonata abandoned in front of a residence.

On May 6 deputies responded to multiple reports of thefts from vehicles and vehicle tampering in the Cavalier Country subdivision in Dunkirk. At approximately 2:42 a.m., a resident in the 1300 block of Squire Lane observed a suspect dressed in all black clothing and a camouflage hat tampering with two vehicles in their driveway. While investigating further, the resident located a white Dodge Journey parked at the corner of Knight Avenue and Prince Street. The vehicle fled the neighborhood at a high rate of speed when approached.

Det. W. McDowell with the Criminal Investigations Bureau assumed the investigation. In the early morning hours of May 8 Det. McDowell and patrol deputies were conducting proactive patrols and observed the stolen Dodge Journey parked near Smithville Road and Fielder Court in Dunkirk. At approximately 1:25 a.m., the vehicle accelerated out of the area as deputies approached. At 1:26 a.m., deputies observed the stolen vehicle run a solid red light at Ward Road and MD Rt. 4, continuing northbound at a high rate of speed. DFC Plant activated emergency equipment to initiate a traffic stop; however, the vehicle failed to stop, and a pursuit ensued. During the pursuit, Deputy Baxter successfully deployed stop sticks near Rt 4 and

Brickhouse Road, disabling both front tires of the fleeing vehicle.

Despite the tire damage, the vehicle continued northbound, disregarding commands to stop. Deputy Angell successfully executed a Precision Immobilization Technique (PIT) maneuver near Rt. 4 and Chaney Road, causing the vehicle to come to a stop in the driveway of a residence in the 12600 block of Southern Maryland Blvd. The vehicle's occupants refused to comply with deputies' commands for approximately 20 minutes. At 1:56 a.m., following verbal commands and K9 warnings from DFC Rzepkowski and his K9 partner Cruz as well as DFC Hendrickson and his K9 partner Atlas, both suspects surrendered and were taken into custody without further incident.

The driver was identified as Emmanuel Adjapong Mellish, 21, of Silver Spring, and the passenger as Ryan Eveard Moses Lowe, 20, of Bowie. A search of Mellish's backpack revealed a cellphone and a pair of black gloves. A subsequent search of the stolen vehicle recovered multiple items reported stolen during the recent string of vehicle thefts and tampering incidents.

Both Mellish and Lowe were transported to the Calvert County Detention Center and charged with the following:

- Unlawful Taking of a Motor Vehicle
- Eight counts of Rogue and Vagabond
- CDS: Possession of Paraphernalia
- Theft: $1,500 to under $25,000
- Two counts of Theft: $100 to under $1,500
- Theft: Less than $100.

Mellish received an additional charge for Fleeing and Eluding.

Sheriff Ricky Cox and yhe Calvert County Sheriff's Office commends the diligence and teamwork of Det. W. McDowell, patrol deputies, and K9 teams for the safe apprehension of the suspects involved in this multi-day crime spree.

Donning denim, cowboy boots and plenty of sparkle, the Calvert County community came together to raise more than $115,000 for Hospice of the Chesapeake at "Boots & Bling, A Culinary Experience". All proceeds will be used to grow and strengthen programs in Calvert County and provide direct support to local patients and families living with illness and loss.

The event was held May 9 at the beautiful new Rod 'N' Reel Resort ballroom on the waterfront in Chesapeake Beach. Around 180 guests enjoyed international and Chesapeake Bay cuisine while learning about the mission of the nonprofit organization from emcee and Foundation Board member Brandon Temple, Chief Medical Officer Dr. Marny Fetzer and Chaplain Bill Miller.

Dr. Fetzer talked about the importance of the family caregiver. "Behind every person we care for, behind every patient navigating a serious illness, there is often someone quietly carrying a tremendous weight," Fetzer said. "A wife helping her husband in and out of bed. A son tracking medications and managing appointments between work shifts. A daughter sleeping on a couch nearby, afraid she'll miss her father's final breath. They are family members, friends and neighbors and they are you."

Funds from this year's event will support programs that teach, support, and guide Calvert County people experiencing serious illness and their families. "We have visions of helping this community focus on health in addition to healthcare," President and CEO Becky Miller said. "With your help we will continue to be the #1 independent, community-based hospice in Maryland and become the #1 trusted resource for people living with serious illness."

The organization is grateful for the generous support of its many sponsors, including Diamond Spurs sponsors John & Cathy Belcher and Floor Systems; Gold Lasso sponsors Maertens Fine Jewelry and Peggy McKelly; and Silver Saddle sponsors CalvertHealth Medical Center and Lee Funeral Homes.

The nonprofit also would like to thank its event partners. Photobooth Partner. Crow Entertainment; Dessert Station Sponsor Dunkirk Vision; Décor and Centerpiece Sponsor Jan Kleponis, O'Brien Realty, ERA Powered; and Cocktail Hour Nibbles Partner, Rod 'N' Reel Resort.

Burglary: 25-36783 On May 4, 2025, at approximately 1:08 a.m., deputies from the Calvert County Sheriff's Office Patrol Bureau responded to a commercial burglary alarm at the Tobacco King Smoke and Vape Shop, located at 10359 Southern Maryland Blvd. in Dunkirk. Upon arrival, Deputy Claggett discovered signs of forced entry, including a shattered front door. While securing the scene, a small SUV was observed exiting the parking lot with its headlights off. The vehicle fled south on Southern Maryland Blvd. before being involved in a crash with another vehicle near the intersection of Southern Maryland Blvd. and Ward Rd. The occupants of the SUV fled the crash scene on foot. Detectives from the Criminal Investigative Bureau responded and assumed the investigation. Store surveillance footage revealed four suspects making entry through the broken front door. All suspects were dressed in dark clothing, wearing facemasks and gloves. The video showed the suspects filling a backpack and other bags with vape devices from store shelves and taking cash from the register before fleeing. The estimated value of the damaged property is $1,000, with approximately $2,150 worth of merchandise reported stolen. The investigation remains ongoing.

FINANCIAL FOCUS®

Be alert for caregiver financial abuse

Do you have a parent or other elderly relative who may soon need a caregiver? If so, be diligent when selecting the right person for the job — because choosing the wrong one could lead to big financial problems.

You might find a close family member or friend to serve as caregiver — someone who is honest and trustworthy, with good judgment and strong money management skills. However, in many cases, people hiring caregivers just don't know how they'll perform until the caregivers have begun work. A dishonest caregiver could steal valuables or cash from the person they have been paid to assist or incept their mail to obtain credit card numbers and other sensitive information to commit identity theft.

So, if you enlist a caregiver and begin having doubts about them, you'll need to watch out for these warning signs of possible financial abuse:

Efforts to prevent the individual receiving care from speaking to family members

- Inquiries into the location of estate-planning documents, such as a will
- Interest in brokerage and retirement accounts, possibly with the intent to change transfer-on-death designations
- · Withholding financial or medical information from the family
- Missing jewelry or property
- Requests to be a joint holder on bank or brokerage accounts, sometimes followed by large cash withdrawals paid to the caregiver
- Request for legal authority, such as a financial power of attorney naming only the caregiver

This last item — the request for financial power of attorney, or POA — is particularly concerning because of the scope of duties covered by this type of authority. That's why it's so important that all family members understand what a financial POA can and cannot do.

A general financial POA provides the agent with the authority to act on behalf of an individual's finances, while a limited financial POA gives the agent the authority only for certain actions, such as paying bills, making withdrawals and opening or closing bank accounts. A general financial POA and a limited financial POA both can be durable, which means they take effect once executed, or springing, which is contingent on a specific event, such as a physical illness, mental incapacity or even a hospitalization.

Unfortunately, some POA agents have abused their responsibility by stealing money, making unauthorized transactions and even attempting to change the beneficiary designations on retirement accounts or insurance policies owned by the people for whom they provide care. These beneficiary designations can even supersede the instructions left in a will or living trust — and they can't be changed by a financial POA.

If you suspect financial abuse by a caregiver, you can consider contacting your loved one's financial advisor or attorney, if you know who it is. While they can't share information with you, they can check for red flags and contact your loved one directly. You also can get help from your state government. The National Adult Protective Services Association (NAPSA) provides a listing of offices in each state at napsa-now.org/help-in-your-area.

Finding a caregiver for a parent or other elderly relative can be emotionally difficult — but it doesn't have to be financially draining. Get to know the caregiver if you can and watch for any red flags, so you can take comfort in knowing that your loved one's finances are in good hands.

Hockey Pucks and Fried Eggs

By Ronald N. Guy Contributing Writer

Imagine the innocent hockey puck. It's held firmly in a warm hand, unsuspecting of the future it was designed to endure. The calm ends with an abrupt slam to a hard, cold surface, followed milliseconds later by a violent beating from competing weapons. The subsequent 60 minutes are a demolition derby, as the poor little puck is slapped, kicked, slammed against boards and deflected off metal posts. Some die heroes (souveniers for fans). Others find the briefest of reprieves – a soft landing in a comfy net – but even this well-earned rest can prompt a chorus of displeased boos (an opponent's goal).

Pondering the life of a hockey puck of course led to a memory from the 1980s. Remember that anti-drug commercial with the egg and the frying pan? A blazing hot pan is shown on the screen while a disembodied voice proclaims, "This is drugs". A cracked egg then lands in the pan and immediately begins to sizzle while the chilling voice from the beyond declares, "This is your brain on drugs...any questions?"

Forty years later, I have one. Actually, it's a statement. Conferring recently with a dear friend of similar vintage and trusted source of wisdom, we concluded that our brains are frying on the daily in a new, well-oiled pan: The consistent onslaught of information-age stimuli. First it was email. Then social media. Then smart phones brought 24/7 connectivity to all things and produced crispy-fried brains – i.e. agitated, over-stimulated and wounded - worldwide. Now 30 years in to what is clearly a never-ending adaptation cycle, we both acknowledged fatigue - our original curiosity and determination to keep pace with technology being replaced with a palpable dose of "I just don't give a damn anymore."

It is two days later and I'm typing this piece while watching games in a quad box and monitoring text messages from other sports degenerates. Glorious? In some over-indulgent fantastic way, yes. In others this method of modern sports consumption, which is metaphorical for our daily lives, is in a dimension all its own. In an effort to be everywhere, are we really present anywhere? It is a question best pondered in a dimly lit room and with proper mental lubricants in play: classic jazz playing, incense wafting though the air and a decent amount of whisky having been consumed by the conversationalist.

In that aforementioned discussion with my dear friend and fellow member of Gen-X, we had none of those ingredients, but we made due with salads, iced tea and the multi-decade poporri of pop music that was playing in the background. We talked about our unique place in history, as the last generation that will remember life before the internet and the first to encounter and wrestle with its impact and evolution – in the workplace, as parents and across all aspects of society. We cherished our ability to escape it all as needed; after a tough day at school there were no text messages to fear or address, there was only the therapeutic solitude of the basketball court in the backyard. We reminisced about how we used to consume music – hunting for the latest album, scoring it at a record shop, listening to it front to back (no skipping), finding the hits and exploring the deep cuts, learning all the words – and our sympathy for kids today who are robbed of that magic by the instantaneous, superficial world of digital downloads. Road trips were another topic. Truth be told, I wouldn't trade the power of GPS, but navigating with a road atlas and a little bit of directional chaos sure created some epic adventures. Sports were very different too. We felt closer to our teams and our favorite athletes, even though they were far less accessible; the suggestion being that a child's imagination is a better gap-filler than a website, YouTube or a social media follow.

At the conclusion of our discussion, we parted ways with a hearty bro-hug, an appreciation for the emergent circumstances that brought us together, gratitude for genuine, focused human contact and this definitive conclusion: We grew up in the best of times.

Raskin Delivers Commencement Address at SMCM

St. Mary's College of Maryland, the National Public Honors College, graduated 386 students with Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Master of Arts in Teaching degrees on Saturday, May 10, outdoors on the campus' Townhouse Green.

U.S. Rep. Jamie Raskin (D-Md., 8th), the Ranking Member on the House Committee on the Judiciary, delivered the keynote address. In his message, Raskin spoke of the current challenges to American democracy while kindling hope for the "other path" awaiting the graduates: "...the path of democracy and freedom, human rights, the rule of law, literature, education, research and art," he said. "And I can't prepare you for that path in two minutes, but that's all right, because the last four years of your time at St. Mary's have been your real preparation for this moment, because you embody the St. Mary's Way."

Raskin received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters presented by President Tuajuanda C. Jordan, accompanied by Board of Trustees Chair John J. Bell '95.

In her final address, presiding over a commencement ceremony at St. Mary's College, President Jordan reminded the Class of 2025 of what they had accomplished together. "In the spirit of the St. Mary's Way, you have persevered through the challenges of the past few years with tenacity, patience and focus, balanced so importantly with a bit of fun," she said. "We trust your journey with us has given you the leadership tools necessary to have productive careers and exemplary lives displayed with grace and humility."

Bell also delivered a short message to the graduates. "As an alumnus, I remember what it felt like to sit in those front rows, filled with excitement about my path ahead," he stated. "And now three decades later, I feel that same sense of hope and possibilities standing before the Class of 2025."

The College's newest alumni heard from one of the five class valedictorians: Devon Gorel, Robert Koontz, Morgan Kresslein, Sam Parizek and Alaina Sievert. Parizek was selected to address the class via lottery.

Parizek charged his classmates to respond with kindness to the unprecedented times in the world they were about to enter. "[A]n unwavering and unflinching commitment to kindness is an unwavering and unflinching commitment to the values of this school, to the values of a liberal education, to the values of humanity," he stated. "Our position is not solely reactive or passive, but is brimming with agency, waiting to be energized and employed. I would suggest then that we proceed in our lives, in this nebulous world, not on autopilot, but through conscious engagement, emphasizing action, even amidst rampant inaction, and kindness."

President Jordan recognized four faculty who retired this year: Beth Charlebois, professor of English; Sandy Ganzell, professor of mathematics; Walter Hill, professor of political science and Andrew S. Koch, professor of chemistry. Together, the four represent over 100 collective years of teaching students.

The commencement was live-streamed on the College's website, and that recording is available for view there.

This program is intended for adult audiences (18+). The stories presented are based on real 17th-century court cases and include sensitive topics such as enslavement, interracial relationships, abuse, adultery, and

Find Your Next Treasure at a Local Thrift Store

A Calvert whiskey vase, one of Joe Mattingly's favorite thrift store finds

By Florence Ballengee Contributing Writer

Most people love a bargain and thrift store enthusiasts will tell you it's their favorite place to find one.

For some it's the thrill of the hunt and they just roam the thrift stores until something attracts them.

Former Assistant State's Attorney Joe Mattingly, Jr. has been a long-time thrift store enthusiast. Over the years he has found items from the unusual to the valuable. One of his favorite finds was a Calvert whiskey vase with a picture of Lord Baltimore on it. He has an extensive glassware collection, but because the whiskey vase is a Maryland item, he is particularly fond of it. He found the item at Goodwill in Annapolis.

While at a thrift store in Laurel, Mattingly found an unusual hat rack. It is wrought iron, and is shaped like a tree with branches.

At the Salvation Army in Waldorf, he found a cast iron frying pan. Mattingly enjoys cooking and using his extensive collection of glassware.

He advised that if you see something and you can afford it, buy it. Not only can you find some great conversation pieces, but you can help the environment by recycling. If you go often enough, he said, you will eventually find a treasure.

Mattingly says thrift stores are often run by churches and other nonprofits. They are good for the community because instead of ending at the dump, useable items are sold to raise money for charity.

Mattingly frequently shops at local thrift stores and when he travels, he often makes it a point to check out thrift stores.

Betty Claus has four children, nine grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Thrift stores are a way for her to save money since she often comes across new toys. Because she is very active in her senior community, she finds items that can be used for various fundraisers that she enjoys doing where she lives. She also purchased good used clothing.

Bernice Jones Williams looks for high end clothing and home decor. She changes her bedroom decor every few months and most often from thrift store bargains. She is well known among her friends for her generosity and if someone is in need of something at her senior apartment building, "Ask Bernice" is often the advice given.

There are particular brands that appeal to her. For instance, she is always on the lookout for Chico women's clothes. She found a coat which was mink on one side and leather on the other for $25 at a thrift store.

Kathy Cerwensky was not a thrift shop shopper until she moved to Victory Woods Senior Apartments. There she found a group of friends and one of the things her group enjoys most is thrift store shopping. Recently Cerwensky found a big, heavymetal lamp that was being given away. She took it home, took it apart, painted it with chalk paint and put some flowers in it.

Below is a partial list of St. Mary's County thrift shops. All of those listed raise funds for charitable purposes. You can look up any of them online where you will find their business hours.

St. Andrews Thrift Store, St. Andrews Church Rd. (Route 4); small. but well-kept shop run by volunteers. They have a monthly newsletter and have frequent sales.

Vintage Values; two locations, Route 5 in Leonardtown, and Route 235 in California; these two shops are always well-stocked stores with a little of everything. Each week there is at least one sale item, generally more than one.

Angel Wings and Things on the campus of St. Michel's Church in Ridge; run by volunteers; old two-story building with very organized items of everything description. They even have a bargain basement. Open on Saturday and Sunday only Hooks and Hangers, Route 5, Charlotte Hall; large inventory including a lot of furniture and an expansive supply of books. Sales every week.; in the former IGA grocery store building.

That's a little about each store that supports a charity or church. The Tri-County area has lots of thrift stores and other than Waldorf, you won't find better prices anywhere. There are several large thrift stores in Waldorf. While the variety of merchandise is excellent, the prices are much higher than here in St. Mary's or in Calvert County.

Recreation & Parks Recognizes Volunteers

St. Mary's County Government's Department of Recreation and Parks (R&P) was honored to recognize volunteers who dedicate their time, energy, skills and passion to R&P programs.

The R&P Board and staff members recognized outstanding volunteers from the department's Museums Division, the Summerstock Theater program, and volunteer coaches from the youth indoor soccer league and youth basketball league. Volunteers were presented with certificates thanking them for their accomplishments.

In addition, two volunteer coaches were awarded plaques for their exceptional sportsmanship. The annual George Stewart Coaches Award was presented to Dustin Robinson, who coached two R&P youth basketball teams. Kevin Meyer received the First Year Coaches award for his inaugural year of volunteer coaching service.

"It's definitely a labor of love," said Julia Pappendick, a Summerstock volunteer recognized for her costume work. "I started with my teenager when she was part of Summerstock, but I've kept going. It's been a great experience."

In 2024, R&P volunteers provided nearly 9,000 hours of service. Their dedication helps R&P programs, facilities and events run smoothly and contributes to R&P's mission of sharing top notch programs with local communities.

"Any amount of effort that someone wants to put in, you get to say you're part of it," said Summerstock volunteer Christina

If you would like to volunteer with St. Mary's County Recreation & Parks, please complete an online application at www.surveymonkey.com/r/VolunteerApplication Release. NAVAL AIR STATION PATUXENT RIVER

Annual Fleet Workshop Equips Warfighters with Training on Evolving Aircrew Systems

Military personnel from across the country gathered near NAS Patuxent River May 5-8 for an annual workshop aimed at strengthening fleet training on critical aircrew support systems, ensuring the safety of both aircrew and maintainers during flight missions.

Hosted by the Naval Aircrew Systems (PMA-202) Fleet Air Introduction/Liaison of Survival Aircrew Flight Equipment (FAILSAFE) team, the event welcomed more than 100 attendees, including parachute riggers, fleet aeromedical safety officers, and Naval Survival Training Institute instructors.

"Our job at PMA-202 is to equip and sustain aircrew with cutting-edge mission ready systems, ensuring their dominance in any operational environment," said Capt. Joseph Kamara, who recently took lead of PMA-202. "What you all do is critical for the safety of our thousands of aircrew and maintainers around the world.'

The three-day training focused on the introduction, support, and assessment of new or modified Aviation Life Support Systems (ALSS), including ejection seats, oxygen systems, and survival vests. Attendees received essential instruction on system undates, emerging technologies, and direct engagement with PMA-202's product and fleet support teams.

"This workshop equips warfighters with the expertise needed to navigate system transitions smoothly, ensuring fleet readiness and awareness of advancements in critical technologies," said Lt. Chris Mecham, FAILSAFE team lead.

Staying informed on these advancements is crucial for aircrew and maintainer safety in life-or-death situations, reinforcing operational effectiveness and survivability,

"My first FAILSAFE workshop was in 2019, it was an eye-opening event that motivated me even more to complete the PR [parachute rigger] mission," said Aircrew Survival Equipmentman Master Chief Rob Johnson. "This year's event is no different, being able to see what happens in the background to support ALSS and hearing about updates on new equipment is really cool. It's important for more maintainers to attend these, not only for knowledge, but for networking. Meeting the faces behind the emails and the voices behind the phone make it easier when reaching out for help."

PMA-202 oversees the development, procurement, and sustainment of aircrew and maintainer-support systems, including ALSS, protective gear, vision systems, and survival equipment.

Navy Restores T-10 Test Cell Facility at Pax River, Enhancing Fleet Readiness

The Navy's T-10 Test Cell Facility at Pax River is undergoing a significant revitalization that will enable engine testing in a noise-suppressed environment.

Driven by a collaborative effort between the Common Aviation Support Equipment program office (PMA-260) and Naval Facilities Engineering Systems Command (NAVFAC), this initiative strengthens NAVAIR's propulsion community by enhancing engine testing capabilities, emphasizing the Navy's commitment to maintaining mission-ready aircraft.

The restoration of T-10, which had been closed for more than a decade, is essential for supporting the Engine Test Instrumentation Replacement System (ETIRS), a next-generation capability designed to improve engine performance evaluations across multiple aircraft platforms.

Once operational, the facility will provide a controlled, weather-independent testing environment, reducing reliance on costly off-site evaluations and mitigating schedule risks. By investing in this critical infrastructure, the Navy is ensuring maintainers will have reliable, ready-for-use equipment to support engine repairs on the flight line.

"The revitalization of the T-10 Test Cell Facility is a crucial step in reducing cost

Navy team members facilitate instrumentation setup during a recent load test as part of the collaborative effort between the Common Aviation Support Equipment program office (PMA-260) and Naval Facilities Engineering Systems Command (NAVFAC) to revitalize the T-10 Test Cell Facility that will enable engine testing in a noise-suppressed environment at Naval Air Station Patuxent River, Md. (U.S. Navy photo) and schedule risk for the ETIRS program," said Capt. Matt Wilcox, PMA-260 program manager. "As legacy engine test instrumentation systems become obsolete, our team remains committed to delivering this enhanced capability to Sailors and Marines without disrupting I-level engine maintenance operations.

As T-10 ramps up towards full reactivation, it symbolizes the strategic alignment between aviation support equipment (SE) modernization and achievement of maintenance capability. By streamlining maintenance and engine testing, T-10 acts as a force multiplier, significantly improving support equipment acquisition and sustainment.

"By optimizing test and evaluation opportunities and ensuring efficient resource utilization, this strategic effort directly supports the program office's goal to deliver our products on time, on cost, with proven functionality and reliability," Wilcox said.

For intermediate-level maintainers and flight line personnel, the introduction of ETIRS brings faster and more accurate diagnostics capability to Navy Fleet Readiness Centers (Level II), Carrier Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Departments, and Marine Aviation Logistics Squadrons ensuring aircraft remain ready, reliable, and lethal.

Arrest Made in Series of Vehicle Burglaries

Deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office continue to investigate a series of motor vehicle break-ins in the California and Lexington Park areas, which have resulted in additional charges for the suspect previously arrested.

Donell Davonne Rothwell, 54, of no fixed address, was initially arrested on Saturday, April 5, 2025, following reports of thefts from unattended vehicles. Deputies canvassed local businesses and residential neighborhoods, collecting evidence that linked Rothwell to multiple incidents in which credit cards and valuables were stolen and later used for purchases at area stores.

After continued investigation, Detective First Class Alexander Wynnyk has now filed additional charges against Rothwell, which include:

- Eight counts of Rogue and Vagabond
- Three counts of Theft Less than $100 Four counts of Theft $100 to Less than
- Three counts of Credit Card Theft:
- Stealing Another's
- Two counts of Credit Card Theft/ Another Charge Less than $100
- One count of Credit Card Theft/ Another Charge $100 to Less than
- One count of Felony Theft Scheme $1,500 to Less than $25,000

These are in addition to the original charges filed at the time of arrest, bringing the total number of charges against Rothwell to 46 counts. Rothwell remains incarcerated at the St. Mary's County Detention and Rehabilitation Center on a no-bond status pending trial.

Anyone with further information related to these incidents is asked to contact DFC Alexander Wynnyk at 301-475-4200, ext. 8020, or via email at Alexander. Wynnyk@ stmaryscountymd.gov.

The St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office reminds residents to take simple but effective steps to help prevent vehicle breakins. Always lock your vehicle, even when parked at home, and avoid leaving valuables in plain sight. Parking in well-lit areas and securing your belongings out of view, preferably taking them with you, can significantly reduce the risk of becoming a target for theft. These precautionary measures are essential ways to protect yourself and your property from opportunistic crimes.

Great Mills Man Convicted of First-Degree Murder

State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling has announced that a St. Mary's County jury found James Jerome Adams, Jr., 20, of Great Mills guilty of first-degree murder and the use of a firearm in the commission of a crime of violence for his role in a shooting homicide in Great Mills.

On April 4, 2023, deputies from the St. Mary's County Sheriff's Office responded to the parking lot of the Sheetz on Old Great Mills Road in Great Mills for a report of gunfire. The victim suffered multiple gunshot wounds and ultimately succumbed to his injuries.

"The defendant's actions stole a young man's life and endangered many others in a brazen act of gun violence carried out at a busy gas station," said State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling. "This conviction delivers accountability, though no verdict can bring back the life that was tragically taken that day. We will continue to stand with the victim's family and do everything in our power by continuing to prosecute cases involving senseless gun violence to the fullest extent

Adams was convicted by a St. Mary's

Jerome Adams, Jr.

County jury following a jury trial. He will be held without bond pending sentencing. He faces a maximum penalty of Life plus 20 years in prison.

It's May and It's Tick Season

County Proclaims Lyme Disease Awareness Month

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

It's May and it's prime time for ticks to be hiding in wait to leap on you or your pet.

In recognition of the Lyme disease carried by ricks, the Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) have proclaimed May as Lyme Disease Awareness Month.

The proclamation presented om May 13 said, "Lyme disease, which is transmitted by the bite of an infected tick, is the most common tick-borne disease in Maryland, with over 900 cases reported in 2021.'

It went on to say, "Lyme disease can lead to a range of symptoms, including fever, fatigue, joint pain, facial paralysis, and neurological complications, impacting individuals of all ages and potentially causing long-term health issues if left untreated."

The proclamation said, "Detection and treatment are crucial for mitigating the effects of Lyme disease, yet diagnosis can be challenging due to the varied nature of its symptoms.

During the presentation, Director of the Department of Aging and Human Services Lori Jennings-Harris said, "One of the most important pieces that we need to remember is the prevention of tick bites. If you think you have been infected or have been bitten by a tick, to follow up with a medical professional and be persistent if you have to be. Sometimes we have to do that in order to get the care that we need.'

Deputy Director of Department of Aging and Human Services Brandy Tulley said, 'Our department also offers tick awareness kits and tick prevention kits for the public. So. you can reach out to our Department of Aging and Human Services if you're interested in those or need more information about Lyme disease prevention and tickborne illness.

Division Manager for Senior Center Operations Candace Nelson said, "The, Northern Senior Activity Center does a lot of the tick-borne illness information and outreach and one of the staff members there, you all may have met her before, does speaking events and things like that.'

Director of Environmental Health with the St. Mary's County Health Department Heather Moritz said. "The majority of my staff is out in the field on a regular basis and is exposed to tick-borne illness every day. It's a discussion we have as far as checking yourself, what clothing can you wear, certain kind of sprays you can put in your clothing and things like that to protect yourself. It is something that does impact our office as well as our community.

"You can definitely check out the health department's website at www.smcd.org for more information on how to see signs of a tickborne illness, which can be hard because they mimic a lot of other things that are just your common cold or flu and things like that, but also ways you can prevent it and protect yourself."

New Road Added to Golf Cart Regulations

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) have approved adding Old Horse Landing Road in Mechanicsville to the list of roads on which golf carts are allowed. The approval came at the CSMC May 13

The decision amended the ordinance that limited golf carts to select roads in the Golden Beach area.

County Attorney Buffy Giddens said, "We did have a public hearing on April 29 regarding this issue, and we had a total of 13 comments/speakers, all of whom were in favor of this repeal and an adoption of the amended ordinance.'

Giddens said, "Old Horse Landing Road is about a mile long. DPW&T (Department of Public Works and Transportation) did do a traffic study on that. They found that one vehicle was traveling in excess of the 30-mile posted speed limit at 69 miles per hour). Because of that, the director felt like this would not be a safe move to allow golf carts on that road.

"However, there are a number of requirements for golf carts to be driven on that road. Some of these come from the state law, which includes that golf carts can only be operated between dawn and dusk. They have to be equipped with reflective devices as required and....they're also to be driven as far to the right of the roadway as it's feasible and that the driver should possess a valid driver's license. A golf cart is a vehicle that seats more than one occupant. It has a maximum speed of 20 miles per hour. It has a windshield and a steering wheel, and it is not a motor vehicle. It is not a low-speed vehicle, which is a four-wheel vehicle that has a maximum speed of 25 miles per hour."

Giddens added, "It's not an off-highway recreational vehicle.'

Commissioner Eric Colvin said, "I think the community in this neighborhood has been at this for a long time and I really have to commend them for how dedicated they've been at chasing this down and encouraging this to happen. And their commitment to safety is important to note.'

Colvin added, "We've had other people reach out to us interested in this, and one thing I tell them is look at how the people on this road handled it because they really advocated well.'

Commissioner Mile Hewitt said he had talked to an elderly man who wondered what would happen in the event that a golf cart caused an accident with a car. Hewitt noted that the golf carts don't have to be insured. Giddens said in that case the car driver would have to file suit against the golf cart driver.

The commissioners were also informed that the Town of Leonardtown would be responsible for enacting golf cart regulations for town roads.

Also at the May 13 meeting, the commissioners unanimously approved amending the animal control regulations to remove having five or more dogs from the definition of a commercial kennel. No one objected to that at another April 29 public hearing.

State's Attorney Gets Last-Minute Budget Help

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) are expected at their May 20 meeting to sign a $348.6 million operating budget for the next fiscal year that begins July 1.

At a short final budget work session on May 13, the commissioners made only one change from the previously discussed budget iterations. They unanimously added $150,000 to the state's attorney's budget.

Commissioner Eric Colvin made the suggestion. He said the budget deliberations have generated "a lot of discussion from the community, rightfully so. And a lot of good (discussion). There's one last thing that I'd like to do. If we can get consensus among the board and that's provide some additional support to our state's attorney office. We always talk about not micromanaging other elected officials. So, what I propose is we give $150,000 to the state's attorney and let her decide how she wants to allocate that with the understanding that it's got to be pegged somehow into something before we approve the budget finally next week."

Colvin said, "I'd like to make a few cuts in a couple of different places in order to get that funding."

He said he had a conversation with the county administrator about suggesting cutting $52,000 from his budget that has been allocated for "the CSM employee development program that they do. And we pause that for a year. The county administrator told me that legal could generously donate $25,000 from their budget, that there was extra money in legal services there that could be pulled back."

The difference would be made up of freezing a vacant position budgeted at $47,000 salary and $14,000 of fringe benefits. And an additional $11,000 would be taken from the commissioners' reserve.

Commissioner Mike Hewitt said, "We ought to just tell all our departments to deal with X amount less every year. Because you're picking and choosing here."

Hewitt added, "I use the term 'rob Peter to pay Paul."

Colvin noted, "I think that brings up a good point. I'd love to have a discussion about switching to zero-based budgeting and what that would look like for us as a commissioner board and as a county."

Chief Financial Officer Vanetta Van Cleave said, "I think that it would lend itself more towards, to your point Commissioner Hewitt, the identification of what the needs, wants, must haves are, to be able to have a more informed conversation about potential reductions."

Hewitt said, "I don't have any issue with giving the state's attorney more resources. We have said we're going to do something with this fourth courtroom. And I know she had put in her request for $694,000. So. what's $150,000 do? Does that just make us all feel better? And we gave somebody something."

Commissioner Mike Alderson, Jr. said, "I have to agree with Commissioner Colvin. Given that $150,000, the state's attorney should help relieve some pressure in that office in respect to that fourth courtroom. I feel that if we don't address this now, we will be in the same position we were in two years ago. We're in the middle of the cycle, scrambling to give her money for that department over there to help cover the shortcoming she found when she took office."

State's Attorney Jaymi Sterling said she needs closer to her budget ask of $690,000, but "I also understand that we're in difficult fiscal times and I'm not going to get (it all)." She added, "I'll take what the commissioners will provide the state's attorney's office because we are in need of resources."

Sterling equated her office with the state's attorney's office in Calvert. "We have 17 prosecutors, and I think I've said this before, the state's attorney's office in Calvert County has 17. We have probably 20,000 more people than Calvert County in our county. Our county is also growing at a rapid pace. We're one of the fastest growing counties in the state."

She added, "The majority of people who live in Calvert County go outside to work, a lot of them coming to St. Mary's County. St. Mary's is a county where a lot of people who live here also work here. And we have a lot of people coming into our county. So the crime in St. Mary's isn't necessarily people who live in St. Mary's. So, we have to factor all those things in."

Sterling said, "We need more courtrooms because of the great work the state's attorney's office is doing, a 261 percent increase in criminal trials. If I were to ask for a 261-percent increase in my office, it'd be for 40 prosecutors. You don't see me doing that. I asked for three. And if you're saying you can get me one, I'm going to graciously accept the one and I'm going to put those into our office and get those working."

She added, "I will tell you right now is an excellent time to be an employer in ways that's not really excellent for the rest of the country or excellent for the rest of the working people in St. Mary's. There are people looking for jobs and I have never, since I've started, received the number of applicants that we're able to receive. So, I don't want us to miss out on some of these opportunities. There are some incredible candidates who are applying."

Even with his objections, when it came around to voting, Hewitt joined the other four commissioners in providing the extra funding for the state's attorney, although he said, "I just think it's a lousy way to budget."

Great Mills Rezoning Approved on Split Vote

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) have approved, om a 3-2 vote, the rezoning of an 8.27-acre piece of property at 29698 Goddard Road in Great Mills.

Land Use and Growth Management Deputy Director Courtney Jenkins, at the May 12 CSMC meeting, said the change was to amend the 2010 comprehensive plan land use map, "to change the land use from rural preservation to mixed use medium intensity, and to also amend the zoning district from Rural Preservation District to Medium Density Mixed Use (MXM) zoning district and to amend the Lexington Park Development District Master Plan land use maps dated May 8th, 2018, to include the entirety of the property to be located within the Lexington Park Development District."

She said, "The request went to the planning commission on February 24, 2025, and the planning commission voted 5-2 in favor of the applicant's request. They came before you on March 25 to request a public hearing. The public hearing was conducted on April 29 at 11:30 a.m. It lasted approximately 24 minutes. In addition to the brief presentation that I provided, there were two speakers. One speaker spoke in opposition to the proposed ordinance and one speaker, the applicant's representative spoke in favor of the proposed ordinance."

Commissioner Mike Hewitt asked, "Ms. Jenkins, tell me, is there a reason that this has to be done in advance of the comprehensive plan, which is already being worked on and should be ready hopefully within a year?"

Jenkins said, "It is the property owner's decision whether or not they would want to wait or not wait, and they've elected to not wait and to make the proposed amendments at this time."

Hewitt then said, "I'm going to vote against it because I believe it could wait. And secondly because I believe the Lexington Park Development District is big enough."

But Commissioner Eric Colvin disagreed. He said, "I think I'm going to support this because it seems like a pretty reasonable plan, and I like what the owners of the property are saying that they're planning to do there. If down the road they were to change their plans to something that would be drastically different, then that would be a different story."

The applicants, Robert and Robin Belden, are planning a building to support their defense contracting business.

Colvin noted that their plans still had to be approved by the planning commission.

Commissioner Mike Alderson, Jr. said, "My only trepidation with the project would be stormwater management on the east corner, where Goddard Road wraps around on the backside of that property. There's quite a substantial contour change there of almost 10 feet. I believe."

Jenkins said, "Any proposed project would go through stormwater management review."

Commissioner Scott Ostrow agreed with Hewitt. He said, "I reviewed the planning commission meeting as well and I think this is something that could wait."

When the vote was tallied, Hewitt and Ostrow were the two negative votes as the rezoning passed.

Three Administrators Cut from School Budget

Follows County Adding $3.1 Million

By Dick Myers Staff Writer

The Commissioners of St. Mary's County (CSMC) tentatively restored $3.1 million to the county public schools on May 6, which School Superintendent Dr. J. Scott Smith said was enough to cover the system's negotiated agreements with their bargaining units.

But that decision still left the school system $3.2 million short, including a $1 million reduction by the state, from that which was requested of the county from the school board.

So, with that in mind, Deputy Superintendent of Fiscal and Supporting Services Tammy McCourt outlined at the May 7 school board meeting the additional cuts the school system will have to make in order to close that gap and balance their budget.

She said, "We need to step back and look at what actions have you already taken within your recommended budget. So as we work to develop the budget...we analyze and review in great detail every budget request. Last year's budget is not the starting point for next year's budget. We really work with our directors and supervisors to dive down into the details. They work hard to obtain quotes. We analyze the utilization of instructional software to make sure that is a software product that is valuable for our students and absolutely should be incorporated in next year's budget. Or is it not, and it should be removed. So, we spend a lot of time ensuring that what's being put forward for the board's consideration is absolutely of great benefit to the school district and students.'

She added, "During the course of the fiscal year, in accordance with your board policy and regulations, we obtain three price quotes. And if we don't like the results of those three price points, we may actually go out and obtain additional pricing under the purchasing cooperation and utilizing economy at scale pricing in your budget. We also cut 10 teaching positions, elementary, middle, and high school.

"For our healthcare, we incorporated changes, and these were very methodical and strategic plan changes. We incorporated Medicare Advantage this past January and we knew that that would produce budgetary savings. We incorporated Prudent RX that was implemented effective April 1st and Marathon Employee Health Center, in partnership with the county government. We rolled that out last April. So, we've had a first full year impact of that, which will result in claims reductions for next year."

McCourt said, "Our budget also included the full implementation of the building maintenance automation system. The current fiscal year's budget included a one-time contribution to stand up that system."

McCourt explained, "But we do have that additional shortfall that we need to address beyond your recommended budget. Therefore, we have cut three cabinet positions. We have cut the assistant superintendent of support services. We have cut the chief of equity engagement and access, and we have cut the chief strategic officer. And it's important to ensure that we're setting the tone at the top. So, we're not just making cuts at the school level. We're making cuts in the central office at the cabinet level. We're cutting four IRTs, a reduction of one to every elementary school, with the exception of our Title IX schools. We have cut three administrative intern positions, and we have cut up to 15 teacher positions. That is inclusive of the 10 prior positions that we've mentioned. We have removed one-to-one technology in kindergarten through first grade. We have relocated the virtual academy and turned the virtual academy existing building back over to the county government effective July 1st. And we have moved the environmental education from the Elms to Sotterley, and we are continuing to put in place additional reductions in the relocatables."

McCourt said, "Going into next year's budget, this is a much more streamlined approach. It consists of not three deputy and assistant superintendent positions, but two; not six chief positions, but four. Additional budgetary savings have been recognized due to implemented strategies with regard to our healthcare."

McCort noted that with the passage of the Excellence in Education Act, the potential state cut to the county was reduced from $2.5 million to $1 million.

School Board Member Josh Guy said, "I'm grateful that the county commissioners gave us some more funding this year. And I like what you said about we didn't just focus on cutting teachers, we also cut three top admin positions because it starts at the top."

Member Mary Washington said, "We educated our employee groups about the healthcare options from triple options to HMO. And in the final analysis, we have enough money when the commissioners vote on the budget to fund our employee groups. And that's one of the main priorities of the board, to make sure that we pay our employees an excellent wage, well, I'll say a very good wage."

Board Vice Chair Cathy Allen thanked

Deputy Superintendent of Fiscal and Supporting Services Tammy McCourt

McCourt and her team "for your diligence, as always, in not just accepting the information given to you, but really digging down, seeing if the numbers do make sense, and if there are areas where there could be adjustments, that those are made in a timely fashion so that the number that goes to the commissioners with is the absolute."
